Voiceprint Trial Experts Disagree On Tape Wording

Prosecution Witness Raises Possibility Of Human Error

By LARRY MOWELL

A major breach in the prosecution case against Stephen C. Chapter was opened yesterday when the second and final witness claiming voiceprints are reliable unwittingly impeached the first.

The possibility of human error loomed large when Dr. Oscar Tosi completed his testimony yesterday.

The doctor was called in the afternoon before Lt. Ernest W. Nash of the Michigan State Police had finished his testimony, because the doctor had to return to school today.

Chapter, a 28-year-old San Anselmo resident, was charged in September with making a bomb threat, after Nash and an assistant concluded their voiceprint studies.

The anonymous threat of a bomb in the Pacific Telephone Co. office in San Rafael was made Feb. 1, 1972, to a phone number used by telephone installers to call in work orders.

Chapter was fired after the felony charge was filed.

In a thick accent, Tosi testified that when a trained examiner compares voiceprints, the chance of error is negligible and he called Nash "the best possible voiceprint examiner in the world."

But both claims were in serious doubt after Moran played a portion of the tape Nash used to identify as Chapter's the voice threatening to bomb. The two experts, hearing the somewhat unclear tape hours apart, came to different conclusions about what it said.

The tape played by Moran was of a work order everyone agrees Chapter phoned in shortly after the anonymous bomb threat was made. Nash compared the work order tape and the voices of 17 other telephone installers with the anonymous bomb threat before identifying Chapter.

Nash identified the first sound in the passage from the work order as an eight, and said he had matched it to eights in the bomb threat recording to identify chapter.

Tosi, however, said the sound Nash considered an eight was actually the letter "E" as in key. An examiner should not compare an "E" and an "A" sound in making a voiceprint identification just as key and mate should not be compared, he said.

"But if he persists with comparing two sounds, which are different, would you call him incompetent?" Moran asked. "If they are different, yes," the professor answered.

After hearing the exchange, Judge E. Warren McGuire asked Tosi, "are we at the stage where there is a dispute among people who specialize in the field?"

Tosi said he didn't think "we have too much dispute," but he admitted some in the scientific world disagree with him.

Whether voiceprints are accpted as reliable in the scientific world is the key element in the first phase of the case. If McGuire decides they are, he must rule on Chapter's guilt or innocence in the nonjury trial. But if he decides they are not, the case will be dismissed because the voiceprint evidence is all that links Chapter to the bomb threat.

Despite Tosi's own damaging testimony, the doctor maintained that from a $300,000 study he did, each person's voice makes a different pattern. "Every person has a different vocal tract in the same way that everyone has a different face," he said.

But Tosi said on cross-examination that his study was only "to establish the reliability of visual examination." His study did not measure the chances for

Shop Center Doubts Delay Agency Budget

By PATRICIA PERRY

Gathering doubt as to whether a regional shopping center — the mainspring of Corte Madera's redevelopment plans — will ever be built in the town caused the town council last night to put its proposed redevelopment budget in limbo. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 10.)

At the suggestion of Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels, the council, with Mayor Holmes S. Norville absent, voted unanimously to take no action on the $157,039 spending program proposed for this fiscal year, through most of the money has been already spent or committed.

Bartels said that nothing is certain until the Army Corps of Engineers announces whether it will grant developer Ernest W. Hahn a fill permit for his Marin Mall — a project which has divided the town against itself and led to a recall election for three councilmen.

He also gave an unexplained hint that Hahn — who has said he's already invested $5 million in the project — may be having second thoughts, too. Said Bartels: "I think really until we know from Hahn whether he is going to move or not the town is at a standstill."

The budget which never became a budget included $35,489 for salaries and wages, $103,550 for materials, supplies and services ($95,000 of it for consultants) and $18,000 for interest.

This last $18,000 figure gave a clue to the complicated financial tangle the town may face if redevelopment fails. It's the interest the redevelopment agency must pay the town's sanitary district on the $150,000 in reserves it borrowed to finance its redevelopment activities for 1972-73.

Councilman Robert J. Flahive asked Bartels how much of the $150,000 has been spent. He was told about $100,000 with the remaining $50,000 to be spent on consultants' services already contracted for, including the town's general plan revision through Sedway and Cooke.

"What happens if redevelopment doesn't fly?" asked Flahive. "How do we pay back the sanitary district?"

Bartels said that the town attorney, Albert Bianchi, had warned that the legal costs entailed "are beginning to make his hair curl" and added the town will receive Bianchi's quarterly bill next week. He didn't know the total.

"We'll have no alternative whn these bills come in but to pay," Bartels said.

The council decided to take no action at all on the recevelopment budget, except to transfer the $9,000 salary of the agency's secretary, Terry Condy, to another section of the budget so she wouldn't be without a job.

ASSISTANCE CALL — San Rafael Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci races from the fire front past fireman James Coffee to put in a call for assistance in fighting the 12-acre grass fire above downtown San Rafael. Kentfield, Larkspur, San Anselmo, and Marin County fire units aided San Rafael firefighters in battling the wind-whipped blaze yesterday afternoon on San Rafael Hill.

Grass Fire Sweeps San Rafael Hill

No home or other structure was threatened by the blaze, which broke out at 1:52 p.m. A spokesman for the San Rafael Fire Department said that it was suspected that the blaze had been deliberately set, and that a youngster was taken to juvenile hall for questioning in the matter.

Seventy-five men and 18 units from five fire departments battled the blaze most of the afternoon. The fire fighters were assisted by numerous volunteers wielding shovels and hoses.

The blaze began on the bottom turn of serpenting Robert Dollar Scenic Drive and wound its way up to the top of San Rafael Hill, jumping two of the road's switchbacks before it was contained. Breezes which pushed the fire up the hill began to die out by about 3 p.m.

One fire truck nearly was caught by the conflagration, and approximately 600 feet of booster hose was destroyed.

Kentfield, Larkspur, San Anselmo and Marin County fire units assisted San Rafael in the battle. No one was injured.

Among the volunteers was a group from the Kundalini Yoga School clad in white robes and turbans.

Most others attempting to get to the scene were restricted by a police unit trying to keep the area clear. One resident of Graceland Drive reportedly was not allowed to pass the police roadblock to take care of her pet dog and cat in her unattended home.

Fire officials said they did not intend to detain residents, but only fire engine-chasing "rubberneckers."

UNDER CONTROL — Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci, on top of San Rafael Hill, watches fire below him and listens to walkie-talkie reports as his firefighters bring the blaze under control late yesterday. Winds that had pushed the fire up the hill died out about 3 p.m., helping firemen stop its progress.

Bedayan Wins Combined Trials

By GEORGE NEVIN

The attorney of accused triple murderer Brent William Bedayan said yesterday he is prepared to admit "to the jury and to the public" that his client killed three members of a Mill Valley family.

As a result, Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick today granted a motion by the attorney, Frank J. Cox, a deputy public defender, to combine the penalty and sanity phases of the trial.

Jury selection then began as 83 prospective jurors were brought to the court. Broderick said he expects selection to continue Tuesday and Wednesday. No session will be held Monday.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, who objected to the combining of the two trial phases — a move with only one known precedent in California jurisprudence — told Broderick he will appeal the ruling to the state Court of Appeals.

Only in the trial of accused murderer Herbert W. Mullin in Santa Cruz county were the penalty phase, which determines a defendant's guilt, and the sanity phase combined.

The first notice that Cox will not dispute the prosecution contention that Bedayan shotgunned Melvin J., Ruth E. and Daniel Schallock came yesterday.

As the afternoon proceedings wound up, Cox said, "I'm prepared to admit to the jury and to the public that Brent Bedayan did commit the homicides in question. But the question is, what mental state was he in at the time?"

A thorough inquiry into the issue of "psychiatric disability which I can prove Bedayan suffered" should be made, Cox said.

Broderick agreed that "the case won't be decided on any factual basis, but on the assessment by the jury on the psychiatric issue."

Bedayan, 22, of Mill Valley, sat quietly at Cox's side during the proceedings, usually staring at his hands or the table in front of him, where he had placed a pile of newspaper clippings. He was dressed in a one-piece white jumpsuit worn by county jail inmates.

Earlier, Broderick, after wavering a bit, denied Cox's motion that potential jurors be brought into court one by one so they couldn't hear each other's answers.

Broderick said such a plan could treble the amount of time it would take to pick a jury, and denied the request. The request was opposed by Bales.

Cox argued the case has attracted "a tremendous amount

Outside Legal Advice Asked On Cover-Up

Moore Says Nixon Met With Lawyer In Florida

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon consulted a prominent outside lawyer about his Watergate problems last spring upon being warned he would be a party to a "cover-up of a cover-up" if he remained silent, presidential counsel Richard A. Moore testified today. (See other stories, page 42.)

Appearing for a second day before the Senate Watergate Committee, Moore said Nixon consulted the unidentified attorney over Easter weekend in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Easter fell on April 21, exactly one month after Nixon was informed about the depths of the scandal by then-White House Counsel John W. Dean III. Dean was fired April 30.

Moore said he urged Nixon to seek outside legal advice at a meeting with him alone in the White House Oval Office just before Nixon stepped onto a helicopter to start off for a Florida weekend.

Moore told Nixon Easter would be a "good time to contemplate" and might mark "the start of a resurrection" in the Watergate situation.

"I said, 'I've been thinking about this whole thing. And you now have facts. And you know and I know and I'm convinced the country will accept that you did not know about the cover-up,' " Moore said.

"I said, 'But you do know... if you don't take action and get the facts quickly, you will be accused of a cover-up of a cover-up and that, sir, will come into this Oval Office and affect you, because now you are involved.

" 'And I just hope that as you assess the facts, you'll get the benefit of outside counsel, because everybody in this building (the White House) has his own relationships, his own bias and perhaps his own involvement. And when you are assessing the legal and factual issues, please get someone for what lies ahead from outside.'

"The President said, 'I understand, I understand. I thank you,'" Moore testified.

Moore said he then went to Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler —who Moore

Viral Pneumonia Puts President In Hospital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors said today President Nixon continued to suffer chest pains following a "restless night" at Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he was admitted last night for viral pneumonia.

Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary, said Nixon's temperature continued to hover between 101 and 102 degrees, but that he was carrying on the "essential work" of the presidency in spite of some pains and the temperature.

Dr. Walter Tkach, White House physician, said however that Nixon's work schedule would be "certainly less than a quarter" of normal while he is in the hospital.

Nixon was admitted to the hospital about 9:15 p.m. EDT yesterday after Tkach diagnosed the President's condition as viral pneumonia. Tkach said there were "no complications" with the illness, Nixon's first serious physical setback since he took office.

"We had difficulty in convincing him that he really was a sick man," Tkach said today. He added that Nixon got only four hours sleep after being admitted and he had to be given a "strong analgesic by injection."

Ziegler told the same news briefing at Bethesda that Nixon was examined by doctors twice in the early morning after a "restless night." He said the President was suffering from

Clash Over Documents Seen Possible By Ervin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin forecast today the Senate Watergate committee would vote to subpoena White House documents relating to the scandal if his coming meeting with President Nixon failed to produce a compromise agreement.

The President's refusal to grant the senators access to the papers, and subpoena action by Ervin's committee, would create a constitutional confrontation almost sure to require settlement by the Supreme Court.

Ervin said during a television interview early today that he would meet with Nixon "tomorrow," but later explained that he misspoke. He said he hoped the meeting could be held next week. It possibly would be held at Bethesda Naval Hospital, where Nixon was admitted last night for treatment of what his doctor diagnosed as viral pneumonia.

The White House said no date had been set yet and that representatives of the President and Ervin would get together shortly, possibly today, to work out arrangements.

Ervin told reporters later, just before gaveling today's Watergate hearing to a start, that he hoped the conference could take place next week in spite of Nixon's hospitalization.

McQueen Weds

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Justice of the Peace Arthur Garfield laid down his golf clubs and picked up his Bible to marry movie stars Ali MacGraw and Steve McQueen under a spreading cottonwood tree

It was the second marriage for both. Miss MacGraw, 34, is best known for her role in "Love Story." McQueen, 43, has starred in such action thrillers as "Le Mans" and "The Great Escape."

The two were married yesterday in a simple ceremony in a city park by Garfield, who was summoned in the middle of a golf game. The only other persons in attendance were McQueen's two sons, Terry, 14, and Chadwick, 12, and Miss MacGraw's 2-year-old son, Joshua.

Greek Vote

ATHENS (UPI) — Seven former members of Parliament said today the forthcoming referendum on the Greek republic is a farce. They urged Greeks to vote against it.

"We denounce the farce of the referendum and we choose to cast a 'no' ballot," the group said in a statement.

The seven, all followers of exiled opposition leader Andrea Papandreou, also denounced the abolished Greek monarchy as "sinful" but said the military regime of provisional President George Papadopoulos was no better.

In urging Greeks to cast a negative vote in the referendum scheduled for July 29, the seven former Center Union Party deputies broke from the policy urged by Papandreau that Greeks cast blank ballots.

Irish Festivity

BELFAST (UPI) — Northern Ireland passed its "biggest test of the year" yesterday in violence-free celebrations marking a 283-year-old battle that led to Protestant domination over Roman Catholics in the province.

British commanders had ordered 28,500 troops and police to keep the peace as 80,000 Protestants paraded at 18 rally points throughout the province. But an army spokesman reported only minor incidents and said they occurred after the celebrations.

"Yesterday was our biggest test of the year, but much of the credit for the lack of incidents must go to the people of Northern Ireland themselves," the spokesman said.

Battle Mistake

TEL AVIV (UPI) — An Israeli military source said today the battle that flared yesterday on the frontier with Syria, the most serious in seven months, apparently was the result of a series of mistakes and misunderstandings.

The region was reported quiet today and the the military command said it expected no further fighting after the latest 20-minute flareup.

According to military sources, the incident began when a Syrian tank patrol crossed by mistake into the demilitarized no man's land separating the warring nations.

Drug Slaying

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Delegate James A. (Turk) Scott Jr., a Maryland legislator awaiting trial on federal heroin smuggling charges, was shot to death early today by shotgun and pistol fire.

Police were trying to determine if Scott, 48, was hit by crossfire in a gangland-style execution.

Scott, charged with conspiring to transport $10 million worth of raw heroin between New York to Baltimore from 1971 to 1973, was found lying on his back in the basement garage of his apartment building.

He was scheduled to be tried on the smuggling charges Aug. 20 in Richmond, Va.

Getty Kidnap

ROME (UPI) — J. Paul Getty III, 16-year-old grandson of billionaire J. Paul Getty, was reported missing and possibly kidnaped yesterday.

Police said they were treating the case seriously and would make a statement later today.

Mrs. Gail Getty, the youth's mother, told police and UPI that she received an anonymous telephone call yesterday saying that her son was kidnaped.

Ambassador To Moscow Still Lacking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite improving Soviet-American relations, the United States has had no ambassador in Moscow for more than six months and President Nixon has given no indication he will announce an appointment.

Several Soviet diplomats said today they had expected than an announcement might be made during the recent summit meeting between Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and Nixon.

But Nixon made no announcement on a successor to Ambassador Jacob D. Beam, and checks at the State Department and the White House revealed no expectation of a new ambassador being named soon.

NO DIFFICULTY

In one sense, the absence of an ambassador in the normally important Moscow post does not present any immediate difficulties.

Nixon and Henry A. Kissinger, his national security affairs advisor, have preferred to depend on Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and his deputy, Yuli M. Vlrontsov, as their main channel of communications with the Kremlin.

Soviet diplomats said that during the summit meetings Brezhnev decided to keep Dobrynin and his deputy in Washington for yet another year.

Dobrynin had been expected to leave Washington after 11 years of service here to become either first deputy foreign minister or possibly foreign minister, replacing Andrei D. Gromyko.

The Soviet envoy, who arrived here during the early days of President Kennedy's New Frontier, is now the fourth ranking diplomat in terms of service in the Washington diplomatic corps.

ROCKEFELLER NAMED

Soviet officials recently have gently hinted that the Kremlin leadership would like to see in Moscow an American envoy with great prestige in the American business community. The name of David Rockefeller, head of the Chase Manhattan Bank, has been mentioned as an example, but he is understood not to be under consideration.

In the absence of an ambassador, the U.S. embassy in Moscow is headed by Adolph Dubs, a career foreign officer. Dubs is presently in the United States for what is described by State Department officials as routine leave and consultation.

Under current law, U-turns are prohibited unless authorized by a sign.

Details Of Phase IV Are Awaited

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The administration is expected to come up soon with the details of a new program that will replace the current freeze on food prices with one that allows the increased cost of raw farm products to be passed on to consumers.

John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, said yesterday the biggest problem in designing Phase IV is "management of the potential price bulge" when the freeze is lifted.

In other developments:

An administration economist estimated retail food costs in the last half of 1973 might rise 5 per cent, bringing the annual average about 15 per cent above 1972.

Rep. Ella T. Grasso, D-Conn., said she has joined 15 other lawmakers in a letter to the Cost of Living Council expressing their opposition to lifting food price ceilings. The letter said by not imposing a freeze on the price of raw agricultural commodities the administration "has led us to think of empty shelves in the nation's supermarkets."

The Agriculture Department said the milk industry produced 2.5 per cent less this June than a year ago.

The United Egg Producers, a major egg farmers cooperative, said in a telegram to President Nixon that slaughter of laying hens increased again last week and was 60 per cent above a year earlier. The UEP called this "further evidence that the American egg producer is rapidly liquidating laying flocks because of the current freeze."

Florida agriculture officials have surrendered a huge chunk of the Miami area to "lethal yellowing," a fatal coconut palm disease that has claimed 9,000 trees, and are now trying to establish a buffer zone to check its spread. One said the disease continues would wipe out south Florida's coconut palms within five years if allowed to continue unchecked.

Inmates at New Jersey's Leesburg State Prison have decided to send their daily 300 loaves of bread to welfare recipients in Philadelphia who have not gotten their checks in two weeks. Pennsylvania welfare checks have not been mailed out this month because the state's $3.5 billion budget was not approved until yesterday.

Phase 3-½, which has been in effect since June 15, freezes the cost of all but raw agricultural products. It allows farmers to raise their prices but holds those charged by processors and wholesalers at the levels they were at when the freeze was imposed. It expires Aug. 15.

Each time price controls have been removed prices have ballooned as companies hurry to match costs they have been unable to pass on earlier, Dunlop said. The surge that followed the end of Phase II in January pushed up retail and wholesale prices at record rates.

Council officials are still working on a formula to allow higher costs to be passed along gradually, he said.

The president of the National Association of Food Chains, Clarence G. Adamy, meanwhile predicted that retail prices will jump at least 4 per cent when the freeze ends, with meats and fresh produce temporarily going up 15 per cent or more.

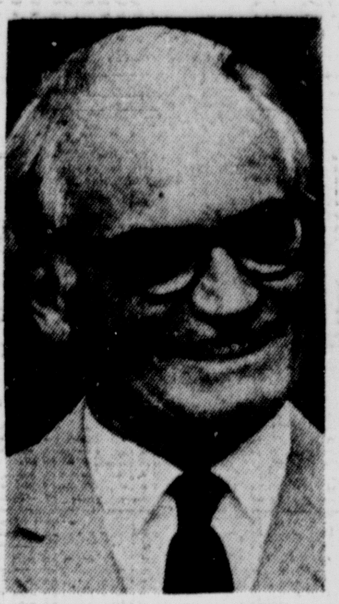
Also in Washington, C.W. Cook, chairman of the General Foods Corp., said current food prices are "deceptively low" because they are based on raw farm product prices, which were below current levels when the freeze was ordered in mid-June.

Cook said consumers who expect food prices to ease this fall will be shocked when the increase in farm prices is passed on at the retail level.

In an interview, Adamy said the post-freeze price rises will be caused in part by the freeze itself, which reduced supplies of some foods when producers found they could not operate profitably.

Goldwater Retorts To Kennedy On Scandals

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said last night the nation "can do without moralizing" about the Watergate scandal by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy while facts are still unknown about the Chappaquidick drowning.



BARRY GOLDWATER
GOP hurt, not dead

Goldwater also told the national convention of Young Republicans that their party has been damaged by Watergate and has a "big job ahead" in regaining public confidence.

The Arizona Republican was the final speaker at the convention, which urged President Nixon to speak out on Watergate "in the setting of his choice."

The national executive committee of the Young Republicans scheduled a postconvention meeting today to finish a second Watergate resolution putting the blame on "personally inexperienced personnel" and advocating national committee control of future campaign finances.

Goldwater accused Kennedy of speaking with "unctuous righteousness" on the Watergate matter when "all the facts involving the Chappaquidick tragedy" are still unknown. In July, 1969, Mary Jo Kopechne drowned when a car driven by Kennedy went off a bridge at Chappaquidick in Massachusetts.

"The American people can do without moralizing from the Massachusetts Democrat," Goldwater said. When Kennedy spoke on July 4 at Decatur, Ala., in an appearance with Gov. George Wallace, "The senator constituted himself as both judge and jury in the Watergate affair," Goldwater said.

"I say that one does not have to excuse or condone any of the stupid illegalities of the Watergate affair to suggest that Senator Kennedy is the last person in the country to lecture us on such matters," he said.

Kennedy's July 4 speech, Goldwater said, "was obviously the opening gun of Kennedy's drive for the presidency in 1976."

Turning to the effects of Watergate on his own party, Goldwater said, "I am not inclined to come here with a sugar-coated message stating that all is well in the GOP, neither am I about to tell you that it is time for the Republican party to roll over and play dead. I suggest it will take a lot more than the Watergate to kill off the Republican party."

He said the most damaging aspect of the scandal was the tying of illegal tampering to the Republican party even though, he said, none of the people involved in the scheme were elected to office by GOP voters.

Goldwater said that until any incriminating evidence is delivered, Nixon should be presumed innocent of "any and all involvement in the sorry and sordid events."

New Head Named For Peace Corps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nicholas W. Craw has been named to head the Peace Corps as acting associate director for international operations of ACTION, the Federal Volunteerism agency announced yesterday.

Craw, who replaces Donald K. Hess, will serve in an acting capacity pending presidential nomination of a permanent associate director. Craw was formerly head of ACTION's office of citizen's placement, was an official of VISTA, the domestic peace corps and worked with Project HOPE, the private international medical assistance organization.

McQueen Weds

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Justice of the Peace Arthur Garfield laid down his golf clubs and picked up his Bible to marry movie stars Ali MacGraw and Steve McQueen under a spreading cottonwood tree

It was the second marriage for both. Miss MacGraw, 34, is best known for her role in "Love Story." McQueen, 43, has starred in such action thrillers as "Le Mans" and "The Great Escape."

The two were married yesterday in a simple ceremony in a city park by Garfield, who was summoned in the middle of a golf game. The only other persons in attendance were McQueen's two sons, Terry, 14, and Chadwick, 12, and Miss MacGraw's 2-year-old son, Joshua.

Greek Vote

ATHENS (UPI) — Seven former members of Parliament said today the forthcoming referendum on the Greek republic is a farce. They urged Greeks to vote against it.

"We denounce the farce of the referendum and we choose to cast a 'no' ballot," the group said in a statement.

The seven, all followers of exiled opposition leader Andrea Papandreou, also denounced the abolished Greek monarchy as "sinful" but said the military regime of provisional President George Papadopoulos was no better.

In urging Greeks to cast a negative vote in the referendum scheduled for July 29, the seven former Center Union Party deputies broke from the policy urged by Papandreau that Greeks cast blank ballots.

Tornado Forecasts Increasingly Good; Many Puzzles Remain

By DAVID F. SALISBURY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BOSTON — Tornados and other severe storms in the United States are no longer traveling unchallenged. They are being predicted more and more often, scientists say.

Although scientists still have only a hazy idea of the detailed anatomy of violent storms, they are using satellites, reinforced with a "break-through" in radar detection and computer modeling, to tackle predictions with vigor. They hope to further refine their forecasting skills and increase their understanding of the "whys" of these destructive atmospheric events.

At present the meteorologists at the National Severe Storms Forecasting Center in Kansas City, Mo., say they are able to predict three out of every four large-sized tornadoes. This year they have finally achieved a long-time objective: the average of only one casualty for every 10 tornadoes. This is contrasted to the average of one death per tornado in the 1940's.

"One immediate goal now," says the center's director, Allen D. Pearson, "is not just to say there's a tornado, but to be able to actually predict its severity."

Ironically, the track record of the present storm-warning network has been so good that federal funds for the new predicting techniques are scarce — and are even being cut back because of the general federal budget tightening.

The main instrument to be used in these new predictions will be a new satellite, GEOS, scheduled for launch next year. It will look down on "Tornado Alley" in the Midwest with eyes that see in the day — and night. Pearson hopes this will help spot the extra-violent storms in the spring and early summer.

In July and August, however, the areas where these storms develop are usually covered with high cirrus clouds that will block the satellite's view.

Both tornadoes and thunderstorms form when hotter, lighter air lying near the ground surges upward and mixes with the high-altitude cooler air, precipitating clouds, rain and hail. If conditions are right and the mixing is violent enough, a tornado will form.

Using weather stations, weather balloons, the latest satellites, and conventional radar, storm watchers are keeping an eye out for these unstable atmospheric conditions while also tracking developing storm areas. With current techniques they can predict that a severe storm will form about six hours in advance somewhere within an area of 25,000 square miles.

With ordinary radar they can usually recognize a tornado when it does form — but cannot determine its destructive capabilities because ordinary radar reflects off the storm and tells little about what is going on inside.

This summer, however, two projects — both under the wing of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) — are studying a newer type of radar. It can look into the core of a storm and measure its wind speeds directly.

Doppler radar, as the new radar is called, makes use of the fact that radar waves change frequency when they bounce off moving rain drops or particles. From this change the velocity of the particles and hence of the wind can be calculated. With two such radar instruments scientists can determine the three-dimensional wind pattern of a tornado or thunderstorm.

In addition, scientists hope to obtain detailed information about the internal processes within severe storms, particularly tornados. Only four tornados have come close enough to a weather station in the last eight years to affect instruments, and each time they were destroyed.

"Tornados are very capricious," commented Dr. Edwin Kessler, director of the National Severe Storms Laboratory in Norman, Oklahoma, one of the groups testing out doppler radar.

This radar, termed a major breakthrough by some and a method with a great deal of promise by others, is at present too expensive to be developed into a grid of weather stations — even if it is highly successful.

Rather, scientists see it as a research tool that will enable them to better understand a storm's dynamics and the conditions that cause them to form.

The 'Mayonnaise Widow' Of Davis Is Identified

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The "mayonnaise" widow who was fired for allegedly being too slow with sauerkraut and too generous with egg salad yesterday identified herself.

She is Doris Judd, 59, the mother of five married children.

Mrs. Judd, who was employed for seven years as a food services employe at the Davis campus of the University of California, termed her dismissal an "injustice."

Labeling the charges against her as "ridiculous," she said in an interview, "They were so minor it really made me mad."

Mrs. Judd agreed to make her name public in hopes it would prevent similar future cases and encourage workers to "be more aware of their rights."

Mrs. Judd said she was "bowled over by the headlines" about her case. She was vacationing at the time it was first reported in the news media.

She said her problems began when she was transferred to the sandwich department.

"In essence I was supposed to get the sandwiches out in two hours less time than had previously been done," she declared.

The charges against her included the following:

Failing to spread mayonnaise all the way to the edge of the sandwich bread.

Taking an average of 1.3 minutes each to put sauerkraut on 50 hot dogs and wrap them.

Mixing too much egg salad spread on one day and forgetting to make two submarine sandwiches for workers at the Primate Center for three days in a row.

"I can refute every one of them," said Mrs. Judd, whose work record was unblemished prior to her dismissal.

Tornado Forecasts Increasingly Good; Many Puzzles Remain

By DAVID F. SALISBURY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BOSTON — Tornados and other severe storms in the United States are no longer traveling unchallenged. They are being predicted more and more often, scientists say.

Although scientists still have only a hazy idea of the detailed anatomy of violent storms, they are using satellites, reinforced with a "break-through" in radar detection and computer modeling, to tackle predictions with vigor. They hope to further refine their forecasting skills and increase their understanding of the "whys" of these destructive atmospheric events.

At present the meteorologists at the National Severe Storms Forecasting Center in Kansas City, Mo., say they are able to predict three out of every four large-sized tornadoes. This year they have finally achieved a long-time objective: the average of only one casualty for every 10 tornadoes. This is contrasted to the average of one death per tornado in the 1940's.

"One immediate goal now," says the center's director, Allen D. Pearson, "is not just to say there's a tornado, but to be able to actually predict its severity."

Ironically, the track record of the present storm-warning network has been so good that federal funds for the new predicting techniques are scarce — and are even being cut back because of the general federal budget tightening.

The main instrument to be used in these new predictions will be a new satellite, GEOS, scheduled for launch next year. It will look down on "Tornado Alley" in the Midwest with eyes that see in the day — and night. Pearson hopes this will help spot the extra-violent storms in the spring and early summer.

In July and August, however, the areas where these storms develop are usually covered with high cirrus clouds that will block the satellite's view.

Both tornadoes and thunderstorms form when hotter, lighter air lying near the ground surges upward and mixes with the high-altitude cooler air, precipitating clouds, rain and hail. If conditions are right and the mixing is violent enough, a tornado will form.

Using weather stations, weather balloons, the latest satellites, and conventional radar, storm watchers are keeping an eye out for these unstable atmospheric conditions while also tracking developing storm areas. With current techniques they can predict that a severe storm will form about six hours in advance somewhere within an area of 25,000 square miles.

With ordinary radar they can usually recognize a tornado when it does form — but cannot determine its destructive capabilities because ordinary radar reflects off the storm and tells little about what is going on inside.

This summer, however, two projects — both under the wing of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) — are studying a newer type of radar. It can look into the core of a storm and measure its wind speeds directly.

Doppler radar, as the new radar is called, makes use of the fact that radar waves change frequency when they bounce off moving rain drops or particles. From this change the velocity of the particles and hence of the wind can be calculated. With two such radar instruments scientists can determine the three-dimensional wind pattern of a tornado or thunderstorm.

In addition, scientists hope to obtain detailed information about the internal processes within severe storms, particularly tornados. Only four tornados have come close enough to a weather station in the last eight years to affect instruments, and each time they were destroyed.

said was "extremely interested in getting the truth out" —with the same suggestion.

"I guess it's all right for me to now say that indeed Mr. Ziegler took this matter up on the airplane with the President and a prominent lawyer did visit the President down in Key Biscayne."

Moore said he did not know what Nixon discussed with the attorney.

"All I know is that...it was a short time after that the April 30 speech resulted and all I know is that the outside counsel did talk to him, all I know is that he went to Key Biscayne."

In Nixon's April 30 speech, the President announced the firing of Dean and the resignations — accepted with deepest regret—of key White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehlrichman.

The Florida White House told reporters that Easter weekend that Nixon had "a visitor," but declined to identify him further.

Though differing sharply from Dean's earlier testimony in interpretation of conversations and events, Moore corroborated that it was Dean who went to Nixon March 21 to spell out the full facts about the scandal.

He also said Nixon had sought repeatedly in March to get the facts into the open and had rejected a suggestion that Senate Watergate Committee members be urged to subject their most recent election campaigns to FBI scrutiny.

Moore said that Dean once proposed using the FBI to investigate members of the Senate Watergate committee in hopes of uncovering information that could be used to show that the scandal was nothing new in politics.

In a meeting with Nixon designed to plot moves "to get our side of the story out," Moore said that Dean told Nixon he had worked on Capitol Hill and knew that there were few political campaigns where "something questionable or illegal" was not done.

"We were asked for ideas on where we could take the initiative, and in that meeting at one point, Mr. Dean said to the President — 'you know, one way for us to take the initiative' would be to get some responsible official to suggest that the members of the Watergate committee should submit to an FBI investigation of their past political campaigns."

"I think there might be a good idea if someone responsible would invite or suggest that the committee that was about to investigate campaign practices voluntarily offer to submit each of its most recent senatorial campaigns to a full field investigation by the FBI," Moore quoted Dean as saying.

Moore said that Nixon dismissed Dean's idea.

"The President came up with a puzzled look," Moore said, and Nixon told Dean he did not understand what he meant.

According to Moore, Dean told the President, "You know —people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones."

Moore said Nixon shook his head negatively and did not encourage Dean to continue discussing the idea.

Dean has testified that he believes Nixon knew as early as Sept. 15 of the attempt to cover-up top-level involvement in the bugging of the Democratic headquarters at the Watergate three months previously.

Engineer Pledge Suggestion Made

BERKELEY (UPI) — A University of California engineering professor has proposed that engineers make a pledge similar to the Hippocratic Oath of doctors because of the effect of technological developments on human lives.

Prof. Charles Susskind, an engineering educator at UC Berkeley, said in a new book released yesterday that engineers increasingly resemble physicians in their concern for the human condition.

But in the book, "Understanding Technology," Susskind said that the engineering code of ethics still deals mainly with business relations.

Sanity Report Asked By Court

A sanitary report was ordered yesterday for Stephen Eugene Arnold, 22, accused of setting fire to a house in Bayside Acres just outside the San Rafael city limits.

Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court ordered the report and told Arnold to appear in court Aug. 2 when a date for a preliminary hearing will be set.

Dog That Bit Boy Is Sought

A San Rafael boy may have to undergo painful rabies shots if the dog that bit him is not located soon.

Tony Cervelli, 8, of 740 Pine Lane, was bitten Wednesday between 4:30 and 5 p.m. in front of Scotty's Market on Del Ganado Road.

Persons having any information about a collie or sheltie-type dog that might have been in the area are asked to call the rabies control office at the Marin Civic Center.

Marin's Crisis Calls Increase

Crisis calls have increased ten-fold at the Marin Suicide Prevention Center since its beginning two years ago, according to Dr. Richard Reubin, executive director of the center.

Dr. Reubin said that as the center begins its third year of operation, the number of calls has increased to 500 per month as opposed to the 50 received each montn two years ago.

Because of the increase in volume, the center has installed a third telephone line and is planning to construct sound-insulated booths to allow several simultaneous conversations in one room.

Dr. Reubin also reported that 23 suicides occurred in Marin this year through April 15 as opposed to 16 during that period last year.

Witnesses See Huge Turnout

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Jehovah's Witnesses officials predict more than 50,000 persons will attend Sunday's final meeting of the group's five-day International Assembly.

More than 47,000 attended yesterday's session, although Assembly leaders originally forecast a peak of 35,000.

Elder Lee C. Hurley of Oakland said yesterday the Witnesses determined 90 years ago that the "last days of Man's rule on Earth" would start in 1914.

Hurley said a careful study of the scriptures led to that date.

Crawling Race Record Broken

Andrew J. Roe IV broke the all-time record by racing the 30-foot course in 20 seconds, topping last year's winner, Derek Scudieros of New York, whose record stood at 22 seconds.

Baseball Game Outing Slated

Seating will be on the lower deck. Registration must be made by Aug. 1. at either the Rohnert Park city office building or at the teen center at Rohnert Park Junior High School. Nonresidents may participate.

Unattended youngsters under the age of 18 must also submit a parent permission form.

Sanitary Board Boosts Payroll

The Tiburon Sanitary District board last night granted a 6 per cent raise to district employees.

The hike is expected to cost the district about $6,000 but will not affect the tax rate of 76 cents per $100 assessed valuation because of an increase in assessed valuation in the district, according to Morrill R. Woodward, board secretary.

The raise affects the district's six operating personnel. The district manager and a consultant were not included in the raise, Woodward said.

B52 Withdrawal From Asia Starts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States today started pulling it's big B52 bombers out of Southeast Asia, preparing to end the last traces of American involvement in the long Indochina war.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said 15 of the B52's — all based on Guam in the Pacific — would be bought home during the weekend. He said that would leave "roughly 200" in Southeast Asia.

Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, went to the hospital today to discuss some business matters with the President, Ziegler said. Mrs. Nixon and the President's daughter, Julie, were expected to visit during the afternoon.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said earlier in the day that he hoped to meet with Nixon some time next week on the Watergate hearings.

Ziegler said Nixon still was in excellent spirits and Tkach predicted he would be back at his office in about a week.

Tkach told reporters Nixon's illness could not necessarily be attributed to overwork or overconcern. The unfolding of the Watergate scandal in recent months has presented the President with the greatest crisis of his career.

Nixon observed his 60th birthday Jan. 9. He had his last physical examination Dec. 20, 1972, and at that time Tkach pronounced him in extraordinarily good health. The doctor said his only complaint was that Nixon did not get enough exercise.

The President has been fond of pointing out that he has not missed a day of work in office. Tkach, in briefing newsmen, noted Nixon in the past "has had good health."

"I would suspect and I would estimate that he would not be in the hospital over a week, and I think his recovery should be rapid," the doctor said.

Actor Jumps Dope Case Bail

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Michael De Anda, 52, a former member of the mayor's blue ribbon committee on narcotics, has jumped bail after conviction on heroin possession charges, police said yesterday.

De Anda was convicted June 14. Police said they had found five pounds of heroin worth $2 million in his Long Beach apartment. His bail pending sentencing was raised from $25,000 to $50,000 and he was given one day to raise the money, authorities said, but has since disappeared.

De Anda appeared in the movies "Ship of Fools" and "Twilight of Honor." From 1969 to 1971 he was on the mayor's narcotics advisory committee.

Heritage Library Proposal Is Made

Although trustees favored the idea outlined by Lucretia Little, City Historian and former city clerk, they questioned the legality of a private collection in the public library building, according to Carol Asch, board chairman.

Trustees suggested that Mrs. Little form a heritage library council to draw up a written proposal to be presented at a later board meeting.

Budget May Drop The Tax Rate

The Larkspur-Corte Madera School District board last night approved a publication budget of $2,211,382 for the coming year, which may allow a tax rate decrease.

Milton S. Cohen, district superintendent, said the budget is an increase of $36,000 over this year, but that the tax rate will decline by about 10 to 15 cents from this year's level of $3.70 per $100 assessed valuation.

The board will meet Aug. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the administration office to adopt the budget. The publication budget is the tentative public notice of the proposed spending program for the coming year.

The Larkspur-Corte Madera School District board also:

CONTRACTS — Approved agreements with four agencies for services next year, including the Marin Museum of Science ($373), KQED-TV ($370), Patchett's Corporation for bus transportation ($18,538) and the County Superintendent of Schools Office for data processing ($1,200).

ENRICHMENT — Agreed with the College of Marin and the county schools office on a program for educational enrichment of extra-capable students, at a cost of $400.

PERSONNEL — Granted maternity leaves of absence for three teachers, Amy Hoagg, Louise Kepple and Dianne Uchica, for the next school year; hired two new teachers, Barbara Hulett and Donald Rehlaender for 1973-74.

Waldie Opposes Mansion Plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — U.S. Congressman Jerome Waldie says the new governor's mansion should be constructed in downtown Sacramento and not at its proposed suburban Carmichael site overlooking the American River.

"Let's not build a castle on a privately donated dukedom moated by the miles" between it and the downtown Capitol, the Democrat said in a letter to Patrick Melarkey, a member of the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors.

The letter was released to the press yesterday.

New Air Control System Is Shown

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A new air traffic control system, designed to relieve some of the burden on flight controllers, was exhibited yesterday at Los Angeles International Airport.

Using a computer which automatically produces altitude and speed date on commercial aircraft, the system reduces the amount of talk needed between the controller and pilot.

Federal Aviation Administration officials called the system the most advanced electronic control device currently in use at the nation's airports.

White House papers which the senator said today he considers necessary to help the panel "get at the bottom" of the truth about Watergate.

The President has refused to turn over the documents, claiming such action would violate his duty to uphold the doctrine of separation of powers and jeopardize the tradition of confidentiality in the White House.

During an interview on the NBC-TV Today Show, Ervin said he would continue to insist the documents be made available and hoped Nixon would alter his view and cooperate with the committee. Dismissing a White House insistence that the papers would not be provided, Ervin said:

"Well, that was a statement by the press agent at the White House. The press agents of the White House have made many statements which they themselves have later declared to be inoperative, whatever that word means.

"The President took the position originally under his claim of executive privilege that no aide or former aide of the White House could be compelled to appear before the committee. He changed his mind on that and I hope that ... the President will become wiser when I talk to him tomorrow than his press secretary said he was yesterday."

Amtrak Battles Kansas Dry Law

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Amtrak, seeking to serve mixed drinks on its trains as they go through Kansas, is taking the state's attorney general Vern Miller to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The railroad said yesterday it filed a notice with U.S. District Court that an appeal of a lower court ruling will be submitted to the Supreme Court within a few days.

A three-judge federal court ruled in Miller's favor a month ago. The judges said the state had the authority to bar liquor service on trains if such service violated the Kansas Constitution.

Regents Approve Faculty Raises

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pay raises of 5.4 per cent for faculty members were approved yesterday by the committee on finance of the University of California regents.

The salary boosts, already okayed by the state Legislature within President Nixon's wage-price guidelines, are assured of passage when the full board of regents meets Friday.

Charles Hitch, chancellor at UC Berkeley, said the raises would bring salaries nearly equal with eight comparable universities but fringe benefits would continue to lag by nearly 5 per cent.

Under the proposal during a nine-month year, professors would be paid from $21,500 to $33,700; associate professors from $15,200 to $20,300 and assistant professors from $12,000 to $15,000.

Art And Photo Competition Set

Petaluma's Old Adobe Association will sponsor an art and photography competition in conjunction with its fiesta to be held Aug. 19 at the Petaluma Adobe, once the home of Gen. Mariano Vallejo and now a national historical site.

Art and photography entries must relate to the adobe. Art work — in any media — should be no larger than 24 by 26 inches; color photographs, five by seven inches; and black and white photos, eight by ten inches.

All entries must be submitted by Aug. 15 at North Bay Savings and Loan Association, 17 Petaluma Boulevard North, or Fireside Books at the Petaluma Plaza. First prize is a $25 award; second, $15; and third, $10. Merchandise awards will also be presented.

of publicity" and much erroneous information has been made public in the news media. Such information, he said, might come out while jurors are being questioned and influence other prospective jurors.

After hearing arguments on combining the two trial phases — a move reportedly unprecedented in California jurisprudence except for a murder trial now underway in Santa Cruz County — Broderick, Box and Bales retired to the judge's chambers to discuss questions to be put to the pool of about 75 prospective jurors.

The professor, whose tests at Michigan State University are the basis for the claim that voiceprints can identify criminals, told the Independent-Journal later that properly hearing a message on a tape "is crucial." The voice expert also agreed that hearing is more subjective than just comparing the patterns a voice makes on a graph, a process which amounts to comparing shapes.

A voiceprint, scientifically known as a spectrogram, is prepared by converting the sounds on a recording into electrical energy, which then feeds into a stylus. The stylus burns the voice patterns into a graph which measures frequency versus time. The result is a series of shaded areas formed into patterns, which Tosi claimed are unique for each person.

Petaluma Area Dog Kennel Plea Denied

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday rejected plans for a dog kennel in rural Petaluma.

Robert and Jean Ross had requested a use permit for a boarding and breeding kennel to house a maximum of 100 dogs at 3690 Roblar Road. The permit was denied when area residents complained the Kennel would disrupt the quiet neighborhood.

OBITUARIES

Manuel J. Azevedo Dies At 77

Manuel J. Azevedo of Mill Valley, a retired warehouseman and resident of Marin County for 60 years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 77.

Azevedo, of 17 Alta Vista Avenue, was employed by a Corte Madera luggage firm before retiring seven years ago.

said was "extremely interested in getting the truth out" —with the same suggestion.

"I guess it's all right for me to now say that indeed Mr. Ziegler took this matter up on the airplane with the President and a prominent lawyer did visit the President down in Key Biscayne."

Moore said he did not know what Nixon discussed with the attorney.

"All I know is that...it was a short time after that the April 30 speech resulted and all I know is that the outside counsel did talk to him, all I know is that he went to Key Biscayne."

In Nixon's April 30 speech, the President announced the firing of Dean and the resignations — accepted with deepest regret—of key White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehlrichman.

The Florida White House told reporters that Easter weekend that Nixon had "a visitor," but declined to identify him further.

Though differing sharply from Dean's earlier testimony in interpretation of conversations and events, Moore corroborated that it was Dean who went to Nixon March 21 to spell out the full facts about the scandal.

He also said Nixon had sought repeatedly in March to get the facts into the open and had rejected a suggestion that Senate Watergate Committee members be urged to subject their most recent election campaigns to FBI scrutiny.

Moore said that Dean once proposed using the FBI to investigate members of the Senate Watergate committee in hopes of uncovering information that could be used to show that the scandal was nothing new in politics.

In a meeting with Nixon designed to plot moves "to get our side of the story out," Moore said that Dean told Nixon he had worked on Capitol Hill and knew that there were few political campaigns where "something questionable or illegal" was not done.

"We were asked for ideas on where we could take the initiative, and in that meeting at one point, Mr. Dean said to the President — 'you know, one way for us to take the initiative' would be to get some responsible official to suggest that the members of the Watergate committee should submit to an FBI investigation of their past political campaigns."

"I think there might be a good idea if someone responsible would invite or suggest that the committee that was about to investigate campaign practices voluntarily offer to submit each of its most recent senatorial campaigns to a full field investigation by the FBI," Moore quoted Dean as saying.

Moore said that Nixon dismissed Dean's idea.

"The President came up with a puzzled look," Moore said, and Nixon told Dean he did not understand what he meant.

According to Moore, Dean told the President, "You know —people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones."

Moore said Nixon shook his head negatively and did not encourage Dean to continue discussing the idea.

Dean has testified that he believes Nixon knew as early as Sept. 15 of the attempt to cover-up top-level involvement in the bugging of the Democratic headquarters at the Watergate three months previously.

Engineer Pledge Suggestion Made

BERKELEY (UPI) — A University of California engineering professor has proposed that engineers make a pledge similar to the Hippocratic Oath of doctors because of the effect of technological developments on human lives.

Prof. Charles Susskind, an engineering educator at UC Berkeley, said in a new book released yesterday that engineers increasingly resemble physicians in their concern for the human condition.

But in the book, "Understanding Technology," Susskind said that the engineering code of ethics still deals mainly with business relations.

Sanity Report Asked By Court

A sanitary report was ordered yesterday for Stephen Eugene Arnold, 22, accused of setting fire to a house in Bayside Acres just outside the San Rafael city limits.

Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court ordered the report and told Arnold to appear in court Aug. 2 when a date for a preliminary hearing will be set.

Dog That Bit Boy Is Sought

A San Rafael boy may have to undergo painful rabies shots if the dog that bit him is not located soon.

Tony Cervelli, 8, of 740 Pine Lane, was bitten Wednesday between 4:30 and 5 p.m. in front of Scotty's Market on Del Ganado Road.

Persons having any information about a collie or sheltie-type dog that might have been in the area are asked to call the rabies control office at the Marin Civic Center.

Marin's Crisis Calls Increase

Crisis calls have increased ten-fold at the Marin Suicide Prevention Center since its beginning two years ago, according to Dr. Richard Reubin, executive director of the center.

Dr. Reubin said that as the center begins its third year of operation, the number of calls has increased to 500 per month as opposed to the 50 received each montn two years ago.

Because of the increase in volume, the center has installed a third telephone line and is planning to construct sound-insulated booths to allow several simultaneous conversations in one room.

Dr. Reubin also reported that 23 suicides occurred in Marin this year through April 15 as opposed to 16 during that period last year.

Witnesses See Huge Turnout

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Jehovah's Witnesses officials predict more than 50,000 persons will attend Sunday's final meeting of the group's five-day International Assembly.

More than 47,000 attended yesterday's session, although Assembly leaders originally forecast a peak of 35,000.

Elder Lee C. Hurley of Oakland said yesterday the Witnesses determined 90 years ago that the "last days of Man's rule on Earth" would start in 1914.

Hurley said a careful study of the scriptures led to that date.

Crawling Race Record Broken

Andrew J. Roe IV broke the all-time record by racing the 30-foot course in 20 seconds, topping last year's winner, Derek Scudieros of New York, whose record stood at 22 seconds.

Baseball Game Outing Slated

Seating will be on the lower deck. Registration must be made by Aug. 1, at either the Rohnert Park city office building or at the teen center at Rohnert Park Junior High School. Nonresidents may participate.

Unattended youngsters under the age of 18 must also submit a parent permission form.

Sanitary Board Boosts Payroll

The Tiburon Sanitary District board last night granted a 6 per cent raise to district employees.

The hike is expected to cost the district about $6,000 but will not affect the tax rate of 76 cents per $100 assessed valuation because of an increase in assessed valuation in the district, according to Morrill R. Woodward, board secretary.

The raise affects the district's six operating personnel. The district manager and a consultant were not included in the raise, Woodward said.

B52 Withdrawal From Asia Starts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States today started pulling it's big B52 bombers out of Southeast Asia, preparing to end the last traces of American involvement in the long Indochina war.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said 15 of the B52's — all based on Guam in the Pacific — would be bought home during the weekend. He said that would leave "roughly 200" in Southeast Asia.

"chest discomfiture" and had only orange juice and fruit for breakfast.

Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Nixon's chief of staff, went to the hospital today to discuss some business matters with the President, Ziegler said. Mrs. Nixon and the President's daughter, Julie, were expected to visit during the afternoon.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said earlier in the day that he hoped to meet with Nixon some time next week on the Watergate hearings.

Ziegler said Nixon still was in excellent spirits and Tkach predicted he would be back at his office in about a week.

Tkach told reporters Nixon's illness could not necessarily be attributed to overwork or overconcern. The unfolding of the Watergate scandal in recent months has presented the President with the greatest crisis of his career.

Nixon observed his 60th birthday Jan. 9. He had his last physical examination Dec. 20, 1972, and at that time Tkach pronounced him in extraordinarily good health. The doctor said his only complaint was that Nixon did not get enough exercise.

The President has been fond of pointing out that he has not missed a day of work in office. Tkach, in briefing newsmen, noted Nixon in the past "has had good health."

"I would suspect and I would estimate that he would not be in the hospital over a week, and I think his recovery should be rapid," the doctor said.

Actor Jumps Dope Case Bail

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Michael De Anda, 52, a former member of the mayor's blue ribbon committee on narcotics, has jumped bail after conviction on heroin possession charges, police said yesterday.

De Anda was convicted June 14. Police said they had found five pounds of heroin worth $2 million in his Long Beach apartment. His bail pending sentencing was raised from $25,000 to $50,000 and he was given one day to raise the money, authorities said, but has since disappeared.

De Anda appeared in the movies "Ship of Fools" and "Twilight of Honor." From 1969 to 1971 he was on the mayor's narcotics advisory committee.

Heritage Library Proposal Is Made

Although trustees favored the idea outlined by Lucretia Little, City Historian and former city clerk, they questioned the legality of a private collection in the public library building, according to Carol Asch, board chairman.

Trustees suggested that Mrs. Little form a heritage library council to draw up a written proposal to be presented at a later board meeting.

Budget May Drop The Tax Rate

The Larkspur-Corte Madera School District board last night approved a publication budget of $2,211,382 for the coming year, which may allow a tax rate decrease.

Milton S. Cohen, district superintendent, said the budget is an increase of $36,000 over this year, but that the tax rate will decline by about 10 to 15 cents from this year's level of $3.70 per $100 assessed valuation.

The board will meet Aug. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the administration office to adopt the budget. The publication budget is the tentative public notice of the proposed spending program for the coming year.

The Larkspur-Corte Madera School District board also:

CONTRACTS — Approved agreements with four agencies for services next year, including the Marin Museum of Science ($373), KQED-TV ($370), Patchett's Corporation for bus transportation ($18,538) and the County Superintendent of Schools Office for data processing ($1,200).

ENRICHMENT — Agreed with the College of Marin and the county schools office on a program for educational enrichment of extra-capable students, at a cost of $400.

PERSONNEL — Granted maternity leaves of absence for three teachers, Amy Hoagg, Louise Kepple and Dianne Uchica, for the next school year; hired two new teachers, Barbara Hulett and Donald Rehlaender for 1973-74.

Waldie Opposes Mansion Plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — U.S. Congressman Jerome Waldie says the new governor's mansion should be constructed in downtown Sacramento and not at its proposed suburban Carmichael site overlooking the American River.

"Let's not build a castle on a privately donated dukedom moated by the miles" between it and the downtown Capitol, the Democrat said in a letter to Patrick Melarkey, a member of the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors.

The letter was released to the press yesterday.

New Air Control System Is Shown

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A new air traffic control system, designed to relieve some of the burden on flight controllers, was exhibited yesterday at Los Angeles International Airport.

Using a computer which automatically produces altitude and speed date on commercial aircraft, the system reduces the amount of talk needed between the controller and pilot.

Federal Aviation Administration officials called the system the most advanced electronic control device currently in use at the nation's airports.

White House papers which the senator said today he considers necessary to help the panel "get at the bottom" of the truth about Watergate.

The President has refused to turn over the documents, claiming such action would violate his duty to uphold the doctrine of separation of powers and jeopardize the tradition of confidentiality in the White House.

During an interview on the NBC-TV Today Show, Ervin said he would continue to insist the documents be made available and hoped Nixon would alter his view and cooperate with the committee. Dismissing a White House insistence that the papers would not be provided, Ervin said:

"Well, that was a statement by the press agent at the White House. The press agents of the White House have made many statements which they themselves have later declared to be inoperative, whatever that word means.

"The President took the position originally under his claim of executive privilege that no aide or former aide of the White House could be compelled to appear before the committee. He changed his mind on that and I hope that ... the President will become wiser when I talk to him tomorrow than his press secretary said he was yesterday."

Amtrak Battles Kansas Dry Law

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Amtrak, seeking to serve mixed drinks on its trains as they go through Kansas, is taking the state's attorney general Vern Miller to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The railroad said yesterday it filed a notice with U.S. District Court that an appeal of a lower court ruling will be submitted to the Supreme Court within a few days.

A three-judge federal court ruled in Miller's favor a month ago. The judges said the state had the authority to bar liquor service on trains if such service violated the Kansas Constitution.

Regents Approve Faculty Raises

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pay raises of 5.4 per cent for faculty members were approved yesterday by the committee on finance of the University of California regents.

The salary boosts, already okayed by the state Legislature within President Nixon's wage-price guidelines, are assured of passage when the full board of regents meets Friday.

Charles Hitch, chancellor at UC Berkeley, said the raises would bring salaries nearly equal with eight comparable universities but fringe benefits would continue to lag by nearly 5 per cent.

Under the proposal during a nine-month year, professors would be paid from $21,500 to $33,700; associate professors from $15,200 to $20,300 and assistant professors from $12,000 to $15,000.

Art And Photo Competition Set

Petaluma's Old Adobe Association will sponsor an art and photography competition in conjunction with its fiesta to be held Aug. 19 at the Petaluma Adobe, once the home of Gen. Mariano Vallejo and now a national historical site.

Art and photography entries must relate to the adobe. Art work — in any media — should be no larger than 24 by 26 inches; color photographs, five by seven inches; and black and white photos, eight by ten inches.

All entries must be submitted by Aug. 15 at North Bay Savings and Loan Association, 17 Petaluma Boulevard North, or Fireside Books at the Petaluma Plaza. First prize is a $25 award; second, $15; and third, $10. Merchandise awards will also be presented.

After hearing arguments on combining the two trial phases — a move reportedly unprecedented in California jurisprudence except for a murder trial now underway in Santa Cruz County — Broderick, Box and Bales retired to the judge's chambers to discuss questions to be put to the pool of about 75 prospective jurors.

The professor, whose tests at Michigan State University are the basis for the claim that voiceprints can identify criminals, told the Independent-Journal later that properly hearing a message on a tape "is crucial." The voice expert also agreed that hearing is more subjective than just comparing the patterns a voice makes on a graph, a process which amounts to comparing shapes.

A voiceprint, scientifically known as a spectrogram, is prepared by converting the sounds on a recording into electrical energy, which then feeds into a stylus. The stylus burns the voice patterns into a graph which measures frequency versus time. The result is a series of shaded areas formed into patterns, which Tosi claimed are unique for each person.

Petaluma Area Dog Kennel Plea Denied

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday rejected plans for a dog kennel in rural Petaluma.

Robert and Jean Ross had requested a use permit for a boarding and breeding kennel to house a maximum of 100 dogs at 3690 Roblar Road. The permit was denied when area residents complained the Kennel would disrupt the quiet neighborhood.

Ross Commune Argument Flares, Then Fizzles Out

By FRED STREBEIGH

The long smouldering debate over the presence of a purported branch of the communal More House in the Town of Ross sputtered to apparent conclusion last night.

The Ross Town Council was told that the present residents of the house at 16 Glenwood Avenue will be gone by the end of the month, and that any new tenants will conform to town regulations for single-family, noncommercial residence.

While town residents and council members fumed, Berkeley attorney Blackie Burak, speaking for the property's owner Dr. Anthony Boynton — who sat silently through the meeting — and for the More House organization, tried to dismiss the months of debate over the property's More House affiliation as a "moot point."

Though professing to be a legal representative for More House, he denied that 16 Glenwood Avenue had ever had More House affiliation. While admitting ignorance of Ross zoning regulations, he nonetheless contended that no law had been broken.

He did however acknowledge that the residents had distributed circulars advertising a More House fee-paid sensory awakening course taught at the house, and did not deny charges that the house had exceeded the limit of five unrelated residents at various times.

He was informed by Councilman Roy Farrington Jones that the sensory awakening course required both a business permit and a use permit for operating a school, and that the town definition of single-family precluded groups of more than five unrelated persons.

Councilman John H. Chase scolded Burak, who admitted never to have seen the house, for ignorance of the laws of Ross and failure to prepare any defense.

None of the $1,000 authorized last month for investigation of the supposed commune has been spent, the council said, because Dr. Boynton and his attorney had agreed to attend last night's meeting.

The controversy ended with neither side gaining satisfaction. Dr. Boynton agreed to return at the Aug. 9 meeting of the council to report on what will be done with the property.

The five current residents of 16 Glenwood Avenue, departed the meeting, commenting they were the last to know of the town's prolonged consternation.

"We're just family people with children — we're not connected with More House in any way," said Margaret Taylor, who said she had returned to Marin in the last month and had been seeking a quiet place to live simply.

"We're all moving out of the property; we're sick and tired of having police cars driving by. Who wants to live with hassle every day? I don't. It's absurd."

Town Council Asks Public Views On Buying $66,250 Park Parcel

The Ross Town Council last night called for the public endorsement, backed by donations of hard cash for possible purchase of what Mayor Frederick S. Allen called "the only flat piece of land left in Ross to make into a public park."

The 1.7-acre parcel has been declared surplus by the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone — which purchased the property for its ill-fated concrete-lined ditch through the town — and is being offered to Ross for $66,250.

The land is the vacant piece by the post office parking lot and is composed primarily of a portion of the old Margaret Hamer property, and also a half-acre portion which is part of Kentfield.

Councilman Roy Farrington Jones said that the asking price was inflated because the Kentfield part is zoned for apartments. He said that the current water moratorium should reduce its cost.

The council has until Aug. 19 to enter price negotiations with the county. After that date, the property would then be offered for sale to the county and next to adjoining property holders.

The council's finance committee chairman John H. Chase estimated that the park's final cost, including suggested tennis and paddle tennis facilities, would be about $100,000.

The council agreed that a mandate from the town residents and a visible show of financial support would be necessary before such an amount could be committed.

The council set a special meeting for 8 p.m. July 26 to hear residents' opinions.

The Ross Town Council Also:

RESTRICTED PARKING — Voted to restrict parking on the west side of Allen Avenue for a distance of 500 feet running southeast from Lagunitas Road, in order to assure access for fire vehicles.

POSTPONED RESTRICTIONS — Postponed until Aug. 9 consideration of restricted parking on Woodside Way, Wellington Avenue, Bridge Road, and Chestnut Avenue because residents argued that partial restrictions would only increase congestion in unrestricted areas.

GROUNDS CONTRACT — Postponed until the council's July 26 meeting awarding bid for maintenance of town hall grounds.

SUBDIVISIONS — Approved a subdivision and zoning variance for Katherine O. Kirk for her property at Glenwood and Fernhill Avenues. Tentatively approved subdivision by Tracy E. Van Voorhees of his property at 1 Upper Road; final approval continued to July 26 meeting.

CLOSED SESSION — Met briefly in closed session to discuss continuing flood control litigation.

HILLSIDE LOT — Requested further analysis of possible environmental impact and engineering problems before considering approval of house construction on a steep hillside lot at Southwood Avenue and Ivy Drive belonging to Roger and Peggy Dillan; continued to Aug. 9.

VARIANCES — Approved a variance allowing 20th Century Homes to build a house on remaining portion of the Hamer property on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard with only 20 foot rear yard setback. Approved a variance, subject to reconsideration in one year, allowing newly built trellis on property of R. Todd Cary at 2 Winding Way to remain nine feet from his property line, assuming he completes planned landscaping and does not use the trellis for a carport or living area.

RECREATION DONATION — Granted a request from the Ross Recreation Advisory Board for $1,500 for 1973-74. Also approved the board's soccer schedule for the town's 28 youth teams.

SALARIES — Gave final approval to salary increases for town employees voted at its June 14 meeting.

AUDIT — Requested finance committee chairman Chase to have an annual audit made of town finances.

BUDGET — Postponed until its next regular meeting Aug. 9 discussion of the town budget.

Forger Said Heading For This Area

A check forger who has been active recently in central valley cities from Fresno to Modesto may be headed for Marin.

State Department of Justice officials have warned police department, in Marin and other Northern California counties, that the man, known variously as Steve W. West and Lloyd Wayne Allen, has been known to use two distinct gambits.

Posing as an electric company or lightning rod inspector, he conducts bogus inspections for which he charges a nominal fee, payable to him by check. He then alters the value of the check and cashes it for as much as several thousand dollars.

He also has successfully used the technique known as "check kiting": opening numerous new accounts in a single city using forged checks, and then quickly cashing checks written on the new accounts before the forged checks are bounced.

Warrants are out for his arrest in eight states from Texas to Idaho, according to the justice department.

Ross Commune Argument Flares, Then Fizzles Out

By FRED STREBEIGH

The long smouldering debate over the presence of a purported branch of the communal More House in the Town of Ross sputtered to apparent conclusion last night.

The Ross Town Council was told that the present residents of the house at 16 Glenwood Avenue will be gone by the end of the month, and that any new tenants will conform to town regulations for single-family, noncommercial residence.

While town residents and council members fumed, Berkeley attorney Blackie Burak, speaking for the property's owner Dr. Anthony Boynton — who sat silently through the meeting — and for the More House organization, tried to dismiss the months of debate over the property's More House affiliation as a "moot point."

Though professing to be a legal representative for More House, he denied that 16 Glenwood Avenue had ever had More House affiliation. While admitting ignorance of Ross zoning regulations, he nonetheless contended that no law had been broken.

He did however acknowledge that the residents had distributed circulars advertising a More House fee-paid sensory awakening course taught at the house, and did not deny charges that the house had exceeded the limit of five unrelated residents at various times.

He was informed by Councilman Roy Farrington Jones that the sensory awakening course required both a business permit and a use permit for operating a school, and that the town definition of single-family precluded groups of more than five unrelated persons.

Councilman John H. Chase scolded Burak, who admitted never to have seen the house, for ignorance of the laws of Ross and failure to prepare any defense.

None of the $1,000 authorized last month for investigation of the supposed commune has been spent, the council said, because Dr. Boynton and his attorney had agreed to attend last night's meeting.

IT DOESN'T HURT MUCH

Tiny Marin Schools Face Quake Deadline

Marin County's three one-room schools must be inspected for earthquake standards by June 30, 1975 or be closed, a state official last night told the trustees, meeting at Laguna School.

Trustees of Laguna and Lincoln schools, as well as residents attended the meeting. Union school trustees had been invited, but did not attend, said Joseph Amato, directory of business and advisory service of the Marin County schools office who arranged the meeting.

Dr. William Knife of the state Department of Education told trustees the schools must be inspected by a structural engineer or an architect, and if the old wooden structures prove unsafe by state standards, they must be brought up to standard by June 30, 1975, or be closed.

The trustees may try to finance any rebuilding or remodeling entirely out of local funds or they may seek state aid, he said. The districts can levy a tax of 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation to build and doing so would make them eligible for a state loan.

The district may pay part or all of the money back to the state. Any part not repaid in 30 years is wiped off the books, Knife told the trustees, according to Amato.

Donald J. Moreda, clerk of the Laguna board, today said, "The building showed in 1906 that it could take it, so we're in no hurry. Besides it might pass the inspection."

Charles Spaletta, president of the Lincoln board, said that Lincoln School might pass because it was partially remodeled five years ago after a fire. He said that his board probably will hold a special meeting sometime next week to determine what to do.

Amato said Union School had been inspected casually, but had not had a detailed study by an engineer.

"These little schools are very important to the residents of their districts because they become the center of community life," Amato said.

Laguna has 17 students; Lincoln, 12 and Union 9.

Principal Promoted By Board

A 38-year-old San Rafael man was appointed assistant superintendent of the San Anselmo School District last night.

Walter C. Dolan, principal of Yolansdale and Isabel Cook schools last year, will assume the duties of former administrative assistant William H. Crocker, who left last month for a higher paying schools post in Riverside County, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott.

Dolan attended Hartnell College and San Jose State College, receiving a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Humboldt State College and masters honors in educational administration from San Francisco State College.

He has taught in the Dixie School District, and served as principal of Sleepy Hollow School for four years.

Elliott said Dolan will assume administrative duties, as well as retain his post as head of Isabel Cook School.

Forester Claims No Timber Shortage

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — An Oregon forester yesterday called talk of a timber shortage "propaganda" and said the present U.S. timber resources are enough to build homes for all citizens in America, Soviet Union, Japan and Brazil.

W. D. Hagenstein, executive vice president of Industrial Forestry Association, in his speech to a Rotary Club here, pointed to improved fire prevention and reforestation for his optimistic views.

San Anselmo Trustees Approve 5 Pct. Pay Hike For All Hands

The San Anselmo School District board last night approved a 5 per cent pay increase for all district employees, a move that cost $65,000.

The action will hike the district's estimated spending program next year by only $34,000 to $2,154,170, since the budget already includes funds for a 3 per cent pay raise, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott.

Elliott said 133 district employees, including himself, are effected by the boost. Daily pay of substitute teachers was hiked from $27.50 to $30, he said.

Elliott said he expects the district's current tax rate of $3.355 to remain "about the same," and said district trustees will consider adoption of the 1973-74 publication budget at 8 p.m. next Thursday in Red Hill School.

The San Anselmo School District board also:

OATH — Administered the oath of officer to recently-elected trustees Millard R. Morgen, Oliver L. Harle and Judith L. Vallas.

ORGANIZE — Elected trustee Eugene E. Jacks board president, John Hulpke board clerk, Morgen as district representative on the county Committee for School District Organization, and Harle as representative on the county school boards association.

MEET — Said the board will meet on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month, as it has done in the past.

PRESENTATIONS — Commended former board member Franklin C. Latcham and Mary T. Olive, and retiring custodian John Machado.

PARKS — After an interview in closed session, recommended that Virginia Schweiger, a former teacher, be appointed to the city park and recreation commission as district representative.

POST — Said that former personnel fiscal secretary Faye Settlemyre will become business supervisor, a new post.

LOAN — Requested a $900,000 loan from the county to pay for district payroll expenses until taxes are collected, a routine request.

CHILD CENTER — Said the Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center may be able to continue using the kindergarten room at Yolansdale School, and approved a $5,000 tab for a portable classroom, perhaps to be located at Yolansdale to ease crowded conditions. The board said it will make a decision on the matter at 8 p.m. next Thursday.

ISABEL COOK — Told Elliott to draft papers for the leasing of Isable Cook School, which is being phased out, and said the city might lease the facility.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjoruned to 8 p.m. July 19.

IT DOESN'T HURT MUCH

Tiny Marin Schools Face Quake Deadline

Marin County's three one-room schools must be inspected for earthquake standards by June 30, 1975 or be closed, a state official last night told the trustees, meeting at Laguna School.

Trustees of Laguna and Lincoln schools, as well as residents attended the meeting. Union school trustees had been invited, but did not attend, said Joseph Amato, directory of business and advisory service of the Marin County schools office who arranged the meeting.

Dr. William Knife of the state Department of Education told trustees the schools must be inspected by a structural engineer or an architect, and if the old wooden structures prove unsafe by state standards, they must be brought up to standard by June 30, 1975, or be closed.

The trustees may try to finance any rebuilding or remodeling entirely out of local funds or they may seek state aid, he said. The districts can levy a tax of 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation to build and doing so would make them eligible for a state loan.

The district may pay part or all of the money back to the state. Any part not repaid in 30 years is wiped off the books, Knife told the trustees, according to Amato.

Donald J. Moreda, clerk of the Laguna board, today said, "The building showed in 1906 that it could take it, so we're in no hurry. Besides it might pass the inspection."

Charles Spaletta, president of the Lincoln board, said that Lincoln School might pass because it was partially remodeled five years ago after a fire. He said that his board probably will hold a special meeting sometime next week to determine what to do.

Amato said Union School had been inspected casually, but had not had a detailed study by an engineer.

"These little schools are very important to the residents of their districts because they become the center of community life," Amato said.

Laguna has 17 students; Lincoln, 12 and Union 9.

Principal Promoted By Board

A 38-year-old San Rafael man was appointed assistant superintendent of the San Anselmo School District last night.

Walter C. Dolan, principal of Yolansdale and Isabel Cook schools last year, will assume the duties of former administrative assistant William H. Crocker, who left last month for a higher paying schools post in Riverside County, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott.

Dolan attended Hartnell College and San Jose State College, receiving a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Humboldt State College and masters honors in educational administration from San Francisco State College.

He has taught in the Dixie School District, and served as principal of Sleepy Hollow School for four years.

Elliott said Dolan will assume administrative duties, as well as retain his post as head of Isabel Cook School.

Forester Claims No Timber Shortage

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — An Oregon forester yesterday called talk of a timber shortage "propaganda" and said the present U.S. timber resources are enough to build homes for all citizens in America, Soviet Union, Japan and Brazil.

W. D. Hagenstein, executive vice president of Industrial Forestry Association, in his speech to a Rotary Club here, pointed to improved fire prevention and reforestation for his optimistic views.

San Anselmo Trustees Approve 5 Pct. Pay Hike For All Hands

The San Anselmo School District board last night approved a 5 per cent pay increase for all district employees, a move that cost $65,000.

The action will hike the district's estimated spending program next year by only $34,000 to $2,154,170, since the budget already includes funds for a 3 per cent pay raise, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott.

Elliott said 133 district employees, including himself, are effected by the boost. Daily pay of substitute teachers was hiked from $27.50 to $30, he said.

Elliott said he expects the district's current tax rate of $3.355 to remain "about the same," and said district trustees will consider adoption of the 1973-74 publication budget at 8 p.m. next Thursday in Red Hill School.

The San Anselmo School District board also:

ORGANIZE — Elected trustee Eugene E. Jacks board president, John Hulpke board clerk, Morgen as district representative on the county Committee for School District Organization, and Harle as representative on the county school boards association.

MEET — Said the board will meet on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month, as it has done in the past.

PRESENTATIONS — Commended former board member Franklin C. Latcham and Mary T. Olive, and retiring custodian John Machado.

PARKS — After an interview in closed session, recommended that Virginia Schweiger, a former teacher, be appointed to the city park and recreation commission as district representative.

POST — Said that former personnel fiscal secretary Faye Settlemyre will become business supervisor, a new post.

LOAN — Requested a $900,000 loan from the county to pay for district payroll expenses until taxes are collected, a routine request.

CHILD CENTER — Said the Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center may be able to continue using the kindergarten room at Yolansdale School, and approved a $5,000 tab for a portable classroom, perhaps to be located at Yolansdale to ease crowded conditions. The board said it will make a decision on the matter at 8 p.m. next Thursday.

ISABEL COOK — Told Elliott to draft papers for the leasing of Isable Cook School, which is being phased out, and said the city might lease the facility.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjoruned to 8 p.m. July 19.

Salt Lake City, Utah, is nine miles long and eight miles wide.

SELF-IMPOSED PRISON TERM

Rather than stand trial for burglary in May 1971, William W. Hughs, 28, jumped bail and sentenced himself to solitary confinement in the Leesburg United Methodist Church in Leesburg, N.J. For more than two years, Hughs stayed alone in the belfry (left) during the day, emerging only at night.

French Test Blast Expected Soon

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

France maintained silence again today on its plans for carrying out nuclear tests in the South Pacific, but opponents leading international protests to prevent them said the first explosion could come at any time.

"The secret is well guarded," the Paris newspaper L'Aurore said in reference to reports the tests might start Saturday.

However, radio operators aboard a protest ship from Sausalito, Calif., sailing near the test site said the weather was not favorable for testing. They did not elaborate.

French newspapers said today South Pacific islanders do not appear upset over the forthcoming series of French nuclear tests although Australia, New Zealand, Japan and other countries bitterly oppose them. They fear fallout will endanger their populations.

The test site is the Muroroa atoll, about 750 miles from Tahiti. France has used the site since 1966 for its atmospheric tests, but only in the last year has widespread opposition grown.

France established a prohibited area around the atoll Tuesday, warning ships and aircraft to stay out of the area. Traditionally, the warning comes only a short time before testing begins.

French authorities did not indicate what kind of device they intend to test, but some military sources said it was a fission trigger.

In Wellington, the capital of New Zealand, officials said the country's most modern frigate is ready to sail for the French nuclear test zone as part of a protest campaign.

The frigate Canterbury will replace its sister frigate Otago on patrol inside the 72-mile security zone France established.

The Otago, which is carrying a cabinet minister who was chosen by lot, sailed about 120 miles west of Mururoa today. A New Zealand government spokesman said the ship will refuel at sea and return to the security zone tonight.

Meanwhile, a radio operator aboard a yacht sailing inside the security zone said today the vessel was 50 miles off Muruoa. The protest ship from Sausalito, named Fri, is one of several vessels that will sail in international waters off the test site as part of the protest.

Tricia Is Booed By Game Crowd

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the crowd at a Yankees' baseball game found out the president's daughter was in the crowd last night, they booed.

Tricia Nixon Cox, President Nixon's older daughter, and her husband, Edward, were among the crowd of 15,323 at a New York Yankees-Kansas City Royals ball game.

Mrs. Cox received a phone call early in the game informing her of her father's hospitalization but she remained for the entire contest.

More Arrests In White House

Two more protesters were arrested yesterday when they knelt to pray during a tour of the executive mansion.

The Secret Service said only one of the demonstrators would identify himself. He gave his name as Edward Guinan, 37, a Roman Catholic priest from Washington, D.C.

The 18 demonstrators have been charged with unlawful entry after they refused to leave the mansion.

Lightning, Fires Peril Big Sheep

TULELAKE (UPI) — One major lightning-sparked brush fire was declared controlled today and another contained, but 18 of 20 rare California bighorn sheep penned in the rugged area were still unaccounted for.

Both fires erupted near the Lava Beds National Monument Wednesday night as thunderstorms swept across the northern portion of the state. Scores of other fires broke out in a six-county area, with a few of them still burning.

The largest of the fires consumed 650 acres before being controlled after a nightlong battle. It began in an experimental, 1,100-acre pen containing 20 California bighorns.

National Forest Service spokesman Leon Fischer said the two adult rams in the herd had been sighted, but none of the remaining ewes and lambs was accounted for. Ten of the lambs were less than 6-weeks-old.

"Of course, there is no reason to believe they are in any trouble," Fischer added.

Fischer said control of the blaze was expected today "if the weather will just hold out for a few hours."

Together, the fires razed portions of the primary wintering range for the Oregon-California "interstate deer herd," which migrates into California each winter, Fischer said.

He said loss of the bitter — brush feed in the critical winter range could make for "slim pickings" for deer this year.

Fish and Game officials said it was too early to fully judge the impact of the fires on wildlife but predicted that seeding plans would be formulated immediately. This fall, when rains begin, would be the soonest plantings could start.

Fischer said a force of 300 men remained on the lines of the two fires, along with two water-dropping helicopters. "Things are looking good this morning," he said.

At the peak of the fires yesterday, about 600 men were on the scene.

In Alturas, a National Forest Service dispatcher said "a few" smaller brush fires continued to burn in scattered areas, but added, "We don't think there is anything that will get away from us."

The dispatcher said 34 lightning-spawned fires were sighted since Wednesday's storms.

The California Division of Forestry in Redding said two small fires continued to burn in the Hatchet Mountain region near Burney. Smoke from three other fires was reported and an airplane dispatched to try and locate them.

Division of Forestry officials said numerous other blazes were extinguished since the storms, including an 80-acre fire near Redding which left two firemen injured Wednesday.

Commission Denies A Motel Sign

The Rohnert Park Planning Commission last night denied plans for a Regal 8 Motel sign, saying it was too large and flashy.

Codding Enterprises had requested approval of the free-standing sign for the motel to be built off Highway 101 at the Rohnert Park expressway overpass.

Commission Secretary Sandra Faus said commissioners agreed the large sign with red flashing crown and figure 8 would not be permitted.

In other business, the commission approved the request of Patricia McGrew to operate a bookkeeping and typing service from her home at 8685 Laurelwood Drive and the request of Harris and Rathke Inc. to convert apartments to condominiums on Southwest Boulevard at Camino Colegio.

SELF-IMPOSED PRISON TERM

Rather than stand trial for burglary in May 1971, William W. Hughs, 28, jumped bail and sentenced himself to solitary confinement in the Leesburg United Methodist Church in Leesburg, N.J. For more than two years, Hughs stayed alone in the belfry (left) during the day, emerging only at night.

French Test Blast Expected Soon

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

France maintained silence again today on its plans for carrying out nuclear tests in the South Pacific, but opponents leading international protests to prevent them said the first explosion could come at any time.

"The secret is well guarded," the Paris newspaper L'Aurore said in reference to reports the tests might start Saturday.

However, radio operators aboard a protest ship from Sausalito, Calif., sailing near the test site said the weather was not favorable for testing. They did not elaborate.

French newspapers said today South Pacific islanders do not appear upset over the forthcoming series of French nuclear tests although Australia, New Zealand, Japan and other countries bitterly oppose them. They fear fallout will endanger their populations.

The test site is the Muroroa atoll, about 750 miles from Tahiti. France has used the site since 1966 for its atmospheric tests, but only in the last year has widespread opposition grown.

France established a prohibited area around the atoll Tuesday, warning ships and aircraft to stay out of the area. Traditionally, the warning comes only a short time before testing begins.

French authorities did not indicate what kind of device they intend to test, but some military sources said it was a fission trigger.

In Wellington, the capital of New Zealand, officials said the country's most modern frigate is ready to sail for the French nuclear test zone as part of a protest campaign.

The frigate Canterbury will replace its sister frigate Otago on patrol inside the 72-mile security zone France established.

The Otago, which is carrying a cabinet minister who was chosen by lot, sailed about 120 miles west of Mururoa today. A New Zealand government spokesman said the ship will refuel at sea and return to the security zone tonight.

Meanwhile, a radio operator aboard a yacht sailing inside the security zone said today the vessel was 50 miles off Muru———roa. The protest ship from Sausalito, named Fri, is one of several vessels that will sail in international waters off the test site as part of the protest.

Tricia Is Booed By Game Crowd

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the crowd at a Yankees' baseball game found out the president's daughter was in the crowd last night, they booed.

Tricia Nixon Cox, President Nixon's older daughter, and her husband, Edward, were among the crowd of 15,323 at a New York Yankees-Kansas City Royals ball game.

Mrs. Cox received a phone call early in the game informing her of her father's hospitalization but she remained for the entire contest.

More Arrests In White House

Two more protesters were arrested yesterday when they knelt to pray during a tour of the executive mansion.

The Secret Service said only one of the demonstrators would identify himself. He gave his name as Edward Guinan, 37, a Roman Catholic priest from Washington, D.C.

The 18 demonstrators have been charged with unlawful entry after they refused to leave the mansion.

Lightning, Fires Peril Big Sheep

TULELAKE (UPI) — One major lightning-sparked brush fire was declared controlled today and another contained, but 18 of 20 rare California bighorn sheep penned in the rugged area were still unaccounted for.

Both fires erupted near the Lava Beds National Monument Wednesday night as thunderstorms swept across the northern portion of the state. Scores of other fires broke out in a six-county area, with a few of them still burning.

The largest of the fires consumed 650 acres before being controlled after a nightlong battle. It began in an experimental, 1,100-acre pen containing 20 California bighorns.

National Forest Service spokesman Leon Fischer said the two adult rams in the herd had been sighted, but none of the remaining ewes and lambs was accounted for. Ten of the lambs were less than 6-weeks-old.

"Of course, there is no reason to believe they are in any trouble," Fischer added.

Fischer said control of the blaze was expected today "if the weather will just hold out for a few hours."

Together, the fires razed portions of the primary wintering range for the Oregon-California "interstate deer herd," which migrates into California each winter, Fischer said.

He said loss of the bitter — brush feed in the critical winter range could make for "slim pickings" for deer this year.

Fish and Game officials said it was too early to fully judge the impact of the fires on wildlife but predicted that seeding plans would be formulated immediately. This fall, when rains begin, would be the soonest plantings could start.

Fischer said a force of 300 men remained on the lines of the two fires, along with two water-dropping helicopters. "Things are looking good this morning," he said.

At the peak of the fires yesterday, about 600 men were on the scene.

In Alturas, a National Forest Service dispatcher said "a few" smaller brush fires continued to burn in scattered areas, but added, "We don't think there is anything that will get away from us."

The dispatcher said 34 lightning-spawned fires were sighted since Wednesday's storms.

The California Division of Forestry in Redding said two small fires continued to burn in the Hatchet Mountain region near Burney. Smoke from three other fires was reported and an airplane dispatched to try and locate them.

Division of Forestry officials said numerous other blazes were extinguished since the storms, including an 80-acre fire near Redding which left two firemen injured Wednesday.

Commission Denies A Motel Sign

The Rohnert Park Planning Commission last night denied plans for a Regal 8 Motel sign, saying it was too large and flashy.

Codding Enterprises had requested approval of the freestanding sign for the motel to be built off Highway 101 at the Rohnert Park expressway overpass.

Commission Secretary Sandra Faus said commissioners agreed the large sign with red flashing crown and figure 8 would not be permitted.

In other business, the commission approved the request of Patricia McGrew to operate a bookkeeping and typing service from her home at 8685 Laurelwood Drive and the request of Harris and Rathke Inc. to convert apartments to condominiums on Southwest Boulevard at Camino Colegio.

Mobile Home Parks Are Booming In Florida Retirement Areas

By CHARLES E. DOLE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LEESBURG, Fla. — If Joe Scott had a choice, he'd probably live in a mobile home.

But because he's still a student, he has to settle for being a tour guide at Mid-Florida Lakes, a burgeoning 310-acre mobile-home park about an hour by road from Cape Kennedy, Daytona Beach, and Disney World.

To show his enthusiasm for the mobile way of life, Joe not long ago got into a golf cart and ran around the 1,100-lot village with a camera and a large pad of paper. Purpose: to find out something about the residents and why they're here.

"We have over 300 residents," says Joe, "But when I got to 100 my boss shouted: 'Stop, that's enough.' " What he's come up with is an orange-covered booklet with snapshots, admittedly poor, and a whole lot of comments on why some of the people chose mobile homes in preference to condominiums, say, or apartments or single-family houses.

Mrs. Irma Guennier of Oceanside, N.Y., adds: "It's your three-week vacation stretched year-round." Almost everyone had good things to say about the mobiles; and they all add that it was voluntary.

The point is that people are flocking to Florida in amazing numbers — about 3,000 a week — and mobiel-home parks are getting a lot of them. The boom is very much on the track, despite some buffeting from detractors on all sides.

Joe Scott's park, Mid-Florida Lakes, is considered one of the best in the state and, like some others, is rated with five stars by Woodall's, the publishing firm.

Florida now has at least 2,000 mobile-home parks with perhaps 200,000 lots. More are going into the ground all the time. Average park size is 200 spaces. Mid-Florida Lakes, developed by AMREP Corp., is one of the largest with 1,100 spaces. Now in its third year, it is about two-thirds developed.

Of course, not everyone likes the mobile way of life. Clearly, the industry has a long way to go. Many coaches, as they're called, especially in the mid-range or lower, lack the quality and integrity a buyer might expect. Yet the industry itself is still in its infancy and the long-range prospects remain bright.

It's still the cheapest way to buy your own place. Florida limits the width of a "mobile" to 12 feet, although many states permit the 14-foot width.

On the complaint side, consumer advocate Ralph Nader reports at least 500 complaints, mostly about units themselves or about parks and the way they are run.

But with the industry turning out more than a half million units a year, 500 complaints figure out to about one-tenth of 1 percent of the units sold in 1972. Some critics obviously never bother to file formal complaints.

Still, the barbs are minimal when put into the context of the total annual output of the industry.

The mobile-home business booms because the factory-built units is the only way to provide housing these days for large numbers of people who can ill afford to pay the cost of on-site conventional housing. But that's not the only reason.

Tens of thousands of mobile-home buyers take the route because they enjoy it. It becomes a way of life, especially in the better-run parks, and is far freer of upkeep chores than a single-family house. A condominium generally lacks the same relationship among its residents as that found in a well-maintained and organized mobile-home park.

AMREP is so bullish on the outlook for mobiles that it is launching a twin-village park near Ocala. Called Rolling Greens, the concept involves one village for families with children, with the other toward the adult.

Prices start at under $10,000 in the family park and at about $12,000 in the adult village. Monthly charges, which includes lot rental, maintenance, and real estate taxes, range from $45 to $95 in the family community; and from $60 to $90 in adult park.

Contrary to conventional housing, which increases in value in an inflationary economy, mobile homes generally depreciate. At Mid-Florida Lakes, however, the developer reports that sellers are getting more than they paid for their units. A unit that cost $19,000 two years ago now is selling for about $23,000.

Town Council Ups Its Own Paycheck

Corte Madera Town Councilmen, giving themselves and the town manager a raise in pay, wound up their budget review last night, paving the way for adoption of the $1,283,970 spending program on Monday. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1.)

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels — who was given a 5 per cent cost-of-living raise, boosting his salary from $22,080 to $23,184 — has estimated that the town's tax rate will remain at last year's level, $1.72 per $100 assessed valuation.

A request by the citizens fire committee, made by Flahive, for an extra fireman, was turned down on a 3-to-1 vote, with Harold B. Wagstaff, Herber C. Leney and Edward W. Colthurst opposing, saying it wouldn't be prudent to dip into the town's reserves.

But councilmen voted unanimously to raise the volunteer firemen's pay from $3 to $5 per call. Fire Chief Frank Nelson said Larkspur was paying $6, other departments were paying $5, although he personally opposed the raise.

In considering the town parks budget, the council promised James Bell and Julian Barlow, representing the Marin Estates Homeowners Association and the East Corte Madera Hilldwellers Association, about $4,000 in revenue sharing funds for a minipark on the town's east side.

The two men said their groups wanted to upgrade the existing tot lot on town-owned property in a triangle of land bounded by Paradise Drive and El Camino Drive.

Councilman Colthurst was all in favor of alloting enough money to make a proper park for the east side — which doesn't have one — but finance director Frank Bigley warned that revenue sharing funds can't be designated without a public hearing.

On hearing that a fence is needed around the totlot in Town Park too, the council decided to hold a public hearing on both park projects and use some of the $13,000 the town has left in revenue sharing funds.

The homeowners groups were asked to get professional plans drawn up for the minipark, which will be constructed with volunteer labor and maintained by the town.

Councilmen chopped a request for $2,400 for 24 concrete trash cans for town parks at $100 each, and substituted $600 for 24 swing top lids to existing cans.

The corporation yard's budget of $16,000 for gas, oil, parks and tires for town police and fire and public works vehicles was increased by $4,000, on the request of Bigley, who said higher gas prices were to blame.

The recreation department's budget total of $55,269 was approved, with staff asked to take another look at making the fee programs self supporting.

Panel To Eye Timber Cutting

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, has named a select committee to examine the impact of accelerated timber cutting on the economy of California's North Coast.

"We are concerned that exceptionally heavy timber harvesting — generated partly by increased domestic prices but also by heavy demands from Japan — is jeopardizing the long-term stability of the north coast's economy," Moretti said Thursday in a statement.

The lawmakers said the trees "are apparently being cut faster than they can be grown, leaving a permanent scar in the north coast area" of Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties.

Statistics Given On Heroin Seizure

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A spokesman for the Drug Abuse Law Enforcement program said today agents have confiscated nearly 128 pounds of heroin and cocaine in the Southwest during the past year.

Sewage Plan Fund Priority List Revised

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Six Marin and Sonoma sewage projects yesterday passed review and retained priority classifications before the State Water Resources Control Board to qualify for grants totaling more than $36 million next fiscal year.

Three of the projects had been assigned to priority class A and had received prior conceptual approval. Although they have not been given grants yet approval is expected and plans and specifications are presently being drawn, according to Walker, manager of the clean water grant program.

The three are the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District's $400,000 project to enlarge its disinfection and sludge handling facilities and its bilofilter; Bolinas Public Utility District's $363,000 project to build interceptor, treatment and disposal facilities, and Bodega Bay Public Utility District's new $720,000 plant and interceptor.

Walker said these projects must still receive plan and specification approval by the board prior to receiving grants.

Ranked in class B was North Marin County Water District's $160,000 project for collection and treatment facilities at Tomales. Remaining in class C were Southern Marin's $20 million project for Improvement District A to build a subregional system serving all of Southeastern Marin and a $15.5 million project by Ross Valley Sanitary District for a subregional system serving Central Marin.

Two other projects were reviewed by the board but remained below the anticipated funding level. Walker said the only possible way these projects could be given grants would be through the release of federally impounded funds.

The two are North Marin County Water District's $290,000 project for sewage facilities at Point Reyes Coast Guard Station (it was raised from Class J to class F(and North Marin County Water District's $40,000 project at Inverness.

Projects receiving grants can receive up to 75 per cent funding from the federal government. State grants cover 12.5 per cent, leaving local governments to raise the remaining 12.5 per cent.

A $3.9 million project for the Stinson Beach County Water District previously had been on the priority list but was removed when it was found to have received an earlier grant.

Romberg Requested To Decline New Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The newly-appointed president of San Francisco State University has been asked by the school's Academic Senate to turn down the post because the faculty did not play a significant role in his selection.

"We do not wish to heap abuse on anyone," said Frederick Teerien, a sociology professor who is chairman of the senate's committee on candidate selection.

"It is the process we have been through that is important."

The Senate voted unanimously yesterday to ask Dr. Paul Romberg, 51, to reject the job he was appointed to Wednesday. Romberg, a botanist is currently president of Bakersfield State College.

"We are sure you realize that no university president can provide constructive leadership without the willing support of the university's faculty," the Senate said in a message to Romberg. "Given the circumstances of your selection, the necessary faculty support cannot be forthcoming."

State University trustees, meeting in Los Angeles, named Romberg to succeed Dr. S. I. Hayakawa as president of the 21,000-student university in September.

Hayakawa said he was surprised at the selection of Romberg, although he said he was "capable, very scholarly and apparently a very able administrator."

"I was kept completely in the dark by the selection process as if it were none of my business," he said." I never heard his name mentioned before in the context of becoming president."

Police Uniform For Young Boy's Burial

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An 8-year-old boy who died of leukemia before he could realize his dream to become a policeman will be buried today in a full-dress sergeant's uniform and with a police honor guard attending.

During the last three years, when it was discovered he had leukemia and until he died Tuesday, John Guiry collected more than 1,000 shoulder patches from police agencies around the country. His mother said he also collected "just about everything a policeman has."

The Burtons May Make Up In Rome

ROME (UPI) — It began in Rome and, if their friends are right, Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor will get together again in Rome next week.

The couple separated a week ago after nine years of marriage, but both Burton and his actress wife said they did not want to part permanently.

Burton arrived yesterday in Rome to start work on a new film, "The Trip," which costars Sophia Loren. A spokesman for Miss Taylor said she would leave later this month for Rome, probably to patch up their marriage.

It was in the Eternal City they met, when Burton and Miss Taylor, then married to singer Eddie Fisher, were filming "Cleopatra." Their well-publicized romance kept fans agog for months.

Burton said nothing when he arrived. He left the Rome airport in a car owned by producer Carlo Ponti, who is Miss Loren's husband.

In Los Angeles, a spokesman for Miss Taylor said she would leave July 21 for Rome. "Obviously," he said, "they plan to meet in Rome, where they both will be making pictures."

Miss Taylor will film "Driver's Seat" in Rome.

Hollywood columnist Army Archerd quoted Miss Taylor as saying, "We're not talking about divorce and there's absolutely no one else on either side.

"Please say there are so many stupid rumors about me and none are true," she said. "I'd have to be the most active lady in town."

One of the friends Miss Taylor visited in Los Angeles was Academy Award winner Donald Crisp, who will observe his 95th birthday July 27. She co-starred with Crisp in two of her most famous pictures, "National Velvet" and "Lassie Come Home."

"I had more fun there," Miss Taylor told Archerd, "than I had at the Candy Store (a night club) the night before."

Town Council Ups Its Own Paycheck

Corte Madera Town Councilmen, giving themselves and the town manager a raise in pay, wound up their budget review last night, paving the way for adoption of the $1,283,970 spending program on Monday. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1.)

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels — who was given a 5 per cent cost-of-living raise, boosting his salary from $22,080 to $23,184 — has estimated that the town's tax rate will remain at last year's level, $1.72 per $100 assessed valuation.

A request by the citizens fire committee, made by Flahive, for an extra fireman, was turned down on a 3-to-1 vote, with Harold B. Wagstaff, Herber C. Leney and Edward W. Colthurst opposing, saying it wouldn't be prudent to dip into the town's reserves.

But councilmen voted unanimously to raise the volunteer firemen's pay from $3 to $5 per call. Fire Chief Frank Nelson said Larkspur was paying $6, other departments were paying $5, although he personally opposed the raise.

In considering the town parks budget, the council promised James Bell and Julian Barlow, representing the Marin Estates Homeowners Association and the East Corte Madera Hilldwellers Association, about $4,000 in revenue sharing funds for a minipark on the town's east side.

The two men said their groups wanted to upgrade the existing tot lot on town-owned property in a triangle of land bounded by Paradise Drive and El Camino Drive.

Councilman Colthurst was all in favor of alloting enough money to make a proper park for the east side — which doesn't have one — but finance director Frank Bigley warned that revenue sharing funds can't be designated without a public hearing.

On hearing that a fence is needed around the totlot in Town Park too, the council decided to hold a public hearing on both park projects and use some of the $13,000 the town has left in revenue sharing funds.

The homeowners groups were asked to get professional plans drawn up for the minipark, which will be constructed with volunteer labor and maintained by the town.

Councilmen chopped a request for $2,400 for 24 concrete trash cans for town parks at $100 each, and substituted $600 for 24 swing top lids to existing cans.

The corporation yard's budget of $16,000 for gas, oil, parks and tires for town police and fire and public works vehicles was increased by $4,000, on the request of Bigley, who said higher gas prices were to blame.

The recreation department's budget total of $55,269 was approved, with staff asked to take another look at making the fee programs self supporting.

Panel To Eye Timber Cutting

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, has named a select committee to examine the impact of accelerated timber cutting on the economy of California's North Coast.

"We are concerned that exceptionally heavy timber harvesting — generated partly by increased domestic prices but also by heavy demands from Japan — is jeopardizing the long-term stability of the north coast's economy," Moretti said Thursday in a statement.

The lawmakers said the trees "are apparently being cut faster than they can be grown, leaving a permanent scar in the north coast area" of Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte counties.

CAMBODIAN BOY-SOLDIERS

Young Cambodian soldiers rest in a Chinese graveyard near Highway 38, while Communist bullets zip overhead. An airborne assault yesterday on Communist positions had stalled 12 miles south of Phnom Penh, and to the north, government troops fled their positions on the east bank of the Tonle Sap River. While fighting was going on only miles from the capital, U.S. Gen. Frederick C. Weyland conferred with President Lon Nol about the upcoming American bombing halt. (UPI Telephoto)

Campora Steps Down For Peron's Election

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Hector J. Campora resigned "irrevocably" today to open the way for new elections within 30 to 40 days to restore Juan D. Peron to the presidency of Argentina after 18 years.

Campora, a 64-year-old former dentist who campaigned in the March 11 elections on a slogan of "Campora to the government, Peron to power," submitted his resignation and that of his Vice President Vicente Solano Lopez to Congress after only 49 days in office.

Congress was meeting at 3 p.m (2 p.m. EDT) to consider them.

"It was a decision that was born of my own sentiment, of all of a life in service of one man in whom I believed, I believe and will continue to believe," Campora told legislators with whom he met.

Peron, 77, whose 10-year dictatorial regime was toppled by the armed forces in 1955, remained in his suburban home but was expected to address the Argentine nation tonight at 9:30 p.m. (8:30 EDT). He returned from a Spanish exile 23 days ago, having been forbidden by the previous military government from returning home to run in the elections that chose Campora in his stead.

In a six-minute address later to the nation, Campora asked the three armed services chiefs to remain on their jobs to ensure security during the transition.

Campora said his resignation was "irrevocable" and would make possible "the reencounter of General Peron with his people in a full, real and formal exercise of his leadership."

After 12 hours of reports and rumors, Campora and Solano Lima called on Peron early this morning and announced their resignations afterwards.

If the Congress accepts them as expected, the president of the Chamber of Deputies, Raul Alberto Lastiri, 58, son-in-law of one of Peron's closest confidants, will become president until new elections, which Campora earlier today said would be in 40 days

There were reports but no confirmation that a possible vice presidential candidate with Peron could be Ricardo Balbin, the head of the country's second largest party, the Radical Civic Union. Balbin ran unsuccessfully against Peron in 1951 and against Campora earlier this year.

The announcement of Campora's resignation appeared to catch most Argentines by surprise. Worker demonstrations had been scheduled for Saturday to demand Peron's return as president, but they were cancelled.

Neither was there any immediate reaction from the armed forces, but the armed forces chiefs have met privately with Peron in recent days, and a Peronist official said last night that the armed forces would remain quiet.

Bridge Toll And Fare Study Set

A $94,000 start on a study of bridge tolls and transit fares was recommended yesteray by a committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors.

The transportation committee, however, balked at endorsing the full $300,000 asked for the work by the San Francisco firm of Baxter, McDonald and Smart Inc. The firm's partners include Richard Smart, who has a separate contract with the district as its special counsel to promote federal aid for its transit system.

Several directors called the $300,000 cost ridiculous, saying they will consider the rest of the study after the results are in from the $94,000 for "phase one."

The study will develop "a multimodal simulation model of the patronage and economic interrelationships of the district operations." In other words, it is supposed to tell the district how toll and fare hikes will affect patronage of the bridge, buses and ferries.

The committee's recommendation was conditioned on federal funding of at least two-thirds of the cost. Smart, whose task it would normally be to solicit the federal funds, said that since his firm would be the beneficiary he will not act in the matter.

The committee also recommended a $41,860 contract with the architectural firm of Cherk and Politzer to study bus stop sites in Marin, Sonoma and San Francisco, and to design shelters for the sites.

The committee's recommendations will go to the full board on July 27.

Dollar Wishy-Washy On World's Markets

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar met mixed fortunes in nervous and uncertain world money markets today and nobody seemed willing to bet on which way it would go.

The dollar opened higher in Paris, lower in Amsterdam, higher in London, barely higher in Frankfurt. Movements were marginal and trading was "both nervous and light," according to a London dealer.

In London it took $2.5422 to buy a British pound, compared with $2.5433 last night.

A dollar bought about 4.135 French francs today instead of 4.115 yesterday, but only 2.615 Dutch guilders instead of 2.6225. The German mark price of 2.3975 to the dollar was fractionally higher than yesterday's close.

The weakened American currency, which has dropped for months in the amount of foreign money it would buy, turned around at the beginning of the week. It climbed everywhere on the belief that government central banks— particular the U.S. Federal Reserve Board—were about to step into the market and buy dollars to push its value up.

But by mid-week there was no solid evidence of such government intervention, and the dollar started to slide again.

Today's opening prices, however, were a muddle. There were no clear trends.

In Zurich, the dollar bought 2.8745 Swiss francs today, compared with 2.8575 at the end of trading yesterday. The American currency was slightly up in Belgium, priced today at 36.675 Belgian francs, a bare .13 per cent gain on yesterday's closing price of 36.625.

A Frankfurt currency dealer said the West German Central Bank purchased about $4 million at the fixing, but added the support action was more a "psychological help than an intervention."

Sugarloaf Mountain Restaurant Stalled

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Plans to build a restaurant atop Sugar Loaf, one of Rio's most scenic landmarks, have been sidetracked, at least temporarily.

A citizens' committee claimed the project would "disfigure" the peak located in Guanabara Bay. The plan will be restudied by the Guanabara Urban Planning Council.

Point Reyes Lighthouse May Reopen

Point Reyes Lighthouse, closed to the public for the past six years, may reopen to the public next year, a spokesman for the National Park Service said today.

The landmark has stood on a 294-foot cliff above the sea since 1870 and long was a popular tourist attraction until the Coast Guard found the crowds too heavy to handle.

The prospect of reopening it to the public was raised in the wake of an announcement yesterday that the General Services Administration has recommended that the lighthouse be transferred from the Department of Transportation to the Point Reyes National Seashore.

The transfer, including 83 acres on the headland, would be effective when the light is automated by the end of the year.

The park service spokesman, however, said reopening the lighthouse to the public will depend on getting funds to improve pedestrian access to it. The only access now is 304 steps down a precipitous cliff.

Thirty-six ships are known to have gone down on the rocks of the point.

Panel Backs Hike In College Costs

BERKELEY (UPI) — A blue ribbon commission on higher education yesterday recommended that tuition in the nation's public universities be allowed to rise at a faster rate than at private schools.

"These recommendations do not guarantee that all private colleges and universities will improve their position," the report said, "but we believe that they create conditions whereby the well-administered private institution that performs a distinctive educational service can compete with tax-supported institutions on a more equitable basis."

The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education report was prepared by a 19-member group including former Harvard president Nathan M. Pusey, former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton and Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California.

Titled, "Higher Education: Who Pays? Who Benefits? Who Should Pay?" the proposals urged major reforms in the financing of education beyond high school.

It recommended that tuition in public colleges and universities be allowed to rise faster than the private school rate until it reaches the level of about one-third of the educational costs of the independent schools, the report said. To achieve this goal by 1983, the commission estimated that public tuitions would have to increase by 10 to 12 per cent a year.

Currently the public rate is about one-sixth of the spiraling increases at private institutions, according to the report.

"We are opposed to any increase in tuition at public institutions except as such increases are offset by the availability of adequate student aid for lower-income students," the report said.

"The competition between public and private institutions is now too heavily based on price considerations alone. Both systems would benefit if the competition were based more on quality of effort," the study said.

The recommendations were designed to assist private institutions of higher learning by:

Gradually narrowing the tuition gap between public and private schools and returning the ratio more nearly to its historic level in the period from 1920-1950.

Increasing student assistance programs permitting the needy to choose more equally between attendance at a public or private college.

Stabilizing the support of graduate education and improving research funding so that study and research needs do not divert funds from undergraduate education.

Salem Witch Trials Record To Be Bared

SALEM, Mass. (AP) — Witchcraft hysteria swept this seaport town nearly three centuries ago. Now the witch trial testimony that sent 20 persons to their deaths is finally being published.

An old English record of courtroom testimony details the fear that gripped the village in 1692 when teen-age girls said they'd been put under spells. Within a year, 19 persons had been hanged and one crushed to death.

The Essex County commissioners are in the process of signing a contract for publication of the "Salem Witchcraft Papers," a translation of the longhand script that contains testimony from the witchcraft trials. The transcript is expected to be published in two volumes within six to seven months.

The formal charge against the accused witches was the practice of "certain detestable arts called witchcraft and sorcery which was wickedly, maliciously and feloniously used, practiced and exercised at and in the town of Salem. . ."

Included in the trial records is Benjamin Hutchinson's statement that his wife was tortured by a witch:

"My wife was much afflicted after the last execution with violent pains in her heart and teeth and all parts of her body. . . she being in such excessive misery that she said she believed that she had had a spell cast upon her.

"Whereupon I went to Mary Walcott, one of our neighbors, to come and look to see if she could see anybody upon her; and as soon as she came into the house she said that our two neighbors — Sarah Buckley and Mary Witheridge — were upon my wife; and immediately my wife had ease and Mary Walcott was tormented."

Mary Walcott, 16 at the time, was one of the group of teen-age girls who would scream and cry and even go into convulsions, claiming they were being attacked by invisible witches. The girls later named the witches as friends and neighbors ranging in age from a 5-year-old child to a grandmother.

Panel Backs Hike In College Costs

BERKELEY (UPI) — A blue ribbon commission on higher education yesterday recommended that tuition in the nation's public universities be allowed to rise at a faster rate than at private schools.

"These recommendations do not guarantee that all private colleges and universities will improve their position," the report said, "but we believe that they create conditions whereby the well-administered private institution that performs a distinctive educational service can compete with tax-supported institutions on a more equitable basis."

The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education report was prepared by a 19-member group including former Harvard president Nathan M. Pusey, former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton and Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California.

Titled, "Higher Education: Who Pays? Who Benefits? Who Should Pay?" the proposals urged major reforms in the financing of education beyond high school.

It recommended that tuition in public colleges and universities be allowed to rise faster than the private school rate until it reaches the level of about one-third of the educational costs of the independent schools, the report said. To achieve this goal by 1983, the commission estimated that public tuitions would have to increase by 10 to 12 per cent a year.

Currently the public rate is about one-sixth of the spiraling increases at private institutions, according to the report.

"We are opposed to any increase in tuition at public institutions except as such increases are offset by the availability of adequate student aid for lower-income students," the report said.

"The competition between public and private institutions is now too heavily based on price considerations alone. Both systems would benefit if the competition were based more on quality of effort," the study said.

The recommendations were designed to assist private institutions of higher learning by:

Gradually narrowing the tuition gap between public and private schools and returning the ratio more nearly to its historic level in the period from 1920-1950.

Increasing student assistance programs permitting the needy to choose more equally between attendance at a public or private college.

Stabilizing the support of graduate education and improving research funding so that study and research needs do not divert funds from undergraduate education.

Salem Witch Trials Record To Be Bared

SALEM, Mass. (AP) — Witchcraft hysteria swept this seaport town nearly three centuries ago. Now the witch trial testimony that sent 20 persons to their deaths is finally being published.

An old English record of courtroom testimony details the fear that gripped the village in 1692 when teen-age girls said they'd been put under spells. Within a year, 19 persons had been hanged and one crushed to death.

The Essex County commissioners are in the process of signing a contract for publication of the "Salem Witchcraft Papers," a translation of the longhand script that contains testimony from the witchcraft trials. The transcript is expected to be published in two volumes within six to seven months.

The formal charge against the accused witches was the practice of "certain detestable arts called witchcraft and sorcery which was wickedly, maliciously and feloniously used, practiced and exercised at and in the town of Salem. . ."

Included in the trial records is Benjamin Hutchinson's statement that his wife was tortured by a witch:

"My wife was much afflicted after the last execution with violent pains in her heart and teeth and all parts of her body. . . she being in such excessive misery that she said she believed that she had had a spell cast upon her.

"Whereupon I went to Mary Walcott, one of our neighbors, to come and look to see if she could see anybody upon her; and as soon as she came into the house she said that our two neighbors — Sarah Buckley and Mary Witheridge — were upon my wife; and immediately my wife had ease and Mary Walcott was tormented."

Mary Walcott, 16 at the time, was one of the group of teen-age girls who would scream and cry and even go into convulsions, claiming they were being attacked by invisible witches. The girls later named the witches as friends and neighbors ranging in age from a 5-year-old child to a grandmother.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Declarer Is Deceived By Foes With Falsecarding In Trumps

Truth is a wonderful thing, but it has a way of getting monotonous. Mind you, I'm talking only about bridge. A well-chosen falsehood can put life into the game and points on your side of the score pad.

NO-TRUMP

North would have made game at no-trump without much trouble, but it's hard to blame South for bidding four spades. "My mother told me," South commented later, "never to let myself become dummy when I had a seven-card major suit." Unfortunately, his mother forgot to tell him how to play those seven-card suits.

West opened the queen of hearts, and the defenders quickly rattled off two tricks in that suit. South ruffed the third heart and had to limit the trump loss to one trick.

CLOSE TO VEST

Every reader of the column will see at a glance just how this can be done. But in an actual game, especially if the defenders hold their cards close to the vest, South cannot see that East has only A-x of trumps.

Declarer leads the queen of clubs to dummy's king and returns the low trump. East plays low, and South wins with the king. West causes trouble, however, by dropping the ten of spades on this first round of trumps. This falsecard gives South something to think about.

ONLY CHANCE

If West is telling the truth, he has the singleton ten or the doubleton jack-ten of trumps. South's only chance, in this case, is to lead the queen of spades back. As it happens, this loses to the ace, and West gets the setting trick eventually with his jack of spades.

Picture Flash Leaves A Smile

NEW YORK (UPI) — Each year millions of Americans are struck by bursts of light traveling 186,000 miles per second, and it usually leaves them smiling.

The flashes are artificial light sources for picture taking. The research department of Honeywell Photographic Products, which pioneered development of electronic flash in this country, says each time a picture-taker utilizes an electronic flash he's hitting the subject with a burst of light that travels the same speed as lightning but with just enough energy to make an impression on film.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Lucky people! Friday was not on the 13th the year each of these greats was born. Using clues from history, can you guess when?

1. SIDNEY BLACKMER was cooing in his crib at Salisbury, N.C., when the United States decided to Go to war. Reason: the American battleship "Maine" had been mysteriously blown up in Cuba's harbor. Years later Sidney would be starring in dozens of adventure movies made in Hollywood. Altogether he has been seen in more than 105 films since he started back in 1929.

2. KENNETH CLARK was born in England, the historic year that the Wright brothers first flew their powered aircraft at Kittyhawk, N.C. Songs like "Sweet Adeline" crossed the Atlantic and Londoners even bought Jack London's "Call of the Wild" that year. Years later young Clark would excel as an Oxford scholar, earn the royal title of Lord, become famous for creating the BBC-TV series on "Civilisation."

3. DAVE GARROWAY may not have known there was a monetary crisis the year he was born. But President Wilson did. He signed into law a bill which created the Federal Reserve Board to control the U.S. banking system. Years later young Dave would sit on a stool in a TV studio, talk gently to his audience and zoom to fame as an NBC star. Born in New York, he got his first break in Chicago radio, now lives in Hollywood.

4. CHARLES COODY was born the year that auto workers staged the first American sit-down strike. Radios were blaring "The Dipsy Doodle" and bookstores were selling John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men." Years later young Coody would be making a name for himself on the golf greens. His greatest year was 1971 when he won the Master's. His lifetime winnings exceed $400,000.

Schoonmaker Plans Modified

A modified plan for a multi-million dollar project on the Sausalito waterfront was unveiled last night before the city's Community Appearances Advisory Board.

The primary change in plans by O'Meara Chandler Co. for the Schoonmaker property in northern Sausalito is in the relocation and reduction in the number of residential units to make the project conform with existing zoning, architect Steven Siskind told the board.

Siskind said 72 residential units, as compared to 100 in the original plan, have been moved to the shoreline area from the inland channel.

In addition, two boat yards are planned for the northern end of the project. Bob's Boat Yard and another operated by Hank Eason will be placed adjacent to one another in the new proposal.

Siskind said 20,000 square feet is planned for resident-oriented retail shops. Two restaurants and a coffee shop are planned. Original proposals called for as many as five.

The public beach area has been more than doubled and the number of boat slips increased slightly, the architect said.

The new plan is designed "to meet valid objections raised during planning commission hearings," Siskind said, and to make the plan "as close as possible to the desires of the citizens of Sausalito without making it unfeasible."

He said the proposal is in conformity with interim general plan guidelines set up by the city for Marinship.

Colleges Given New State Aid, Tax Cut

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday signed major legislation to pump an extra $65 million in state aid into the community college system and grant a measure of property tax relief.

The bill by Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, sponsored by the California Community Colleges Association, increases the state's share of support of the two-year schools from the current 34 per cent level to 42 per cent.

About $13 million of the total will be earmarked to roll back property taxes in 50 of the state's 68 community college districts.

Community colleges were omitted from last year's $1.1 billion school aid and property tax relief program.

Reagan vetoed a similar Alquist bill in 1972 on grounds it would cost not $60 million but $111 million.

That measure contained no revenue controls on limiting local tax rates. The latest Alquist measure signed by Reagan does contain such controls.

The bill boosted state support of the community colleges from $201 million this fiscal year to $266 million.

Summer Tour Can End In Nightmare

Marin has its share of young people who will be heading overseas this summer with not much more than a pack on their backs and vague dreams of glamor and adventure in the rural byways of Europe, Asia, and Africa.

A grand tour of Europe on just a few dollars a day, with travel guidebooks to egg them on, is almost irresistible to the young American from suburbia who is bored with easy living and eager to prove to himself and to the world that he can stand on his own two feet without relying on daily handouts from affluent parents.

BUT TRUDGING through a foreign and often hostile land, bent over from a 50-pound pack, with nothing but blistered feet to rely upon can quickly turn romantic dreams into a nightmare.

The rude awakening experienced by a California College coed who toured Europe on the cheap is described by Janet Chase in a special article to the Christian Science Monitor this month. Here are some of her experiences:

NOT WANTING TO tie herself down to a specific return date, she only booked a one-way charter. Her student travel adviser assured her she would have no difficulty booking a return charter flight at any time. Unfortunately, last year, such flights leaving Europe were grounded daily for infractions of charter laws, and many companies cancelled their own flights.

"Thus I spent much of my summer camped in student travel bureaus across the continent, trying to find a way home. There were times, before I wired home for the $300 to book a flight on my regularly scheduled carrier, when I thought I would wander aimless through Europe."

HOTELS DESCRIBED in glowing terms turned out to be little dumps with paint and dirt flaking off the walls, food on the floor, and a single mattress for three girls.

She spent one night on a train, trying to sleep on a swaying metal luggage rack high above the rest of the passengers. On another run, she was awakened by another traveler who tried to pitch her and her belongings out the window because she was occupying his seat.

She talks of frail, teen-aged girls wandering the streets of Leningrad in a daze, their passports in the hands of the Soviet Government, or pursued down dark streets by a rifle-toting man.

HER ADVICE IS clear: Don't venture abroad until you have saved twice the money originally planned; take guidebooks, if at all, with lots of salt and skepticism; and see half the countries that were considered "musts" on the itinerary. Most important of all, secure round-trip passage beforehand.

Undoubtedly some Americans youths have "roughed it" through Europe with little or no adverse consequences. More power to them. But for the majority, dreams of a romantic summer of '73 could turn into horrible nightmares or worse. They would do well to heed the warnings from a young voice of experience.

Court Ruling Is Unfair Toward Parochial School

By RUS WALTON

About 407,000 children attend nonpublic institutions in this state. Not all of those 2197 schools are religious. There are some 309,000 students in 796 Catholic schools, and 61,000 in schools of other faiths.

The recent rulings by the U.S. Supreme Court hit the parents of those children right in the bank account. The Court held that tax credits and tuition reimbursements for such education are unconstitutional.

THE COURT'S RULING undoubtedly will outlaw the 1972 California statues granting $125 tax credits to parents of children attending parochial schools. The rulings may also halt the state's practice of each year distributing $1.5 million-worth of textbooks to those schools.

There should, indeed, be a strong and lasting separation of church and state; a strict government neutrality toward religion.

And, that is why those recent Court decisions do violence to religious freedom in this nation. The rulings are not neutral; they rig the scales against those who send their children to religious schools.

WHERE IS THE neutrality when Ceasar erects extra burdens and undue hurdles for those who send their children to nonpublic schools? The forces of the state are arrayed against them. Not only must they pay ever-increasing taxes to support public schools they do not use, they must also find the money for the private school.

That is not fair; that is a kind of double taxation that comes close to persecution.

THERE ARE THOSE who contend that if religious schooling means so much to some parents they should be willing to make the sacrifice and pay the cost.

That makes sense except that today Ceasar's excessive taxation wipes out those extra family funds. Under the Court's decision, only the wealthy are left with free choice; the lower and middle class parents will be forced to take the educational pap dispensed at Ceasar's trough.

OPPONENTS OF TAX credits argue they should not be forced to support religious schools. Agreed. By the same token, and in the same spirit of neutrality, those who send their children to parochial schools should not be compelled to give full support to the public system.

Classroom costs for public education average about $900 per child, in the elementary and secondary grades. If the 407,000 private school students were suddenly dumped on California's public system, it would cost taxpayers another $365 million a year - not including capital expenses for additional classrooms and other facilities.

IF I WERE involved with a parochial school, if I could afford to send my kids to a private institution, I would not want it to accept state subsidies or support. State control follows state funds and that would be too high a price to pay. It would, in fact, defeat the whole purpose of sending a child to a private school.

But, there must be an equitable neutrality for those who do send their kids to nonpublic schools. They take a weight off of our backs; we should find a way to take some of the weight off of theirs. The Court fails in this.

WHAT IS AT stake here is not just separation of church and state. Many parents send their children to private school for educational excellence and moral training; things not always available in today's public system. To them religious training is a bonus, not necessarily the prime motivation. But, like so many cases in today's lock-step society, they are penalized for being "different."

What is at issue here is also equity and the question of coercion. The Court has enforced economic sanctions that leaves hundreds of thousands of California parents no choice but to allow the state to bend their twigs and aim their arrows.

Let People Vote On Building Moratorium

At the last water bond election I voted against the bond because I had read arguments that the proposal was wasteful of money and we would be too dependent upon the control of some northern body for the supply of the water. Following the defeat of the bond measure it was surprising to read that the general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District interpreted the rejection as a pronouncement by the voters that they did not want further population growth. This was a completely irresponsible judgement by the manager which makes me wonder about his ability to direct the water district.

Our problem is we are getting population growth and water supply mixed together when they should be separate issues.

Because the administrators of our water supply have been unable to present a favorable plan for our long term water supply, and our sources of supply are inadequate for the existing population, work should begin immediately on smaller projects such as the North Marin Intertie, which was approved by the voters in 1970.

Population growth is a matter for the County Planning Department. I myself would like to see all the existing open spaces in Marin set aside for preservation. However, not permitting any further building in Marin County is tremendously important to the prosperity of Marin County, and it should be decided at the polls by the general public — not by the board of supervisors, not by the PG&E because of an energy shortage, and not by the Marin Municipal Water District because it has failed to keep pace with the needs of the district.

Removal Of Grass Should Be Enforced

Why is it that the City of San Rafael sends out notices that all dry grass between the sidewalks and curbstone MUST be removed by the property owners within ten days or the City will remove same and bill the property owner. I, as a property owner, agree with this procedure, but only if it applies to all property owners.

When I receive my notice, I rush down and remove this dry grass, then for the next THREE MONTHS I look at other property in this same neighborhood who DO NOT have their dry grass removed.

I made the mistake one year, due to being ill for a week, of not removing all the dead grass, within ten days. I had planned to remove the last six square feet the following Saturday, but I was too late — the City came by on Friday . . . I was billed $35 for work I could have done myself in one hour.

NLRB Should Aid People Not The Union Leaders

(Reprinted from Wall Street Journal)

In charging Chicago Teamsters Local 705 with "sheer racketeering" in organizing service station operators and employes, a National Labor Relations Board examiner expressed amazement at how long all this had been going on.

The examiner, Stanley N. Ohlbaum, said that the local had been extracting "union contracts" from station operators which mainly required that the operators pay money to the local. Since the union controlled gasoline deliveries to the stations it didn't have much difficulty extracting the agreements, an NLRB investigation found.

Mr. Ohlbaum, who should properly be called an "administrative law judge," said the local's practices "may have flourished for 15 years or more and involved perhaps 10,000 service station employes." They were so "flagrant, egregious, widespread and long-continued as to arouse wonderment. . . why the multiple arms of the law have been so long withheld."

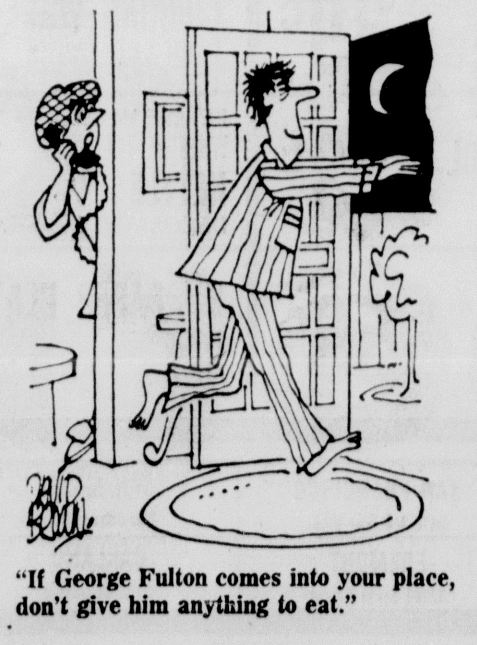
We share in that wonderment. We also suspect that several unions have been getting by with similar strong-arm tactics in a good many other places for even more than 15 years.

We also have a few theories on why this has been possible. One is that the Department of Labor and the NLRB has been more intent upon responding to pressures from the labor establishment — in other words, the officers of international unions, the AFL-CIO and powerful locals — than in protecting the rights and interests of working men and women.

And while we don't think that the labor establishment is fundamentally corrupt, it has been less than diligent about taking its own steps to police union practices. No doubt this has been a result of a misguided assumption that to do so would weaken labor's organizing capability and thus its total power. We suspect that just the opposite is true. Opinion polls that show labor leaders generally are held in relatively low esteem, even among hourly workers, suggest that organizing efforts would have benefitted from greater concern about ridding organized labor of its sharp operators.

We hope that the Chicago action is a signal that the NLRB is finally aware that it is supposed to be administering a federal act that was meant to protect working people, not union leaders. And we hope that it won't be inhibited from conducting further investigations, in other cities, because of embarrassment over having let such things go on for so long.

TODAY'S WORLD



"If George Fulton comes into your place, don't give him anything to eat."

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Visiting with relatives, the prof points out, is not recreating. Among those who no doubt will concur in this opinion are the host relatives.

The trouble is that descending on relatives this summer gives them an excuse for visiting you next year.

We say the time to stay with relatives is not when you get a vacation but when you lose your job.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Too Early Yet To Determine Whether Nixon Should Resign

WASHINGTON — There are thoughtful commentators — such as Stewart Alsop of Newsweek — who are already pressing the case that President Nixon should resign because of Watergate under almost any foreseeable circumstances.

This thesis makes sense — under one condition.

It makes sense if the stated premise is provable. The stated premise is that Richard Nixon cannot govern effectively because he has been so injured by Watergate and, therefore, should step down as soon as possible.

MY SENSE OF the matter is:

That if the President is found to have been actively involved in the White House coverup and is thus guilty of obstructing justice, he ought to resign promptly.

That if the President establishes that he is not so involved, there will be no need for him to resign and he shouldn't.

There seems to be evidence that he can govern effectively even if his prestige is diminished and that the country would want him to do so.

THE FOREMOST argument used to show that the power of the Presidency is so diminished that it can't function adequately is that Mr. Nixon could not muster the votes in either the Senate or the House to prevent Congress from passing the appropriation rider requiring an end to the bombing in Cambodia.

PUBLIC SUPPORT and congressional support for ending all U.S. military operations in Southeast Asia has been mounting steadily, and this action by Congress was only passingly related to Nixon's Watergate weakness.

It is true that Congress had the votes to pass antibombing riders over and over again.

But the President had the votes in the House to keep upholding his vetoes.

IN THE END both sides got what they wanted. The President got a six-week extension of bombing authority. Congress got the fixed date of Aug. 15 for terminating bombing.

This wasn't evidence of presidential paralysis, as some called it. It was evidence of governing effectively. Democratic Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield went so far as to call it congressional "capitulation."

Call it anything you want, but it wasn't presidential capitulation as it would have been if President Nixon had not vetoed it the first time.

THE SECOND MAIN argument used to support the proposition that the President must resign because he can't govern comes from the dubious view that since the Democrats in Congress have Nixon down, they are going to keep him there.

"From now on," it is argued, "any White Huse proposal is likely to be fought on The Hill just because it comes from the White House."

I CAN'T SAY the Democrats won't try. But think about it a little and see how you like it. Do you relish the idea of the Democratically controlled Congress fighting every proposal the President makes regardless of its merits, regardless of how it would serve the country? If that idea does not sound very good to you, it is likely not to sound very good to many other voters. What I am saying is that public distaste will provide a deterrent to this kind of narrow-visioned, the-country-be-damned partisan politics.

It wouldn't be smart politics. It would be very unwise politics.

IF THE ONLY way to keep the President from governing effectively during the next three-and-a-half years is for the Democratic Congress to act irresponsibly by trying to strike down proposals he makes regardless of merit, I think most Americans will hope Mr. Nixon does not resign.

The Watergate evidence is not in. Whether the President has to resign will rightly await the verdict of the judicial, the senatorial and the public jury.

Monument To Honor America Should Focus On Preservation

WASHINGTON — The people who brought you Honor America Day three years ago in opposition to opponents of the Indochina war now have a more concrete idea. They want to honor America on our 200th national birthday by building a West Coast edition of the Statue of Liberty. They think it would look nice on Alcatraz Island.

IN SERIOUSNESS, the American Historic and Cultural Society, which is what Billy Graham, Bob Hope, Hot Shoppes magnate J. Billard Marriott and Reader's Digest publisher Hobart Lewis call their collective, has made a positive proposal for a monument to the fact that our republic has lasted this long.

Their suggestion far outclasses anything that has come out of the presidentially appointed Bicentennial Commission, since the commission's main activity has been franchising this and that to keep politically friendly entrepreneurs happy.

BUT BEING NOT so bad does not mean it is particularly good, especially if it is allowed to distract public attention and funds from bicentennial efforts that have more meaning.

The theme of the monumental proposal would be peace. San Francisco is logical for that because it was the birthplace of the United Nations. Just what would be an appropriate symbol is a matter for public discussion, the group's spokesmen say.

Nobody is wedded to duplicating the Statue of Liberty in San Francisco Bay, although that or something similar is one possibility. There also is talk of a huge, distantly visible display of beacons, or a museum of peace instead of the typical war museum. Your suggestion will be welcome.

WHATEVER IS decided on, however, is going to be open to the kind of respectful criticism the original Honor America Day heard from Rennie Davis, the erstwhile schoolwrecker and demonstration organizer.

After the July 4, 1970, program was disclosed to include a morning religious service at the Lincoln Memorial, a fireworks display at the Washington Monument, and a procession of safe and sane big-name entertainers, Davis laid down a list of or-else demands.

HE WANTED THE Washington Monument painted all the colors of the rainbow, to "symbolize more unity than only shades of red, white and blue." He wanted the banners of the Viet Cong and "other liberated peoples" to have a place among the American Flags in the planned parade, and he wanted Allen Ginsberg, the poet of Om, to co-direct religious services with the Rev. Dr. Graham.

Although the organizers feigned patience with Davis and held several conferences on the matter, they disappointed him, he went away mad, and a relative handful of his soulmates tried to disrupt the big celebration.

ADMITTEDLY, THINGS have calmed down a bit since the summer of '70, but there is no way the Graham-Hope-Marriott-Lewis outfit is going to devise any monument that suits everybody, not even if they run a national referendum on it. Never mind Rennie Davis and whether he objects or not; I doubt that they can settle on anything that will speak for both you and me.

Should these gentlemen like to erect such a monument privately and not pretend it represented us all, that would be their privilege. But they are considering raising money from the country at large, and in truth the country at large has better things to spend its bicentennial contributions on — things Billy Graham and Allen Ginsberg both might approve.

IF THERE IS to be a time when the word "preservation" can shed the kooky, backward connotation the lumber, coal and real estate flacks have tried to give it, that time will be our 200th national birthday. Then, if ever, all kinds of us will be able to see the importance of preserving what is left of our deep past in both countryside and cities.

There are myriad monuments that honor America already standing but in danger of destruction in the name of progress, or for bald profits. They are not in a single city but in all of them, in each town and in the very hills and valleys. Their preservation is a bicentennial objective that can be bright with meaning for every American, for the entire rainbow of ideologies, races and regions.

DEDICATION TO protecting or renovating them, often converting them to useful community roles, is a way of tying our past to our future. And if it costs money, surely some hotel-restaurant tycoon will consider his contribution partial penance for helping pave the country with parking lots. A lot of us would eagerly chip in.

Summer Tour Can End In Nightmare

Marin has its share of young people who will be heading overseas this summer with not much more than a pack on their backs and vague dreams of glamor and adventure in the rural byways of Europe, Asia, and Africa.

A grand tour of Europe on just a few dollars a day, with travel guidebooks to egg them on, is almost irresistible to the young American from suburbia who is bored with easy living and eager to prove to himself and to the world that he can stand on his own two feet without relying on daily handouts from affluent parents.

BUT TRUDGING through a foreign and often hostile land, bent over from a 50-pound pack, with nothing but blistered feet to rely upon can quickly turn romantic dreams into a nightmare.

The rude awakening experienced by a California College coed who toured Europe on the cheap is described by Janet Chase in a special article to the Christian Science Monitor this month. Here are some of her experiences:

NOT WANTING TO tie herself down to a specific return date, she only booked a one-way charter. Her student travel adviser assured her she would have no difficulty booking a return charter flight at any time. Unfortunately, last year, such flights leaving Europe were grounded daily for infractions of charter laws, and many companies cancelled their own flights.

"Thus I spent much of my summer camped in student travel bureaus across the continent, trying to find a way home. There were times, before I wired home for the $300 to book a flight on my regularly scheduled carrier, when I thought I would wander aimless through Europe."

HOTELS DESCRIBED in glowing terms turned out to be little dumps with paint and dirt flaking off the walls, food on the floor, and a single mattress for three girls.

She spent one night on a train, trying to sleep on a swaying metal luggage rack high above the rest of the passengers. On another run, she was awakened by another traveler who tried to pitch her and her belongings out the window because she was occupying his seat.

She talks of frail, teen-aged girls wandering the streets of Leningrad in a daze, their passports in the hands of the Soviet Government, or pursued down dark streets by a rifle-toting man.

HER ADVICE IS clear: Don't venture abroad until you have saved twice the money originally planned; take guidebooks, if at all, with lots of salt and skepticism; and see half the countries that were considered "musts" on the itinerary. Most important of all, secure round-trip passage beforehand.

Undoubtedly some Americans youths have "roughed it" through Europe with little or no adverse consequences. More power to them. But for the majority, dreams of a romantic summer of '73 could turn into horrible nightmares or worse. They would do well to heed the warnings from a young voice of experience.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Court Ruling Is Unfair Toward Parochial School

By RUS WALTON

About 407,000 children attend nonpublic institutions in this state. Not all of those 2197 schools are religious. There are some 309,000 students in 796 Catholic schools, and 61,000 in schools of other faiths.

The recent rulings by the U.S. Supreme Court hit the parents of those children right in the bank account. The Court held that tax credits and tuition reimbursements for such education are unconstitutional.

THE COURT'S RULING undoubtedly will outlaw the 1972 California statues granting $125 tax credits to parents of children attending parochial schools. The rulings may also halt the state's practice of each year distributing $1.5 million-worth of textbooks to those schools.

There should, indeed, be a strong and lasting separation of church and state; a strict government neutrality toward religion.

And, that is why those recent Court decisions do violence to religious freedom in this nation. The rulings are not neutral; they rig the scales against those who send their children to religious schools.

WHERE IS THE neutrality when Ceasar erects extra burdens and undue hurdles for those who send their children to nonpublic schools? The forces of the state are arrayed against them. Not only must they pay ever-increasing taxes to support public schools they do not use, they must also find the money for the private school.

That is not fair; that is a kind of double taxation that comes close to persecution.

THERE ARE THOSE who contend that if religious schooling means so much to some parents they should be willing to make the sacrifice and pay the cost.

That makes sense except that today Ceasar's excessive taxation wipes out those extra family funds. Under the Court's decision, only the wealthy are left with free choice; the lower and middle class parents will be forced to take the educational pap dispensed at Ceasar's trough.

OPPONENTS OF TAX credits argue they should not be forced to support religious schools. Agreed. By the same token, and in the same spirit of neutrality, those who send their children to parochial schools should not be compelled to give full support to the public system.

Classroom costs for public education average about $900 per child, in the elementary and secondary grades. If the 407,000 private school students were suddenly dumped on California's public system, it would cost taxpayers another $365 million a year - not including capital expenses for additional classrooms and other facilities.

IF I WERE involved with a parochial school, if I could afford to send my kids to a private institution, I would not want it to accept state subsidies or support. State control follows state funds and that would be too high a price to pay. It would, in fact, defeat the whole purpose of sending a child to a private school.

But, there must be an equitable neutrality for those who do send their kids to nonpublic schools. They take a weight off of our backs; we should find a way to take some of the weight off of theirs. The Court fails in this.

WHAT IS AT stake here is not just separation of church and state. Many parents send their children to private school for educational excellence and moral training; things not always available in today's public system. To them religious training is a bonus, not necessarily the prime motivation. But, like so many cases in today's lock-step society, they are penalized for being "different."

What is at issue here is also equity and the question of coercion. The Court has enforced economic sanctions that leaves hundreds of thousands of California parents no choice but to allow the state to bend their twigs and aim their arrows.

Let People Vote On Building Moratorium

At the last water bond election I voted against the bond because I had read arguments that the proposal was wasteful of money and we would be too dependent upon the control of some northern body for the supply of the water. Following the defeat of the bond measure it was surprising to read that the general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District interpreted the rejection as a pronouncement by the voters that they did not want further population growth. This was a completely irresponsible judgement by the manager which makes me wonder about his ability to direct the water district.

Our problem is we are getting population growth and water supply mixed together when they should be separate issues.

Because the administrators of our water supply have been unable to present a favorable plan for our long term water supply, and our sources of supply are inadequate for the existing population, work should begin immediately on smaller projects such as the North Marin Intertie, which was approved by the voters in 1970.

Population growth is a matter for the County Planning Department. I myself would like to see all the existing open spaces in Marin set aside for preservation. However, not permitting any further building in Marin County is tremendously important to the prosperity of Marin County, and it should be decided at the polls by the general public — not by the board of supervisors, not by the PG&E because of an energy shortage, and not by the Marin Municipal Water District because it has failed to keep pace with the needs of the district.

Removal Of Grass Should Be Enforced

Why is it that the City of San Rafael sends out notices that all dry grass between the sidewalks and curbstone MUST be removed by the property owners within ten days or the City will remove same and bill the property owner. I, as a property owner, agree with this procedure, but only if it applies to all property owners.

When I receive my notice, I rush down and remove this dry grass, then for the next THREE MONTHS I look at other property in this same neighborhood who DO NOT have their dry grass removed.

I made the mistake one year, due to being ill for a week, of not removing all the dead grass, within ten days. I had planned to remove the last six square feet the following Saturday, but I was too late — the City came by on Friday . . . I was billed $35 for work I could have done myself in one hour.

NLRB Should Aid People Not The Union Leaders

In charging Chicago Teamsters Local 705 with "sheer racketeering" in organizing service station operators and employes, a National Labor Relations Board examiner expressed amazement at how long all this had been going on.

The examiner, Stanley N. Ohlbaum, said that the local had been extracting "union contracts" from station operators which mainly required that the operators pay money to the local. Since the union controlled gasoline deliveries to the stations it didn't have much difficulty extracting the agreements, an NLRB investigation found.

Mr. Ohlbaum, who should properly be called an "administrative law judge," said the local's practices "may have flourished for 15 years or more and involved perhaps 10,000 service station employes." They were so "flagrant, egregious, widespread and long-continued as to arouse wonderment. . . why the multiple arms of the law have been so long withheld."

We share in that wonderment. We also suspect that several unions have been getting by with similar strong-arm tactics in a good many other places for even more than 15 years.

We also have a few theories on why this has been possible. One is that the Department of Labor and the NLRB has been more intent upon responding to pressures from the labor establishment — in other words, the officers of international unions, the AFL-CIO and powerful locals — than in protecting the rights and interests of working men and women.

And while we don't think that the labor establishment is fundamentally corrupt, it has been less than diligent about taking its own steps to police union practices. No doubt this has been a result of a misguided assumption that to do so would weaken labor's organizing capability and thus its total power. We suspect that just the opposite is true. Opinion polls that show labor leaders generally are held in relatively low esteem, even among hourly workers, suggest that organizing efforts would have benefitted from greater concern about ridding organized labor of its sharp operators.

We hope that the Chicago action is a signal that the NLRB is finally aware that it is supposed to be administering a federal act that was meant to protect working people, not union leaders. And we hope that it won't be inhibited from conducting further investigations, in other cities, because of embarrassment over having let such things go on for so long.

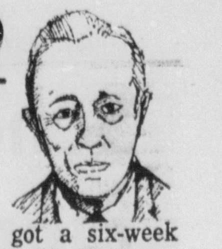
Visiting with relatives, the prof points out, is not recreating. Among those who no doubt will concur in this opinion are the host relatives.

The trouble is that descending on relatives this summer gives them an excuse for visiting you next year.

We say the time to stay with relatives is not when you get a vacation but when you lose your job.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND



Too Early Yet To Determine Whether Nixon Should Resign

WASHINGTON — There are thoughtful commentators — such as Stewart Alsop of Newsweek — who are already pressing the case that President Nixon should resign because of Watergate under almost any foreseeable circumstances.

This thesis makes sense — under one condition.

It makes sense if the stated premise is provable. The stated premise is that Richard Nixon cannot govern effectively because he has been so injured by Watergate and, therefore, should step down as soon as possible.

MY SENSE OF the matter is:

That if the President is found to have been actively involved in the White House coverup and is thus guilty of obstructing justice, he ought to resign promptly.

That if the President establishes that he is not so involved, there will be no need for him to resign and he shouldn't.

There seems to be evidence that he can govern effectively even if his prestige is diminished and that the country would want him to do so.

THE FOREMOST argument used to show that the power of the Presidency is so diminished that it can't function adequately is that Mr. Nixon could not muster the votes in either the Senate or the House to prevent Congress from passing the appropriation rider requiring an end to the bombing in Cambodia.

PUBLIC SUPPORT and congressional support for ending all U.S. military operations in Southeast Asia has been mounting steadily, and this action by Congress was only passingly related to Nixon's Watergate weakness.

It is true that Congress had the votes to pass antibombing riders over and over again.

But the President had the votes in the House to keep upholding his vetoes.

IN THE END both sides got what they wanted. The President got a six-week extension of bombing authority. Congress got the fixed date of Aug. 15 for terminating bombing.

This wasn't evidence of presidential paralysis, as some called it. It was evidence of governing effectively. Democratic Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield went so far as to call it congressional "capitulation."

Call it anything you want, but it wasn't presidential capitulation as it would have been if President Nixon had not vetoed it the first time.

THE SECOND MAIN argument used to support the proposition that the President must resign because he can't govern comes from the dubious view that since the Democrats in Congress have Nixon down, they are going to keep him there.

"From now on," it is argued, "any White Huse proposal is likely to be fought on The Hill just because it comes from the White House."

I CAN'T SAY the Democrats won't try. But think about it a little and see how you like it. Do you relish the idea of the Democratically controlled Congress fighting every proposal the President makes regardless of its merits, regardless of how it would serve the country? If that idea does not sound very good to you, it is likely not to sound very good to many other voters. What I am saying is that public distaste will provide a deterrent to this kind of narrow-visioned, the-country-be-damned partisan politics.

It wouldn't be smart politics. It would be very unwise politics.

IF THE ONLY way to keep the President from governing effectively during the next three-and-a-half years is for the Democratic Congress to act irresponsibly by trying to strike down proposals he makes regardless of merit, I think most Americans will hope Mr. Nixon does not resign.

The Watergate evidence is not in. Whether the President has to resign will rightly await the verdict of the judicial, the senatorial and the public jury.

Bales Has Fences To Mend— Like One To Contain His Dog

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales may have some fence mending to do in his own neighborhood, if he decides to run next year for reelection.

Some of the other residents of Harbor Estates in eastern San Rafael are miffed that the county's chief law enforcer "sat on his front porch and watched the kids shoot off fireworks" on the Fourth of July, without doing anything about the illegal activity.

One of the illegal fireworks started a small fire, even, according to San Rafael Fire Department records.

Supposedly, some of the fireworks were being peddled from an auto trunk by an enterprising youngster, but police explained to callers that either the police personally must see the transaction taking place, or a citizen would have to sign a complaint before an arrest could be made.

ANOTHER BURR under the neighborhood saddle blanket is the Bales family dog. It's a big, black friendly Labrador retriever that gets along happily with youngsters, but leaves its calling cards and digs horrendous divots in the neighbors' gardens.

When Bales was asked if he couldn't keep the dog home, he reported, "What do you want me to do . . . take my own dog to court?"

Perhaps the first fence Mister District Attorney should tend to is one to contain that dog . . .

SAN RAFAEL City Fathers will tackle the dog problem at the council meeting Monday evening. They will be presented a new animal control ordinance by City Mgr. William J. Bielser, providing a new definition of leash law, restraints on dogs chasing wildlife, procedure for handling vicious animals and limiting the number of pets in single family residences and apartments.

Their action follows on the heels of Mill Valley, where a citizen committee put hours of thought and quite a number of meetings into the problem. San Anselmo also is working on revising the dog ordinance there.

ALL THIS WORK is being done because citizens are complaining that some dog owners won't take the responsibility for making sure their pets are good neighbors.

One Glenwood area resident carries a scoop in one hand, for cleaning up any mess his dog may make while he's being walked on a leash. In the other hand, the dog walker carries a big stick — to fend off the neighborhood dogs that can't seem to resist attacking his standard poodle. The dog must feel like little boys of years ago whose mothers insisted in putting them in Lord Fauntleroy suits that all the neighborhood toughies just loved to mess up.

Citizen Group Critical Of City Design Standard

The San Rafael Planning Commission has done a poor job of maintaining high architectural standards in the city, Greater Picnic Valley Neighborhood Association charged this week. Association members agreed on Wednesday that the city agency has shown a "singular lack of enthusiasm" for developing quality architectural controls, according to Association President John Palunco.

Palunco, pointing to what he called the "hodge podge construction" along Lindaro and Jordan streets, said the group wants a city design review board to ensure high architectural standards in the future.

He said such a board would act as a "filter" by reviewing development proposals before they are aired before the planning commission. The association will forward its suggestion to the city council.

The recently-formed association, which has already taken an active role in local affairs, next meets at 7:30 p.m. July 23 at 160 Bungalow Avenue, Palunco said.

Joint Meeting Of Supervisors Slated Monday

Marin and Sonoma County supervisors will meet jointly Monday to discuss flood control and flood plan zoning along Petaluma and San Antonio Creeks which divide the two counties.

The meeting is set for 4 p.m. at the Sonoma County Administration Building in Santa Rosa.

The two boards previously were expected to discuss traffic problems related to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire site as well.

However, Sonoma County officials filed suit Wednesday in Marin Superior Court to block Marin's approval of the fair, to be staged on lands near the Sonoma County line on Highway 101.

Railroad Accident Kills Four Workers

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — A 104-car Union Pacific freight train plowed into a railroad crew carrying old railroad ties across a main line track yesterday, killing four men and injuring two.

Bastille Day

The dread Bastille was a fortress in the heart of Paris, used as a prison until the late 18th Century. Political prisoners were held there without trial, and it became a symbol of oppression. On July 14th, the people of Paris stormed the Bastille, killed the Governor, and liberated the seven prisoners held at the time. The hated building was torn down. Tom Paine sent the key as a present to George Washington. The site of the Bastille is now marked by a bronze column. By itself, the taking of the Bastille was of minor national importance, but it marked the beginning of the French Revolution. The anniversary is celebrated as a national holiday in France.

DO YOU KNOW — In which year was the Bastille taken?

Peasants Are Good And Sore About Salary Hike In Brasilia

The performance in the throne room (now, also known as the gold room) out at Brasilia, is something to boggle the mind and no mistake. The gents performing under the baton of le Bapteste are showing the advanced symptoms of believing they are the real gentry of Marin with the rest of you the peasants, who are just more than delighted to pungle up the coin for them to play around with.

THE STORY Jack Craemer presented in his "Editor's Note Book" last Saturday about Giacomini's administrative assistant, ne, campaign manager is a case in point. I hope you read it. It told the tale in short plain statements of fact, which should make Giacomini and the rest of le Bapteste's crew look for a place to hide. Not them; 'tis not for the gentry to be concerned.

The peasants who have been aware of the brazen deal are anything but delighted. They are darn good and sore. In addition to the lack of principle involved, there is a dollar angle I think you will be interested in. Have a look:

TO BEGIN WITH they raised themselves from $1,100 a month to $1,400 and voted his lady assistant a salary of $960. This is to be financed by deducting $250 from his $1,400 and $710 from general funds. This means that you will be paying $1,860 for two people to do the job he was elected to do himself.

Now, here is the cost (basic salary to which must be added the fringe benefits) per month for the gents and the lady: $1,860 for district 4 and $1,400 for each of the other four districts or a total per month of $7,460. By the year this comes to $89,520.

COMPARE:

For the four years ending 1960 we received $400 a month or $4,800 a year each — for the next four years we each received $500 per month or $6,000 a year — for all five $30,000 — For that we dug in and were on top of the job we were elected to do.

There is a quirk in the state law which could throw them for a loss. It goes like this: Up until the voters voted (state wide) that the legislature and the boards of supervisors could set their own salaries, there was a provision that no member of a board of supervisors could receive a greater salary than the other.

NOW, IF THAT was not repealed when the voters granted the right to set their own salaries, what this board has attempted can't be done in the manner they are trying to do it. On the other hand, if it was repealed automatically when the voters gave the boards the power to fix their own salary, it looks like the following could occur:

At budget time any three members of a board could vote themselves a raise only . . . or after the budget had been adopted four members could lower the salary of the fifth member, to work him over.

ANYHOW YOU can't rule out an old pro like me for wondering about it can you?

Marin City Group's Abolition Challenged

The Marin City Council — representing occupants of the public housing project there — will seek to reestablish the citizens' advisory committee on redevelopment matters, abolished by the Marin County Redevelopment Agency in May.

Council spokesman Nesbit Crutchfield said that after meetings Monday and Tuesday his group decided to seek clarification from the Department of Housing and Urban Development on the legality of the redevelopment agency operating without such a committee advising it on housing matters.

Crutchfield called allegations made by the redevelopment agency board when it abolished the committee invalid, and said council representatives will meet with board members to discuss reinstatement of the committee.

The redevelopment board on dissolving the committee charged that the 11-member group mismanaged its affairs, failed to fulfill its goals and was inoperable due to internal dissension.

The allegations came after a preliminary federal audit uncovered improper expenditure of $1,905 for a three-day training retreat attended by eight committee representatives.

Brazil's two large population areas, Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, have a combined population of about 13 million people.

GOP Aide Bares Campaign Trick

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A consultant to the Assembly Republican caucus said today he secretly provided $700 to $800 to Peace and Freedom party candidates last year in hopes of drawing votes away from Democratic candidates.

Frank Delong said the money was distributed in cash and money orders in order to "conceal the fact" that it was coming from Republican party sources.

The office of Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. has said the contributions involved apparent "violations of law" because of failure to report the payments in post-election campaign spending reports.

DeLong said in an interview the money was given to him by Jerry Simpson, an aide to then Republican Assembly leader Robert T. Monagan of Tracy. Monagan has since left the legislature to join the Department of Transportation Nixon administration.

DeLong was prevented from talking to reporters earlier by the current Assembly Republican leader Robert Beverly of Manhattan Beach.

DeLong said he received permission to talk to the news media about the case following Tuesday's special Assembly election in San Joaquin County narrowly won by Republican Doug Carter, a former aide to Monagan.

DeLong said he maintained his silence through the election so as not to "disrupt" it.

He stated he provided $192 for the filing fee of Peace and Freedom candidate Charles J. Vail of Concord in the primary election. The general election was won by Assemblyman Daniel E. Boatwright, DConcord. D-Concord.

Additional funds were provided to insure that Vail successfully qualified for the ballot, DeLong said.

The Republican aide, who is still employed by the caucus, said he also provided funds for the campaign of Peace and Freedom candidate Ramon P. Solomon of Santa Rosa in the district now represented by Barry Keene, D-Santa Rosa.

DeLong denied a report quoting him as saying money was also given to the Peace and Freedom party in the San Jose district of Democratic Assemblyman John Vasconcellos.

DeLong said he did not originate the idea of the contributions.

"I was the plumber," he declared. "The whole operation was very off-the-cuff, something I squeezed in."

New Budget Is Adopted By Chamber

A $28,570 budget for fiscal 1973-74 was adopted yesterday at a general membership meeting of the Novato Chamber of Commerce.

Committees were appointed and a work program for the coming year was approved.

The main sources of revenue for the chamber are $14,500 from dues and $11,600 from the Novato city business tax. Other smaller items such as interest and reserves make up the balance.

The budget calls for $15,650 in administration expenses; $7,220 in operating expenses and $5,700 in promotion.

Committees and chairmen named were: airport, and youth education, Phillip Coady; downtown parking and traffic, Skip Fenner; economic development, Joseph Wright; membership Norman T. Lawrence; military affairs, Ralph Wanderer; retail, Eugene Womack and sign ordinance, Clarence Cook.

The members adopted an 18-point work program for the coming year. Among them are continued good relations with the city, promotion of Gnoss Field and working with Hamilton Air Force Base, promotion of retail business and new industrial and commercial development, support of Indian Valley Colleges and Western Weekend, increasing chamber membership, uniform enforcement of city business license fees and promotion of a youth education program.

It also approved a $2,000 expansion of the Christmas decorations with the city paying $1,000 and the chamber $1,000.

It set 12:30 p.m. July 22 for dedication of a memorial plaque at Pioneer Memorial Park to M/Sgt. Robert L. Hill, Novato's only missing in action serviceman.

Municipal Judge Gets A Promotion

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday named Municipal Court Judge Richard P. Calhoun of Walnut Creek to the Contra Costa County Superior Court bench.

Calhoun, 43, a Republican, replaces the late Judge Joseph Genser. He will receive an annual salary of $36,393.

Bales Has Fences To Mend— Like One To Contain His Dog

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales may have some fence mending to do in his own neighborhood, if he decides to run next year for reelection.

Some of the other residents of Harbor Estates in eastern San Rafael are miffed that the county's chief law enforcer "sat on his front porch and watched the kids shoot off fireworks" on the Fourth of July, without doing anything about the illegal activity.

One of the illegal fireworks started a small fire, even, according to San Rafael Fire Department records.

Supposedly, some of the fireworks were being peddled from an auto trunk by an enterprising youngster, but police explained to callers that either the police personally must see the transaction taking place, or a citizen would have to sign a complaint before an arrest could be made.

ANOTHER BURR under the neighborhood saddle blanket is the Bales family dog. It's a big, black friendly Labrador retriever that gets along happily with youngsters, but leaves its calling cards and digs horrendous divots in the neighbors' gardens.

When Bales was asked if he couldn't keep the dog home, he reported, "What do you want me to do . . . take my own dog to court?"

Perhaps the first fence Mister District Attorney should tend to is one to contain that dog . . .

SAN RAFAEL City Fathers will tackle the dog problem at the council meeting Monday evening. They will be presented a new animal control ordinance by City Mgr. William J. Bielser, providing a new definition of leash law, restraints on dogs chasing wildlife, procedure for handling vicious animals and limiting the number of pets in single family residences and apartments.

Their action follows on the heels of Mill Valley, where a citizen committee put hours of thought and quite a number of meetings into the problem. San Anselmo also is working on revising the dog ordinance there.

ALL THIS WORK is being done because citizens are complaining that some dog owners won't take the responsibility for making sure their pets are good neighbors.

One Glenwood area resident carries a scoop in one hand, for cleaning up any mess his dog may make while he's being walked on a leash. In the other hand, the dog walker carries a big stick — to fend off the neighborhood dogs that can't seem to resist attacking his standard poodle. The dog must feel like little boys of years ago whose mothers insisted in putting them in Lord Fauntleroy suits that all the neighborhood toughies just loved to mess up.

Peasants Are Good And Sore About Salary Hike In Brasilia

The performance in the throne room (now, also known as the gold room) out at Brasilia, is something to boggle the mind and no mistake. The gents performing under the baton of le Bapteste are showing the advanced symptoms of believing they are the real gentry of Marin with the rest of you the peasants, who are just more than delighted to pungle up the coin for them to play around with.

THE STORY Jack Craemer presented in his "Editor's Note Book" last Saturday about Giacomini's administrative assistant, ne, campaign manager is a case in point. I hope you read it. It told the tale in short plain statements of fact, which should make Giacomini and the rest of le Bapteste's crew look for a place to hide. Not them; 'tis not for the gentry to be concerned.

The peasants who have been aware of the brazen deal are anything but delighted. They are darn good and sore. In addition to the lack of principle involved, there is a dollar angle I think you will be interested in. Have a look:

TO BEGIN WITH they raised themselves from $1,100 a month to $1,400 and voted his lady assistant a salary of $960. This is to be financed by deducting $250 from his $1,400 and $710 from general funds. This means that you will be paying $1,860 for two people to do the job he was elected to do himself.

Now, here is the cost (basic salary to which must be added the fringe benefits) per month for the gents and the lady: $1,860 for district 4 and $1,400 for each of the other four districts or a total per month of $7,460. By the year this comes to $89,520.

COMPARE:

For the four years ending 1960 we received $400 a month or $4,800 a year each — for the next four years we each received $500 per month or $6,000 a year — for all five $30,000 — For that we dug in and were on top of the job we were elected to do.

There is a quirk in the state law which could throw them for a loss. It goes like this: Up until the voters voted (state wide) that the legislature and the boards of supervisors could set their own salaries, there was a provision that no member of a board of supervisors could receive a greater salary than the other.

NOW, IF THAT was not repealed when the voters granted the right to set their own salaries, what this board has attempted can't be done in the manner they are trying to do it. On the other hand, if it was repealed automatically when the voters gave the boards the power to fix their own salary, it looks like the following could occur:

At budget time any three members of a board could vote themselves a raise only . . . or after the budget had been adopted four members could lower the salary of the fifth member, to work him over.

ANYHOW YOU can't rule out an old pro like me for wondering about it can you?

Citizen Group Critical Of City Design Standard

The San Rafael Planning Commission has done a poor job of maintaining high architectural standards in the city, Greater Picnic Valley Neighborhood Association charged this week. Association members agreed on Wednesday that the city agency has shown a "singular lack of enthusiasm" for developing quality architectural controls, according to Association President John Paluno.

Palunco, pointing to what he called the "hodge podge construction" along Lindaro and Jordan streets, said the group wants a city design review board to ensure high architectural standards in the future.

He said such a board would act as a "filter" by reviewing development proposals before they are aired before the planning commission. The association will forward its suggestion to the city council.

The recently-formed association, which has already taken an active role in local affairs, next meets at 7:30 p.m. July 23 at 160 Bungalow Avenue, Palunco said.

Joint Meeting Of Supervisors Slated Monday

Marin and Sonoma County supervisors will meet jointly Monday to discuss flood control and flood plan zoning along Petaluma and San Antonio Creeks which divide the two counties.

The meeting is set for 4 p.m. at the Sonoma County Administration Building in Santa Rosa.

The two boards previously were expected to discuss traffic problems related to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire site as well.

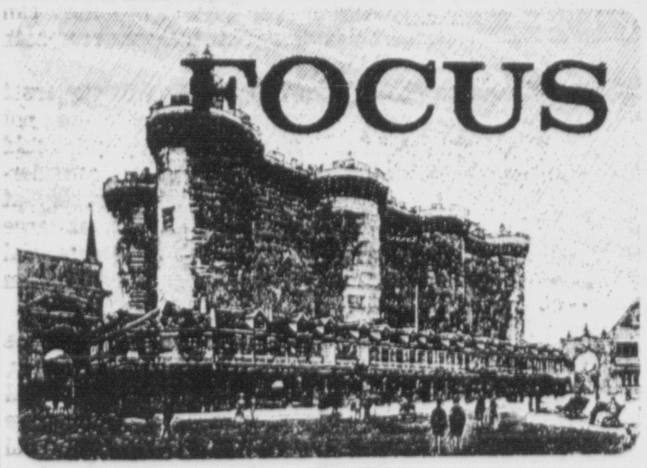
However, Sonoma County officials filed suit Wednesday in Marin Superior Court to block Marin's approval of the fair, to be staged on lands near the Sonoma County line on Highway 101.

Railroad Accident Kills Four Workers

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — A 104-car Union Pacific freight train plowed into a railroad crew carrying old railroad ties across a main line track yesterday, killing four men and injuring two.

"I just don't believe it—I just don't believe it," said one crewman who narrowly escaped being hit.

FOCUS



Bastille Day

The dread Bastille was a fortress in the heart of Paris, used as a prison until the late 18th Century. Political prisoners were held there without trial, and it became a symbol of oppression. On July 14th, the people of Paris stormed the Bastille, killed the Governor, and liberated the seven prisoners held at the time. The hated building was torn down. Tom Paine sent the key as a present to George Washington. The site of the Bastille is now marked by a bronze column. By itself, the taking of the Bastille was of minor national importance, but it marked the beginning of the French Revolution. The anniversary is celebrated as a national holiday in France.

DO YOU KNOW — In which year was the Bastille taken?

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Ondine's Provides Excellent Food With Ideal Exposure Of The Bay

Sometimes I wonder what the cooks of other countries were doing all the while the French masters were experimenting with so many combinations and methods of preparing food.

You'd think that roasting and serving a chicken, for example, would be just an ordinary procedure, with maybe two or three different ways of doing it. Not with the French. I counted 29 in one of their cookbooks, and quite possibly there were still more in another chapter that I missed.

One of the traditional preparations is "poulet de grain mascotte," which calls for it to be glazed with a light sauce (a veal sauce, usually) and served with very small Parisienne potatoes (rolled in a glaze), along with artichoke hearts. The recipe sounds simple. But there are a lot of little tricks not written down which probably only a Frenchman knows by heart, to turn it out as the outstanding dish it is meant to be.

Alfred Roblin is one Frenchman who does. He's chef and a co-owner of Ondine in Sausalito. Poulet de grain mascotte is one of a dozen or so of his suggested gourmet items on the menu. It comes through as a delightful choice anytime. Pick a good wine to go with it - say a Muscadet - and you feel like you're sitting on top of the world.

What goes along with the food at Ondine is a mighty fine view across the bay, excellent service and a lot of nice looking people at the other tables for company.

If I seem enthused, I can't help it. I get carried away by these things.

Just to set the records straight, you don't have to be guided by those gourmet suggestions. The menu is quite a varied one.

LOOKING FOR a new place to eat?

Now open about a month in Sausalito is the Sausalito Food Co. Restaurant at 305 Harbor Drive.

This is a venture of Mario Garcia of Sausalito and Donald Miles of Mill Valley, with Mario as the managing operator. He was in the restaurant business before in Connecticut and also in the catering business in Sausalito.

The place is the former location of the Gate 5 Restaurant, but it has been completely redecorated with plants, antiques and memorabilia from far away places.

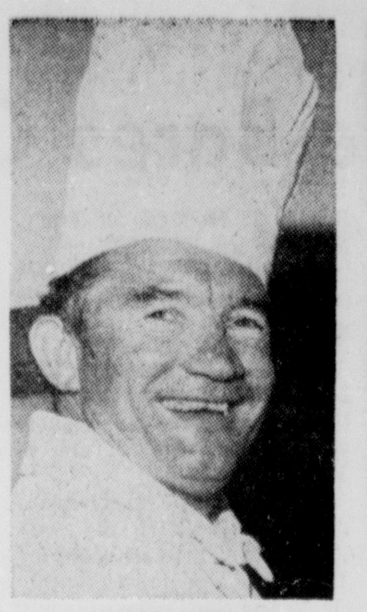
Breakfast-brunch is served from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is on the European style.

Dinners are from 5:30 to 10 p.m. at just one price — $4.25. This includes soup, salad and dessert. There is no menu, but dinner includes a choice of four to six entrees which may be fresh seafoods, shortribs, hamhocks or other meat dishes, also a paste, rice dish or noodles and vegetables.

The owners have applied for a wine and beer license.

IS IT JUST MY IMAGINATION or are the acoustics better at Sabella's cocktail lounge since its recent redecoration?

Talking to organist Bob Stewart, who is at the Baldwin console Tuesdays through Saturdays, he says he hasn't noticed the difference — but then he doesn't sit where I do to listen. I haven't checked with Gordon Tucker, there Sundays and Mondays. Anyway, the new wall paneling is very attractive and the Captain's Room is being opened up as part of the lounge, which always gets a big play from the customers.



ALFRED ROBLIN

BOB STEWART
New sound?

One of these days you can expect to see an announcement about another Sabella's restaurant farther north. The Sabella family has purchased a choice 101 Highway location up in Sonoma County — about six acres, I think Lou said. More about this when plans are a little more advanced. A lot of details have to be worked out.

THIS WEEKEND you will see banners flying from the new A and W Restaurant of John Brunner, Hugh Wilcox and James King at 3741 Redwood Highway in the Northgate area of San Rafael.

These are to draw attention to the restaurant's official grand opening festivities, which will go for a week through next Friday. It's actual opening was June 1, but tradition dictates that when restaurateurs feel they have conquered their initial problems, that is the time for a "grand opening." It's like tieing a broomstick to the mast when a ship passes final inspection.

The food's good here and take the youngsters with you — there will be something special for them. The restaurant is open seven days a week. Inside and on the outside patio it can accommodate about 120 and there's lots of offstreet parking space.

WINE BUFFS will find fascinating reading in the newest book of Marin's own authority on the grape, Leon Adams. His 465-page work, "The Wines of America" ranges through the viticulture of the southwest and middle Atlantic states, New England, the midwest, Pacific northwest, southwest and even Canada and Mexico. I'll bet you didn't know that wine is produced commercially in 25 other states besides California.

When you finish reading it you'll know just about everything on this subject. It's a San Francisco Book Co. — Houghton Mifflin publication.

LIKE TO MAKE a meal on snacks?

Then take in the International Folk Fair next weekend — July 20 through 22 — at Brooks Hall in San Francisco. You'll find food samples galore from all over the world. For the $2 admission (youngsters go in free if they're under 12) this alone is a good deal.

There will be Greek breads and cheese, Japanese, Philippine, Vietnamese, Mexican foods, along with Swiss fondue and Russian piroskis. Some other interesting features will be an Italian noddle machine in action, cooking lessons from the Northern Chinese Cooking School, the arrangement of Italian seafood dishes and Oriental soybean products that duplicate tastes ranging from pancakes to meats.

GOOD REPORTS continue to come in voluntarily about the Italian food served at the Ristorante Topalino, 2000 Bridgeway, Sausalito. Co-owner and chef Gino Lamonaco appears to be building up an excellent reputation. And it's a colorful little place — very attractive.

THERE'S A NICE DISPLAY of the paintings of Viennese-born Inge Travers of San Anselmo at the Executive Lounge in San Rafael — about 10 or 12, I think. She was trained in Europe, has been featured in several shows and is a member of the Western Society of Artists.

Fee Collections Total $5,628

The San Anselmo department of public works collected $5,628.04 in fees and service charges last month, the department announced today.

The total includes: $1,543.45 in building division fees, $330 in planning division fees and $3,754.59 in public works fees.

Sonoma State's Atmosphere Is A Major Factor

A survey form asking "Why are you coming to Sonoma State" was returned by 500 new students during the spring semester.

Nearly 25 per cent said their primary reason for college was to earn a degree while others said they wanted to prepare for a specific job. Another 12 per cent said they were drawn to Sonoma State because of the reputation of particular academic departments.

Another 26 per cent said they enrolled because of the desirable location and rural atmosphere of the campus. Survey results also showed that 18 per cent had no particular reason for choosing Sonoma State.

Exhibit Planned Of Brazilian Art

An exhibit of Brazilian folk art, including Latin American food and dancing, will be held at 8:30 p.m. today at 2670 Bridgeway in Sausalito.

The show will begin at 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, according to Diane Pope, president of Central Folklorico, sponsor of the event.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Ondine's Provides Excellent Food With Ideal Exposure Of The Bay

Sometimes I wonder what the cooks of other countries were doing all the while the French masters were experimenting with so many combinations and methods of preparing food.

You'd think that roasting and serving a chicken, for example, would be just an ordinary procedure, with maybe two or three different ways of doing it. Not with the French. I counted 29 in one of their cookbooks, and quite possibly there were still more in another chapter that I missed.

One of the traditional preparations is "poulet de grain mascotte," which calls for it to be glazed with a light sauce (a veal sauce, usually) and served with very small Parisienne potatoes (rolled in a glaze), along with artichoke hearts. The recipe sounds simple. But there are a lot of little tricks not written down which probably only a Frenchman knows by heart, to turn it out as the outstanding dish it is meant to be.

Alfred Roblin is one Frenchman who does. He's chef and a co-owner of Ondine in Sausalito. Poulet de grain mascotte is one of a dozen or so of his suggested gourmet items on the menu. It comes through as a delightful choice anytime. Pick a good wine to go with it - say a Muscadet - and you feel like you're sitting on top of the world.

What goes along with the food at Ondine is a mighty fine view across the bay, excellent service and a lot of nice looking people at the other tables for company.

If I seem enthused, I can't help it. I get carried away by these things.

Just to set the records straight, you don't have to be guided by those gourmet suggestions. The menu is quite a varied one.

LOOKING FOR a new place to eat?

Now open about a month in Sausalito is the Sausalito Food Co. Restaurant at 305 Harbor Drive.

This is a venture of Mario Garcia of Sausalito and Donald Miles of Mill Valley, with Mario as the managing operator. He was in the restaurant business before in Connecticut and also in the catering business in Sausalito.

The place is the former location of the Gate 5 Restaurant, but it has been completely redecorated with plants, antiques and memorabilia from far away places.

Breakfast-brunch is served from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is on the European style.

Dinners are from 5:30 to 10 p.m. at just one price — $4.25. This includes soup, salad and dessert. There is no menu, but dinner includes a choice of four to six entrees which may be fresh seafoods, shortribs, hamhocks or other meat dishes, also a paste, rice dish or noodles and vegetables.

The owners have applied for a wine and beer license.

IS IT JUST MY IMAGINATION or are the acoustics better at Sabella's cocktail lounge since its recent redecoration?

Talking to organist Bob Stewart, who is at the Baldwin console Tuesdays through Saturdays, he says he hasn't noticed the difference — but then he doesn't sit where I do to listen. I haven't checked with Gordon Tucker, there Sundays and Mondays. Anyway, the new wall paneling is very attractive and the Captain's Room is being opened up as part of the lounge, which always gets a big play from the customers.

BOB STEWART
New sound?

One of these days you can expect to see an announcement about another Sabella's restaurant farther north. The Sabella family has purchased a choice 101 Highway location up in Sonoma County — about six acres, I think Lou said. More about this when plans are a little more advanced. A lot of details have to be worked out.

THIS WEEKEND you will see banners flying from the new A and W Restaurant of John Brunner, Hugh Wilcox and James King at 3741 Redwood Highway in the Northgate area of San Rafael.

These are to draw attention to the restaurant's official grand opening festivities, which will go for a week through next Friday. It's actual opening was June 1, but tradition dictates that when restaurateurs feel they have conquered their initial problems, that is the time for a "grand opening." It's like tieing a broomstick to the mast when a ship passes final inspection.

The food's good here and take the youngsters with you — there will be something special for them. The restaurant is open seven days a week. Inside and on the outside patio it can accommodate about 120 and there's lots of offstreet parking space.

WINE BUFFS will find fascinating reading in the newest book of Marin's own authority on the grape, Leon Adams. His 465-page work, "The Wines of America" ranges through the viticulture of the southwest and middle Atlantic states, New England, the midwest, Pacific northwest, southwest and even Canada and Mexico. I'll bet you didn't know that wine is produced commercially in 25 other states besides California.

When you finish reading it you'll know just about everything on this subject. It's a San Francisco Book Co. — Houghton Mifflin publication.

LIKE TO MAKE a meal on snacks?

Then take in the International Folk Fair next weekend — July 20 through 22 — at Brooks Hall in San Francisco. You'll find food samples galore from all over the world. For the $2 admission (youngsters go in free if they're under 12) this alone is a good deal.

There will be Greek breads and cheese, Japanese, Philippine, Vietnamese, Mexican foods, along with Swiss fondue and Russian piroskis. Some other interesting features will be an Italian noddle machine in action, cooking lessons from the Northern Chinese Cooking School, the arrangement of Italian seafood dishes and Oriental soybean products that duplicate tastes ranging from pancakes to meats.

GOOD REPORTS continue to come in voluntarily about the Italian food served at the Ristorante Topalino, 2000 Bridgeway, Sausalito. Co-owner and chef Gino Lamonaco appears to be building up an excellent reputation. And it's a colorful little place — very attractive.

THERE'S A NICE DISPLAY of the paintings of Viennese-born Inge Travers of San Anselmo at the Executive Lounge in San Rafael — about 10 or 12, I think. She was trained in Europe, has been featured in several shows and is a member of the Western Society of Artists.

Fee Collections Total $5,628

The San Anselmo department of public works collected $5,628.04 in fees and service charges last month, the department announced today.

The total includes: $1,543.45 in building division fees, $330 in planning division fees and $3,754.59 in public works fees.

Sonoma State's Atmosphere Is A Major Factor

A survey form asking "Why are you coming to Sonoma State" was returned by 500 new students during the spring semester.

Nearly 25 per cent said their primary reason for college was to earn a degree while others said they wanted to prepare for a specific job. Another 12 per cent said they were drawn to Sonoma State because of the reputation of particular academic departments.

Another 26 per cent said they enrolled because of the desirable location and rural atmosphere of the campus. Survey results also showed that 18 per cent had no particular reason for choosing Sonoma State.

Exhibit Planned Of Brazilian Art

An exhibit of Brazilian folk art, including Latin American food and dancing, will be held at 8:30 p.m. today at 2670 Bridgeway in Sausalito.

The show will begin at 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, according to Diane Pope, president of Central Folklorico, sponsor of the event.

West Marin Neighbors Sue To Block Microwave Station

Two West Marin property owners have filed suit in Marin Superior Court to block construction of a proposed $6.8 million microwave relay station.

Benjamin P. Bonelli and the Frisco Land and Mining Co. filed the action Wednesday and asked a temporary restraining order and permanent injunction against American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which proposes to build the facility.

The suit contends that the AT&T property, 260 acres five miles west of Tomales Bay on the Marshall-Petaluma Road in an area known as Three Peaks, is bound by a deed restriction.

The restriction prohibits any use of the land other than recreational, agricultural or residential, with the maximum density of one single-family home per 10 acres, according to the suit.

AT&T has options on two parcels of land, 240 acres owned by the Pacific Bridge Co. and 20 by William E. Taggert Jr., the suit claims. Both the company and Taggert are named along with AT&T as codefendants in the suit.

AT&T announced plans in May to build the relay station as one of five across the U.S. to increase telecommunications capacity for long-distance calls.

The plans call for a 15,000-square-foot building, two dish-shaped antennas of 100-foot diameter and a 150-foot tower. An application for the necessary county permits to construct the station is pending in the planning department.

Bonelli and the Frisco Land and Mining Co., both owners of parcels adjacent to the proposed facility, say its construction will "deny them the peaceful and quiet enjoyment of their properties and depreciate and diminish the value of their properties."

FASTIDIOUS FRITZ IS SECRET GYPSY VIOLINIST!

You may know him as our brilliant conductor of food and beverage — the man who directed "Haute Cuisine" night after night at the famous Chez Pierre. But did you know this? Fastidious Fritz secretly plays the Gypsy violin! Here is more evidence that the Marin Holiday Inn is the place to string along with. For great food. Great drinks. Great music. Great people. Great times.

Visit the Chez Pierre soon . . . and listen closely. (Could that be Fritz playing in the kitchen?)

National Retail Sales Gaining

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail sales last week dropped 7 per cent from the previous week but still were about 15 per cent ahead of a year earlier, the Census Bureau said yesterday.

Sales were valued at $9.4 billion for the week ending July 7. Retail sales have been running about $10 billion per week, but the Fourth of July holiday, which closed most retail outlets, was behind the sharp decline.

For the last four weeks combined, sales were 13 per cent ahead of the same period in 1972 with nondurable goods up 12 per cent and durable goods up 16 per cent.

Patrick Pyramid Idea Described At Trial

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Holiday Magic made its money by "recruiting other people" and not by selling cosmetics, a former president of the Marin-based firm testified yesterday in federal court.

Meanwhile in San Rafael, there were rumors that top officers had left the cosmetics firm started by the late William Penn Patrick and that secretaries were virtually alone in the headquarters on Canal Street.

A spokesman at the firm confirmed that Roland R. Nocera, most recent president, was no longer with the company, but officers were said to be "in conference" and unavailable to the Independent-Journal yesterday.

Benjamin F. Gay III, who quit his job as president of Holiday Magic in November 1970, yesterday told U.S. District Court Judge Lloyd H. Burke that Patrick said to him on the day he resigned:

"It'll take the FTC (Federal Trade Commission) another two years to get us. I can steal more in that time than you can make honestly for the company in the next 20 years."

Gay was the first witness called by the Securities and Exchange Commission in its effort to prevent the firm and a dozen affiliated companies from allegedly violating securities laws.

The SEC claims the defendants, including the firms and several named individuals, have been operating a pyramid scheme promotion in the guise of marketing retail products and have sold more than $250 million in securities in the form of master distributorships.

"We have before us something described as the fraud of the decade," said SEC attorney Robert C. Friese in an opening statement.

He said the SEC is attacking only the top two levels of distribution carried on by Holiday Magic, called master and general distributorships.

The suit alleges the defendants made numerous misrepresentations and failed to offer material facts needed to avoid misleading investors.

Gay, who now has a management consulting firm in San Rafael, said Patrick had threatened to fire anyone who said the word "compromise" in connection with the Federal Trade Commission.

He testified that 95 per cent of the firm's money came from recruiting distributors, not from sales.

The SEC has obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent corporate monies from being transferred out of the country and seeks to make that order permanent.

Such an injunction could lead toward the appointment of a temporary receiver for the nationwide firm and its related companies.

Bel Marin CSD Adopts Budget

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District board last night adopted a $29,400 operating budget for fiscal 1973-74, which is $5,540 less than last year's $34,940 budget.

The district also must pay $52,644 in bond retirement this year, said secretary Betty Zoeller.

The tax rate will remain at $3 per $100 assessed valuation, she said. This brings in approximately $125,00 a year, she said. The balance of the money will be placed in a contingency fund for the construction of the lock into the lagoon and future dredging, she siad.

The operating budget will be used for building and pool maintenance, salaries and park upkeep, she said.

The board also named Madeline Thomas as Park commissioner.

Man Bound Over In Assault Case

Judge Gary W. Thomas ordered the new charges filed against Craig Clayton Nance, 28, after he ruled the original charge, assault with intent to commit rape, was not justified by evidence.

Nance is said to have picked up a 25-year-old San Francisco hitchhiker April 2 and driven her to his home while he threatened her with a knife. His roommates reportedly took her to San Rafael police.

Cotati Approves Second Shopping Center Phase

Plans for a second phase of a new shopping center were approved last night by the Cotati Planning Commission.

Codding Enterprises received approval on the second of three phases for the new Spanish design center at 500 East Cotati Avenue. The new portion will include two major stores and a series of small shops.

Commission Secretary Donna Olson said the commission also approved revisions in plans which would relocate the movie theater to an adjacent piece of property now zoned for apartments. The first phase of development including a farmer's market and small shops is already under construction.

The Cotati Planning Commission also:

SIGNS — Set a public hearing for July 26 at 7:30 p.m. on the proposed sign ordinance.

SUBDIVISION — Granted the request of Western Gold Land Inc. to install overhead utility lines in its subdivision on Richardson Lane.

ARCHITECT — Rejected the offer of architect Kahil Rosenbaum to use his services in design review procedures.

ZONING — Set a public hearing for July 26 on plans to zone land on Cypress Avenue for low density residents development rather than the present medium density.

Shop Looted

Someone entered the second floor office of Natural Beauty salon at 534 Fourth Street, San Rafael at noon yesterday and stole a cash box containing $40, San Rafael police reported today. None of the salon's employees were present at the time.

West Marin Neighbors Sue To Block Microwave Station

Two West Marin property owners have filed suit in Marin Superior Court to block construction of a proposed $6.8 million microwave relay station.

Benjamin P. Bonelli and the Frisco Land and Mining Co. filed the action Wednesday and asked a temporary restraining order and permanent injunction against American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which proposes to build the facility.

The suit contends that the AT&T property, 260 acres five miles west of Tomales Bay on the Marshall-Petaluma Road in an area known as Three Peaks, is bound by a deed restriction.

The restriction prohibits any use of the land other than recreational, agricultural or residential, with the maximum density of one single-family home per 10 acres, according to the suit.

AT&T has options on two parcels of land, 240 acres owned by the Pacific Bridge Co. and 20 by William E. Taggert Jr., the suit claims. Both the company and Taggert are named along with AT&T as codefendants in the suit.

AT&T announced plans in May to build the relay station as one of five across the U.S. to increase telecommunications capacity for long-distance calls.

The plans call for a 15,000-square-foot building, two dish-shaped antennas of 100-foot diameter and a 150-foot tower. An application for the necessary county permits to construct the station is pending in the planning department.

Bonelli and the Frisco Land and Mining Co., both owners of parcels adjacent to the proposed facility, say its construction will "deny them the peaceful and quiet enjoyment of their properties and depreciate and diminish the value of their properties."

National Retail Sales Gaining

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail sales last week dropped 7 per cent from the previous week but still were about 15 per cent ahead of a year earlier, the Census Bureau said yesterday.

Sales were valued at $9.4 billion for the week ending July 7. Retail sales have been running about $10 billion per week, but the Fourth of July holiday, which closed most retail outlets, was behind the sharp decline.

For the last four weeks combined, sales were 13 per cent ahead of the same period in 1972 with nondurable goods up 12 per cent and durable goods up 16 per cent.

Patrick Pyramid Idea Described At Trial

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Holiday Magic made its money by "recruiting other people" and not by selling cosmetics, a former president of the Marin-based firm testified yesterday in federal court.

Meanwhile in San Rafael, there were rumors that top officers had left the cosmetics firm started by the late William Penn Patrick and that secretaries were virtually alone in the headquarters on Canal Street.

A spokesman at the firm confirmed that Roland R. Nocera, most recent president, was no longer with the company, but officers were said to be "in conference" and unavailable to the Independent-Journal yesterday.

Benjamin F. Gay III, who quit his job as president of Holiday Magic in November 1970, yesterday told U.S. District Court Judge Lloyd H. Burke that Patrick said to him on the day he resigned:

"It'll take the FTC (Federal Trade Commission) another two years to get us. I can steal more in that time than you can make honestly for the company in the next 20 years."

Gay was the first witness called by the Securities and Exchange Commission in its effort to prevent the firm and a dozen affiliated companies from allegedly violating securities laws.

The SEC claims the defendants, including the firms and several named individuals, have been operating a pyramid scheme promotion in the guise of marketing retail products and have sold more than $250 million in securities in the form of master distributorships.

"We have before us something described as the fraud of the decade," said SEC attorney Robert C. Friese in an opening statement.

He said the SEC is attacking only the top two levels of distribution carried on by Holiday Magic, called master and general distributorships.

The suit alleges the defendants made numerous misrepresentations and failed to offer material facts needed to avoid misleading investors.

Gay, who now has a management consulting firm in San Rafael, said Patrick had threatened to fire anyone who said the word "compromise" in connection with the Federal Trade Commission.

He testified that 95 per cent of the firm's money came from recruiting distributors, not from sales.

The SEC has obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent corporate monies from being transferred out of the country and seeks to make that order permanent.

Such an injunction could lead toward the appointment of a temporary receiver for the nationwide firm and its related companies.

Bel Marin CSD Adopts Budget

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District board last night adopted a $29,400 operating budget for fiscal 1973-74, which is $5,540 less than last year's $34,940 budget.

The district also must pay $52,644 in bond retirement this year, said secretary Betty Zoeller.

The tax rate will remain at $3 per $100 assessed valuation, she said. This brings in approximately $125,00 a year, she said. The balance of the money will be placed in a contingency fund for the construction of the lock into the lagoon and future dredging, she siad.

The operating budget will be used for building and pool maintenance, salaries and park upkeep, she said.

The board also named Madeline Thomas as Park commissioner.

Man Bound Over In Assault Case

Judge Gary W. Thomas ordered the new charges filed against Craig Clayton Nance, 28, after he ruled the original charge, assault with intent to commit rape, was not justified by evidence.

Nance is said to have picked up a 25-year-old San Francisco hitchhiker April 2 and driven her to his home while he threatened her with a knife. His roommates reportedly took her to San Rafael police.

Cotati Approves Second Shopping Center Phase

Plans for a second phase of a new shopping center were approved last night by the Cotati Planning Commission.

Codding Enterprises received approval on the second of three phases for the new Spanish design center at 500 East Cotati Avenue. The new portion will include two major stores and a series of small shops.

Commission Secretary Donna Olson said the commission also approved revisions in plans which would relocate the movie theater to an adjacent piece of property now zoned for apartments. The first phase of development including a farmer's market and small shops is already under construction.

The Cotati Planning Commission also:

SIGNS — Set a public hearing for July 26 at 7:30 p.m. on the proposed sign ordinance.

SUBDIVISION — Granted the request of Western Gold Land Inc. to install overhead utility lines in its subdivision on Richardson Lane.

ARCHITECT — Rejected the offer of architect Kahil Rosenbaum to use his services in design review procedures.

ZONING — Set a public hearing for July 26 on plans to zone land on Cypress Avenue for low density residents development rather than the present medium density.

Shop Looted

Someone entered the second floor office of Natural Beauty salon at 534 Fourth Street, San Rafael at noon yesterday and stole a cash box containing $40, San Rafael police reported today. None of the salon's employees were present at the time.

FASTIDIOUS FRITZ IS SECRET GYPSY VIOLINIST!

You may know him as our brilliant conductor of food and beverage — the man who directed "Haute Cuisine" night after night at the famous Chez Pierre. But did you know this? Fastidious Fritz secretly plays the Gypsy violin! Here is more evidence that the Marin Holiday Inn is the place to string along with. For great food. Great drinks. Great music. Great people. Great times.

Visit the Chez Pierre soon . . . and listen closely. (Could that be Fritz playing in the kitchen?)

BELLY DANCING SPREADS

From Harem To Mill Valley

By BETTY FROST

"In this country the antics of Little Egypt, who performed at the 1915 Exposition in San Francisco, gave the traditional ethnic dance of the Middle East a bad reputation, because she turned the cultural dance into a burlesque stunt," the instructor said.

Each Monday morning, the dancer, known professionally as "Stassa", which means teacher in Greek, guides 15 Mill Valley women through the basic steps and movements of belly dancing. The motley group, composed of teen-agers and housewives, needs a lot of stamina to get through the hour and a half long lesson. There are few floor exercises in this kind of dancing, the teacher explained but fantastic muscle control is required for excellence.

As the women whirled to the exotic music of the Middle East, picking up the tempo from half time, to full time, to double time, some metal bangles flew off a home-made costume, clattering on the wooden floor of the large room at the Mill Valley Community Center where the classes are held.

BESIDES THE rows of coins or beads attached to the flowing costumes, each dancer must master the graceful use of "zils", the finger bells worn on each hand.

Most of the students in Stassa's Monday morning class are beginners. Despite the lively movements, their faces were serious as they timidly tried out new steps.

Their outfits ranged from shorts, slacks, or leotards, to sophisticated harem-style costumes. Stassa, 24, who also performs at the Casbah night club in San Francisco, and teaches a fall class at the Strawberry Recreation Center, has a collection of authentic costumes. For the class she was wearing a costume of sheer black fabric, embellished with silver.

The dancer, who has lived in Mill Valley for nine years, has been dancing professionally for seven years. She says she loves to dance and is constantly seeking to perfect her technique. A graduate of Tamalpais High School, she is the wife of Greg Zak, and has a daughter, Caren, 5. Her mother, Mrs. Sheila Dempster of Tomales, encouraged her dancing career.

The term "belly dance" now connotes a collection of ethnic dances from the cultures of various countries in the Arab world. "For instance, there is a Bedouin dance, performed totally clothed, which is like a folk dance," she said.

The traditional dance was performed by wives for their husbands and to entertain guests in the home. Within the harem, where no outside contacts were permitted, belly dancing was one of the few forms of exercise allowed the women. There was often friendly competition within the harem. Other women who danced in public places Stassa compared to medieval minstrel. Because they were women the could go to the harem quarte and bring news of the outsid world.

A RELIGIOUS edict prohibi ed using the female form in ar There were no paintings statues of women, the dance explained, but Moslem me were allowed to see the danc ing.

The benefits of belly dancing according to Mrs. Zak, ar "grace, poise, suppleness, sel confidence and muscle contro It is a total self-expression fo women. Once the basic movements are learned, the dance makes numerous variations achieving a personal interpreta tion."

Several small children wer playing outside the dance area At one point, the instructor ha all the women lying on th floor, and was teaching th classic flutter exercise for th mid-torso.

"Pant like a dog," Stassa said.

One little voice piped up. "What is my mommy doing?"

'WHY DON'T THEY?'

Homemakers Have Plenty Of Ideas For Markets

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Why don't they think of us shorties?," said the woman standing next to me at a supermarket produce counter.

There she was, reaching vainly toward the roll of snapoff plastic bags to fill with some of the fruits just now arriving in quantity.

"Could you pull off a couple of them for me?," she asked. I being a tallie did so, and thought she is right, the petite have their problems.

But short, medium or tall, you can go through any food market and come out with a long list of "Why don't theys?"

WHY DON'T they promote more women into managerial posts in the markets, for instance?

They could better help translate the needs of the shopper, usually the woman of the house. Instead, the girls usually are relegated to the checkout counters.

Thanks to the whole consumer movement, we're getting more breaks with such things as unit pricing, dating dairy products to assure that we're getting the fresh milks and cheeses and improving packaging. Some states require that pre-cut meats be displayed in clear, see-through packages.

Sometimes, though, the seethroughs give a view of the top of, say, a sirloin. The bottom is invisible because all the plastic wrapping has been folded there. And pre-packaged fruits and vegetables often are wrapped so that the bad side or soft spots won't show.

All of which brings up my semi-annual list of "Why don't theys?," some of them garnered from my own experience, some from neighbors, and some from National Family Opinion, Inc., a market research organization which uses some 100,000 homemakers as panelists.

WHY DON'T they find a pricing stamp with purple that doesn't fade in the store but waits until you get the product home so the purple can end up on a formica counter.

Why don't they cease oversalting many canned products? The seasoning-plus makes it more difficult for the person on a salt-free diet, and some of us, although permitted salt, would rather have less of it and more of actual food content.

Why not give us more lean in canned meats? The fat either has to be trimmed off some meats or else you eat the product and worry about cholesterol levels.

Make easily readable directions on packages. Too many are in too fine print and often about the same color as the container.

Why don't they stop the nonsense of "cents off" labeling on packages when it is impossible to know the regular price or the real saving?

WHY DON'T food markets quit stocking goods in damaged cans and still charge the regular price? If the cans are damaged, but not enough to cause a health hazard, why don't they offer them at reduced prices?

Why don't they develop bacon packaging that is easy to open and that also doesn't hide the fatty bits and pieces?

One of the worst packaging devices ever developed is for a spice line that has three openings—sift, pour, or spoon. I defy anyone to get the average measuring spoon in the slot so labelled.

Why don't they stop cheating on contents with canned or jarred fruit with too much syrup and not enough fruit? And is all that fruit packed in heavy syrup necessary in a nation practicing girth control?

Bills Would Ease Women's Credit

"Credit worthiness for women has too often been obscured by irrevalent questions and outmoded customs and beliefs," Sen. William Brock (R. Tenn.) said when he introduced two bills to remedy credit discrimination against women.

President Elected By Guild

Mrs. Lewis Sarasy of Belvedere is the new president of St. Stephen's Guild of Belvedere-Tiburon.

Phyllis Sarasy, a native of Ohio, was graduated from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and received her master's degree from Hunter College in New York City. She studied Spanish at Universidad Internacinal, Santander, Spain.

She has been a member of St. Stephen's Guild for three years, serving previously as vice president and house tour chairman.

The new president believes the guild's purpose is to provide women of St. Stephen's parish with opportunities to enrich parish and community life through fellowship, education and service.

She plans the Canterbury Faire, a ladies' day every Wednesday and the 24th annual Belvedere-Tiburon House Tour.

Members of the parish may join the guild, according to Mrs. Sarasy who is active also in the San Francisco Symphony League of Marin, Reed District Parent-Teacher Club, Del Mar P-TC, Friends of California Libraries and Marin Foundation's Driftwood Unit.

Other new officers of St. Sephen's Guild are Mmes. John Pring, vice president; Cornelius Coleman, treasurer; Rennie Kirk, secretary; Paul Ogden and John Thornton, Canterbury Faire; and William Bergman and Miss Janet Sawyer, house tour; and Mmes. Lawrence Daly, annual membership meeting; and Robert Marshall, Spring Salad Luncheon.

WHY DON'T food markets quit stocking goods in damaged cans and still charge the regular price? If the cans are damaged, but not enough to cause a health hazard, why don't they offer them at reduced prices?

Why don't they develop bacon packaging that is easy to open and that also doesn't hide the fatty bits and pieces?

One of the worst packaging devices ever developed is for a spice line that has three openings—sift, pour, or spoon. I defy anyone to get the average measuring spoon in the slot so labelled.

Why don't they stop cheating on contents with canned or jarred fruit with too much syrup and not enough fruit? And is all that fruit packed in heavy syrup necessary in a nation practicing girth control?

MRS. LEWIS SARASY
St. Stephen's president

Bills Would Ease Women's Credit

"Credit worthiness for women has too often been obscured by irrevalent questions and outmoded customs and beliefs," Sen. William Brock (R. Tenn.) said when he introduced two bills to remedy credit discrimination against women.

President Elected By Guild

Mrs. Lewis Sarasy of Belvedere is the new president of St. Stephen's Guild of Belvedere-Tiburon.

Phyllis Sarasy, a native of Ohio, was graduated from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and received her master's degree from Hunter College in New York City. She studied Spanish at Universidad Internacinal, Santander, Spain.

She has been a member of St. Stephen's Guild for three years, serving previously as vice president and house tour chairman.

The new president believes the guild's purpose is to provide women of St. Stephen's parish with opportunities to enrich parish and community life through fellowship, education and service.

She plans the Canterbury Faire, a ladies' day every Wednesday and the 24th annual Belvedere-Tiburon House Tour.

Members of the parish may join the guild, according to Mrs. Sarasy who is active also in the San Francisco Symphony League of Marin, Reed District Parent-Teacher Club, Del Mar P-TC, Friends of California Libraries and Marin Foundation's Driftwood Unit.

Other new officers of St. Sephen's Guild are Mmes. John Pring, vice president; Cornelius Coleman, treasurer; Rennie Kirk, secretary; Paul Ogden and John Thornton, Canterbury Faire; and William Bergman and Miss Janet Sawyer, house tour; and Mmes. Lawrence Daly, annual membership meeting; and Robert Marshall, Spring Salad Luncheon.

Disheartened Parent Submits Her Thoughts On Daughters

DEAR HELEN:

I read the description of a mother from the girl who signed herself "Ungrateful and Selfish in the Eyes of My Mother, and Unloved in Mine," and became terribly upset.

I think parents should have equal time, therefore I've written the following in hope you will print it, and teens reading it will TRY to understand the anxious parent's side — at least occasionally. — HEARTSICK MOTHER

WHAT IS A DAUGHTER?

A daughter ia a tiny bundle of joy full of innocence and dependence.

She is the future you help mold, and love more than words can express.

A daughter is bits of naughtiness that you quickly forgive because of her adorable ways.

She is a tremendous responsibility, with endless sacrifices and prayers along the way, offered in the hope she will grow strong enough to face the unknown trials of life.

A daughter is suddenly no longer that sweet, innocent child but a strong-willed individual giving you constant heartaches and disappointments. She has traded giving you minor tragedies like scraped knees for the knowledge that she has tried drugs and feels justified in doing so.

A daughter is the body you gave life to now saying, "It's MY body and I'll do as I like with it!"

She's the one who gets the Easter outfit while you go with shabby clothes. She's the one you protect and shield from the ugliness of life, and your reward is disrespect. She has always had a wonderful Christmas filled with countless presents and never wondered at the sacrifices others went through.

A daughter is the one who says, "You've changed, Mom," but she never stops to think that maybe SHE is the one who has changed.

She's the one who promises to do better, so you give in to her, only to have her immediately do something worse.

She's the one who has lied repeatedly to you and then wonders why you don't trust her.

A daughter is the one who wants YOU to conform to HER way of life.

A daughter is the heaviest cross life can give you and you never stop wishing she was still that tiny bundle of innocence. — DISHEARTENED AND ABUSED PARENT

NOTE FROM HELEN: ... And so long as both mother and daughter believe it's all the other's fault, they'll continue to feel unloved, disheartened and abused. Too bad they can't watch playbacks of their lives so that they might see their mistakes and possibly learn how to correct them. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My husband falls easily. He thought he was in love with another woman three years ago, but got over her.

I dropped the divorce proceedings when he promised he'd never stray again.

However, he and this woman still work together and she's a notorious man-chaser. My husband won't change jobs — says there's no need, as when something is finished, it's dead.

True, he comes home every night, is very attentive to me and seems happy with his family, but how do I know what goes on at noon or in the afternoons? How do I get back my trust? — TIRED OF WORRYING

DEAR TIRED:

Your husband is right: when an affair dies, it's seldom revived. More likely the principals end up disliking each other intensely.

You're wasting the present when you brood over the past. And since you've got a man who falls easily, you need all your wits and wiles to concentrate on the future. — H.

HOME DECORATING

Youth Furnishings: Treasures, Trash

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Call them "found objects." Or trash. Or treasures. Or curiosities. By whatever name, they're being used by many young people to furnish homes in joyous freewheeling eclecticism.

Emerging is a style with few taboos, which is heavy on individualism and personal predilection. As one couple said to me, speaking of this uninhibited approach, "There's a new excitement in decorating these days that sure makes staying home more fun!"

The new expression grows out of garage sales, auctions, flea markets, thrift shopts, and secondhand stores. In most big cities you can even scavenge furnishings on the streets. Castoffs waiting on a curb for disposal often find new life as someone else's "discovery."

Americans junk or give away millions of pounds of sound furniture each year — not because it is worn out, but simply because they want to replace it with something different or better. So thousands of people today — particularly newlyweds — play the game of seeking out the best discards at the lowest prices.

Yard sales and auctions help. Browsing through thrift shops and Salvation Army and Goodwill stores is a favorite pastime of couples who are trying to furnish whole apartments for less than $1,000.

But prices are going up as costs of collection and renovation go up. The old maple chest that could be had for $15 a few years back, now is $25 or higher.

The Salvation Army in New York says prices had advanced by at least 20 to 30 percent in most of its thrift shops. Charity thrift shops can command higher prices these days because the demand for sound used goods has soared so dramatically in the last five years.

Traffic through these shops is enormous now. According to one thrift shop manager, "New furniture is far too dear in price for most young people to afford. I don't know what they'd do without us. We can sell them good chairs for $25, bookshelves for $4, sofas for $75 and even an occasional antique, or real Oriental rug at a bargain price."

Essential to decorating a room in "aesthetic hodgepodge" are a sense of humor, pride in converting something old and unwanted into something useful and attractive, and a strong personal sense of style.

"Just because things come from a junk store," says Jack Aardema, of Kroehler Manufacturing Company's decorating staff, "you don't have to treat them as junk. If you treat them with respect, and arrange with a little flair, they pay you back by looking happy, useful, and at home."

Recently Mr. Aardema designed what he terms a "found objects" room for folks on a slim home-furnishings budget. Knowing most couples want to start with sturdy upholstery, he chose two Kroehler love seats covered in a jazzy turquoise blue and lime green patterned fabric (at $249 each), a pair of traditional wing chairs at $159 each, and one Dacron room-size rug.

He then spent $184 on a collection of "objects" which he found in antique, junk, and secondhand stores. These included an old easel, a decorative mirror over the fireplace, an old caneback chair, a 1930's trestle table, an old trunk, a cedar chest used as a coffee table, some hanging shelves and brackets, and assorted end tables.

Mr. Aardema explained in an interview: "If you want to do a room this way you have to go out and start digging around. You pick up objects that you feel are intrinsically interesting. I didn't even know what some of the things were that I bought for this room, but their shapes intrigued me. I kept things in small scale because I didn't want one thing to dominate.

"In pulling it all together," he continued, "I started pushing things around, changing them until they looked good to me. I didn't even refinish the 1930-ish wood pieces. I think there is a certain charm in using them as they are.

"Since live trees are very expensive," added Mr. Aardema, "I can gain the same effect by using a cluster of small branches. Sometimes I leave them natural. Sometimes I paint them white, or black. If you don't have much money you learn to decorate with shapes."

He also likes to pick up parts of machinery to use as "sculptural objects." A pleasing shape that really doesn't mean anything can still have great decorative value, he maintains.

A bold-colored wall provides a great background for this kind of room. On a bright blue wall, for instance, Mr. Aardema added some shiny chrome perpendicular divisions — "just ribbons of metal that add a little shine and give the room more interest. A little chrome can add a lot of sparkle. Glass can do that too, and is inexpensive. I always use a lot of glass shelving, and glass-topped tables I make myself."

Another trash-into-treasure decorator is Barbara Shapokas Vlachos. She and her husband, Ari, have furnished a four-room railroad flat in a 70-year-old New York building with other people's cast-offs.

Seven years ago, when Barbara arrived in the city to study art at Cooper Union School, she rented the apartment for $27 a month. Today the rent is just over $80. "As far as I am concerned 'found' furniture is supply," says this young designer. "It often meets some specific need — immediately. I make an adventure out of looking for it, and think of it as treasure.

"You can't be easily intimidated, of course, if you pull things in off the street," she continues. "I go about it very jauntily and matter-of-factly, measuring things wherever I find them. I'm a stickler for scale.

"I take in nothing that isn't the right size for my apartment or for that of one of my friends. All of us who scavenge furniture carry each other's apartments in mind, too; we look out for each other."

ON BEING BLACK

Black Army Unit Tested Bicycles For The Military

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

SALT LAKE CITY — Each cyclist carried a knapsack, blanket, shelter tent, tin cup, extra bicycle parts and a rifle strapped horizontally to the left side of his bicycle. Sounds like a contemporary group of cyclists taking off for a weekend bicycle run. However, this particular bicycle trek was not voluntary, nor was it made for fun. It was ordered by the U.S. Army in 1897 and it was made by the all-black 25th Infantry.

This little-known group of black soldiers was directed to test the utility of the bicycle for traveling use by the Army. The 25th Infantry Bicycle Corps was drilled thoroughly by making several practice trips over the mountainous terrain of Yellowstone Park. They experimented with various packing methods, and soon were averaging about 45 miles a day (not on fancy, lightweight, 10-speeds). The test trip from Missoula, Mont., to St. Louis, Mo., was made in 40 days and nights. It was a distance of 1,900 miles.

According to newspaper accounts by the New York Times and the Salt Lake Tribune in 1897, the bicycle was officially designated for service in the United States Army as a result of this test trip.

Today, of course, military maneuvers of any kind are not held in high esteem, but cycling certainly is.

Sales of bicycles have soared during the past few years: more than 8 million were sold in 1971.

Bicycle specialty shops have popped up all over the country. With just a few American bicyclemakers, foreign manufacturers (Japanese especially) are having a financial boom.

THE SALE of adult tricycles has increased — the elderly and the infirm have joined the cycle craze. The car-rental company now has fold-up bicycles in each car they rent — assuming the traveler is also a biker. Cities across the country have earmarked special bike paths. There will soon be bike paths alongside all major highways.

The use of bicycles as a sound alternative travel vehicle has been heralded by those concerned about the high level of air pollution. Bikes are economical but, as with all transportation systems, cycling has its drawbacks, mainly, theft and auto-bike collisions (with the biker getting the worst).

But the cycle craze continues. Enthusiastic cyclists pedal prescribed distances for charity and other causes. Presently, black students at the University of Montana are planning a recycling of the 25th Infantry Bicycle Corps' original, historic route. The trip is scheduled for the summer of 1974. Being an enthusiastic biker, I plan to make at least a portion of the trip.

ALSO A history buff, I can just picture that cycling scene 76 years ago. It would be a terrific plot for a great western movie with a bit of comedy. How about casting Bill Cosby, Flip Wilson, Richard Pryor and George Foreman as members of the cycle corps? It would also show sound (PG-rated) contributions by black Americans to the making of America. Cycling is certainly something every black youngster can relate to — it's a rare inner-city kid that doesn't have some kind of "wheels."

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Call them "found objects." Or trash. Or treasures. Or curiosities. By whatever name, they're being used by many young people to furnish homes in joyous free-wheeling eclecticism.

Emerging is a style with few taboos, which is heavy on individualism and personal predilection. As one couple said to me, speaking of this uninhibited approach, "There's a new excitement in decorating these days that sure makes staying home more fun!"

The new expression grows out of garage sales, auctions, flea markets, thrift shopts, and secondhand stores. In most big cities you can even scavenge furnishings on the streets. Cast-offs waiting on a curb for disposal often find new life as someone else's "discovery."

Americans junk or give away millions of pounds of sound furniture each year — not because it is worn out, but simply because they want to replace it with something different or better. So thousands of people today — particularly newlyweds — play the game of seeking out the best discards at the lowest prices.

Yard sales and auctions help. Browsing through thrift shops and Salvation Army and Goodwill stores is a favorite pastime of couples who are trying to furnish whole apartments for less than $1,000.

But prices are going up as costs of collection and renovation go up. The old maple chest that could be had for $15 a few years back, now is $25 or higher.

The Salvation Army in New York says prices had advanced by at least 20 to 30 percent in most of its thrift shops. Charity thrift shops can command higher prices these days because the demand for sound used goods has soared so dramatically in the last five years.

Traffic through these shops is enormous now. According to one thrift shop manager, "New furniture is far too dear in price for most young people to afford. I don't know what they'd do without us. We can sell them good chairs for $25, bookshelves for $4, sofas for $75 and even an occasional antique, or real Oriental rug at a bargain price."

Essential to decorating a room in "aesthetic hodgepodge" are a sense of humor, pride in converting something old and unwanted into something useful and attractive, and a strong personal sense of style.

"Just because things come from a junk store," says Jack Aardema, of Kroehler Manufacturing Company's decorating staff, "you don't have to treat them as junk. If you treat them with respect, and arrange with a little flair, they pay you back by looking happy, useful, and at home."

Recently Mr. Aardema designed what he terms a "found objects" room for folks on a slim home-furnishings budget. Knowing most couples want to start with sturdy upholstery, he chose two Kroehler love seats covered in a jazzy turquoise blue and lime green patterned fabric (at $249 each), a pair of traditional wing chairs at $159 each, and one Dacron room-size rug.

He then spent $184 on a collection of "objects" which he found in antique, junk, and secondhand stores. These included an old easel, a decorative mirror over the fireplace, an old caneback chair, a 1930's trestle table, an old trunk, a cedar chest used as a coffee table, some hanging shelves and brackets, and assorted end tables.

Mr. Aardema explained in an interview: "If you want to do a room this way you have to go out and start digging around. You pick up objects that you feel are intrinsically interesting. I didn't even know what some of the things were that I bought for this room, but their shapes intrigued me. I kept things in small scale because I didn't want one thing to dominate.

"In pulling it all together," he continued, "I started pushing things around, changing them until they looked good to me. I didn't even refinish the 1930-ish wood pieces. I think there is a certain charm in using them as they are.

"Since live trees are very expensive," added Mr. Aardema, "I can gain the same effect by using a cluster of small branches. Sometimes I leave them natural. Sometimes I paint them white, or black. If you don't have much money you learn to decorate with shapes."

He also likes to pick up parts of machinery to use as "sculptural objects." A pleasing shape that really doesn't mean anything can still have great decorative value, he maintains.

A bold-colored wall provides a great background for this kind of room. On a bright blue wall, for instance, Mr. Aardema added some shiny chrome perpendicular divisions — "just ribbons of metal that add a little shine and give the room more interest. A little chrome can add a lot of sparkle. Glass can do that too, and is inexpensive. I always use a lot of glass shelving, and glass-topped tables I make myself."

Another trash-into-treasure decorator is Barbara Shapokas Vlachos. She and her husband, Ari, have furnished a four-room railroad flat in a 70-year-old New York building with other people's cast-offs.

Seven years ago, when Barbara arrived in the city to study art at Cooper Union School, she rented the apartment for $27 a month. Today the rent is just over $80. "As far as I am concerned 'found' furniture is supply," says this young designer. "It often meets some specific need — immediately. I make an adventure out of looking for it, and think of it as treasure.

"You can't be easily intimidated, of course, if you pull things in off the street," she continues. "I go about it very jauntily and matter-of-factly, measuring things wherever I find them. I'm a stickler for scale.

"I take in nothing that isn't the right size for my apartment or for that of one of my friends. All of us who scavenge furniture carry each other's apartments in mind, too; we look out for each other."

ON BEING BLACK

Black Army Unit Tested Bicycles For The Military

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

SALT LAKE CITY — Each cyclist carried a knapsack, blanket, shelter tent, tin cup, extra bicycle parts and a rifle strapped horizontally to the left side of his bicycle. Sounds like a contemporary group of cyclists taking off for a weekend bicycle run. However, this particular bicycle trek was not voluntary, nor was it made for fun. It was ordered by the U.S. Army in 1897 and it was made by the all-black 25th Infantry.

This little-known group of black soldiers was directed to test the utility of the bicycle for traveling use by the Army. The 25th Infantry Bicycle Corps was drilled thoroughly by making several practice trips over the mountainous terrain of Yellowstone Park. They experimented with various packing methods, and soon were averaging about 45 miles a day (not on fancy, lightweight, 10-speeds). The test trip from Missoula, Mont., to St. Louis, Mo., was made in 40 days and nights. It was a distance of 1,900 miles.

According to newspaper accounts by the New York Times and the Salt Lake Tribune in 1897, the bicycle was officially designated for service in the United States Army as a result of this test trip.

Today, of course, military maneuvers of any kind are not held in high esteem, but cycling certainly is.

Sales of bicycles have soared during the past few years: more than 8 million were sold in 1971.

Bicycle specialty shops have popped up all over the country. With just a few American bicyclemakers, foreign manufacturers (Japanese especially) are having a financial boom.

THE SALE of adult tricycles has increased — the elderly and the infirm have joined the cycle craze. The car-rental company now has fold-up bicycles in each car they rent — assuming the traveler is also a biker. Cities across the country have earmarked special bike paths. There will soon be bike paths alongside all major highways.

The use of bicycles as a sound alternative travel vehicle has been heralded by those concerned about the high level of air pollution. Bikes are economical but, as with all transportation systems, cycling has its drawbacks, mainly, theft and auto-bike collisions (with the biker getting the worst).

But the cycle craze continues. Enthusiastic cyclists pedal prescribed distances for charity and other causes. Presently, black students at the University of Montana are planning a recycling of the 25th Infantry Bicycle Corps' original, historic route. The trip is scheduled for the summer of 1974. Being an enthusiastic biker, I plan to make at least a portion of the trip.

ALSO A history buff, I can just picture that cycling scene 76 years ago. It would be a terrific plot for a great western movie with a bit of comedy. How about casting Bill Cosby, Flip Wilson, Richard Pryor and George Foreman as members of the cycle corps? It would also show sound (PG-rated) contributions by black Americans to the making of America. Cycling is certainly something every black youngster can relate to — it's a rare inner-city kid that doesn't have some kind of "wheels."

HE'S HAPPIER ENTERTAINING

Executive Returns To Singing

By BILL ROBERTS

Giving up a vice presidential position with a firm that manufactures medical supplies is not the kind of decision one makes every day.

But for Dale M. Corliss of Mill Valley, the shift from the world of big business and conglomerates to nursing applause from varied audiences has been personally rewarding.

"The father is out making money and is never home to enjoy it," he says of the business world. He finds that entertaining has made him a "happier" person.

Corliss, born in Seattle, grew up singing and was an entertainer long before he ever thought of entering business; at 16, he was singing professionally on a ferryboat.

He sang with Dick Jurgen's band for a short time and was on the society circuit in Washington, singing at debutante balls and other events at large hotels in New York and Washington.

In the early 1950's, though, the direction of his life changed when he came to San Francisco and married. He sang on armed forces radio and television in Seattle during the Korean War but when they returned to the Bay Area in 1954, his wife, Shirlee, asked him to give up singing and find a spot in business.

Corliss worked his way up to western sales manager for McNeil Laboratories of Fort Washington, Pa., and supervised the sales force for the Johnson and Johnson subsidiary in California, Nevada and Hawaii. In 1968 he moved up to a similar position with Electro Systems, a San Francisco based manufacturer of lighting equipment for hospitals and schools.

But his wife's arguments for going into business proved less than valid. She had seen the move into business as a stabilizing force, but that did not prove true. "I was never in the home we built," he said of their Mill Valley house. And after moving up to a vice president's job in sales he found himself at home even less to enjoy the growing years of their two daughters, now 17 and 21. "You can fly away a whole day," he mused.

DALE M. CORLISS
"I decided at sea that I would not go back into conglomerate life and lose myself again."

Meanwhile, entertaining remained in his blood and he kept in touch with that world, finding in it a kind of satisfaction the business world could not provide him. Gradually, those ties reasserted themselves with an ever greater pull and, last September, he began singing at Flavio's Trattoria in San Francisco, while keeping his work-a-day job.

By February, Corliss was ready for the shift which would gradually take him away from the corporate world.

"I hadn't had a vacation for five years," he said.

His vacation proved to be the first step in the ultimate transformation as he traveled and sang on a cruise ship to Hawaii and the South Seas. Corliss proved so popular as an entertainer that the transport line booked him for a cruise to Russia immediately following his return to this country.

Somewhere along the second cruise Corliss began to realize that he had changed.

"People told me I was always laughing. For the first time in 16 years I was really enjoying my work," he said.

In addition to singing on the ship he began booking himself into small clubs and hotels at the ship's stops. He sang in clubs on the Greek island of Mykonos, in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Romania and in Odessa of the Soviet Union.

People were very inquisitive and most warm and friendly he said of the Russians he met while entertaining and relaxing in the Soviet city.

"Many had never seen an American entertainer before," he said and he was showered with applause, flowers and affectionate reactions.

But the entertaining was not to be a respite from work for Corliss, it was to be a total change. He wrote his company and informed them that his "leave of absence" would become permanent. He was still at sea but he began making plans on where his career would go.

Corless made plans to return to Seville to sing at a club where his sister had booked him during the trip. And a group of Brazilians from the ship have arranged for an engagement in Brazil.

The San Francisco Press Club was recently entertained by Corliss and numerous individual appearances, both private and public, are filling in the time until all the overseas booking arrangements are complete.

His wife now finds that the travel involved is no more than Corliss had experienced in business and for him this has been a period of rebirth.

"It has made me much younger in my attitude," said the 49-year-old entertainer. "But I found out maybe 16 years too late."

The next few months will be filled with hurried activity for Corliss as he shares time with his two daughters and wife and prepares for his upcoming engagements including a stint at the Miyako Hotel in San Francisco.

But the hurried activity and tight schedules do not cause Corliss the sense of inconvenience and pressure he experienced in the business world, because he is enjoying his work again.

"I have gotten back into my own realm," he said.

Microfilm And Computers Help Libraries Meet Changing Needs

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — The day may be coming when the nation's libraries will be stocked with "books" the size of sugar cubes, readable with the help of laser beams.

Small lithium crystals might be imprinted by lasers with information. Lasers then could be used to read this information from the tiny "books."

Much more immediately, however, and already in heavy use in such businesses as banks, insurance companies, and auto part firms, are books and other information on microfilm. The federal government, for instance, manufactures about 10 million of these "microfiches" a month for those who want to read government documents in this fashion.

However, the challenge of matching more standard technology with changing informational needs in the early 1970s is proving quite stiff enough for those in the information business.

Indeed, the two-year-old National Commission on Libraries and Information Science maintains that the present inadequacies are considerable and that the United States has a great deal of catching up to do. Problems range from underfunding and poor collections to a lack of sure knowledge on the part of libraries as to their goals and the needs of those they serve.

The 15-member commission is a permanent, independent agency in the executive branch, charged by Congress with the job of assessing U.S. informational needs and mapping a plan whereby "adequate" service to meet them can be provided.

Cautiously, the Commission is on record as not bent on improving libraries or any other familiar type of service, but rather of somehow devising a method by which the most users of information can be reached.

The commission's "prime" target at the moment, according to executive director Charles H. Stevens, is development of an organizational network in which libraries of all types cooperate to provide regional resource and bibliographic services.

Beginnings of many kinds have been made, says Mr. Stevens, on leave of absence from his library post at Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he has worked extensively with information transfer experiments.

He points out that in the state of Ohio, for instance, one card entitled you to take out a book in any library and return it to any other which then ships it back to the original holder.

On the Ohio State University campus, in another experiment, a student may check with the teletype console at any branch of the several libraries on campus and easily order up a book from any location. In still another experiment under way in Ohio, several college libraries are cooperating in communicating catalogue information, the better to know what resources other libraries are holding.

The most advanced state, however, in such network development is New York where a cooperative link in purchasing and processing books already is strong among public libraries and is beginning to take root among academic libraries.

One key step on the road to such increased cooperation is a hard look at the actual needs of those tapping information resources. The commission is finding, through contracted reasearch studies and regional hearings it already has held in the Midwest, Far West, and Southeast, that these needs vary greatly according to geographic location, profession, and age of the individual.

Clearly, some hard decisions as to priorities lie ahead — whether, for instance, it is more important to serve the leadership community better or to serve at all some individuals such as the educable but mentally handicapped not now being served.

Acquisition of materials is another side of the problem. In the U.S. alone, nearly three times as many book titles (30,000) are coming out each year as in 1950. Also, many other countries are far more prolific in this respect and lean less on major publishing houses for the output.

Scrimshaw Show Set In Sausalito

Three engraved sperm whale teeth by Sausalito scrimshandler William Gilkerson will go on exhibit July 21 at the San Francisco Maritime Museum.

The matched set depicts Northwest Coast whaling scenes and will appear in the central area of the museum's main floor daily through the end of August.

The engraving process, known as scrimshaw, was begun in the last century and his highly prized by collectors today according to the museum. Gilkerson began scrimshanding while sailing.

Gilkerson's work will be part of a larger display including ivory carvings oranmenting walking sticks, pendants, weapons and ivory-mounted bagpipes.

Gilkerson is associated with Scrimshaw Shop in Sausalito.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and Parents' Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Aristocats" — Feature length animated cartoon set in Paris in 1910. A high society cat and her kittens are kidnapped by the villainous butler so that he can inherit their fabulous estate.

"Lost Horizon" — Spectacular music version of classic tale about Shangri-La, that mystical hidden valley of brotherly love and tranquil longevity. Fine cast.

"Song of the South" — Disney's rendition of Uncle Remus tales of slave days Down South with charming cartoons of Brer Rabbit's escapades.

"Sounder" — A fascinating document of life in the deep south as well as an inspiring drama of familiar love and loyalty.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Cahill, U.S. Marshall" — With gobs of gore and violence this action packed western circa 1870 in Texas is a tale of the troubles the young sons of a busy U.S. Marshall get into while Dad is away from home.

"Day of the Jackal" — Highly charged but lengthy thriller. It is disturbing in that it invited the audience to suspend moral judgement on political assassination. An attempt on the life of deGaulle by extreme right-wing French OAS because he de-colonized Algeria. Some suggestive scenes.

"Effects of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" — The daughter of a vitrolic wowed woman learns through a science project that the seed of human promise can survive the mutations of inheritance and environment. Considerable crude language.

"Kotch" — Charming, frankly sentimental picture about a grandfather finding meaning in life by befriending a pregnant teenager and helping her through a difficult period in life.

"The Last of Sheila" — Six people who knew Sheila and had motives for killing her are invited by a film producer to his yacht. The games they play reveal secrets and leads to more violence.

"Live and Let Die" — Eighth in a series of James Bond tales. This time he must save the world from drug addiction — the master mind is a Harlem gangster. Usual gimics, chases and tensions.

"The Other" — A grim horror story about a little boy who is possessed by the evil spirit of his dead twin brother and the violent deeds he performs on his family. Gruesome implications.

"Paper Moon" — An expertly crafted sophisticated comedy drama recreating the Thirties. A travelling salesman-con artist agrees to deliver a 9-year-old orphan to an Aunt in Missouri. The child is tough, smokes and swears and out swindles her mentor. Disturbing thought is that some children may copy her behavior.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Chato's Land" — Excellent cast, fine photography makes this tale of some of the history behind the white man's fight against the Indian is engrossing and memorable. One rape scene, gruesome violence.

"Friends of Eddie Coyle" — Cynical crime movie about a small time hood who gets squeezed between the law and the underworld. Violence, sex and excessive cursing.

"Rage" — A rancher and his son are accidently exposed to nerve gas. The army denies it and use them as human guinea pigs. The father's rampage of violence in revenge is devastating.

ADULTS ONLY

"Deliverance" — Four men take a three-day canoe trip which becomes a gripping nightmare. The hostile natural forces are compounded by a pair of bestial hillbillies who sexually assault one of the men.

"Everything You Wanted to Know About Sex" — Woody Allen translates Dr. David Reuben sex manual into seven episodes of gags. Humor is explicit and verbal.

"Scarecrow" — The poignant story of the friendship of two likeable drifters is punctuated by comic incidents. Sex, nudity, cursing and violence.

Former POW Given Traffic Sentence

EL CAJON, Calif. (UPI) — Former prisoner of war Juan M. Astorga, who was held captive 10 months in North Vietnam, pleaded guilty yesterday to two traffic offenses and was placed on a year's probation.

The Army specialist hit another car on a local freeway on April 12. Although he was charged with hit-and-run and reckless driving at the time, the charges were later reduced to speeding and making an unsafe lane change.

Suitcase, Purse Stolen From Car

A suitcase containing men's clothing and an empty purse, all valued at $310, were apparently taken from the trunk of a car parked in a lot at the Peacock Gap Country Club yesterday between noon and 4:30 p.m., San Rafael Police reported today.

The car and property belong to Mr. and Mrs. Hal Eugene Stookey of Salt Lake City, Utah. Police were unable to explain how the trunk was opened, as no sign of forced entry was visible.

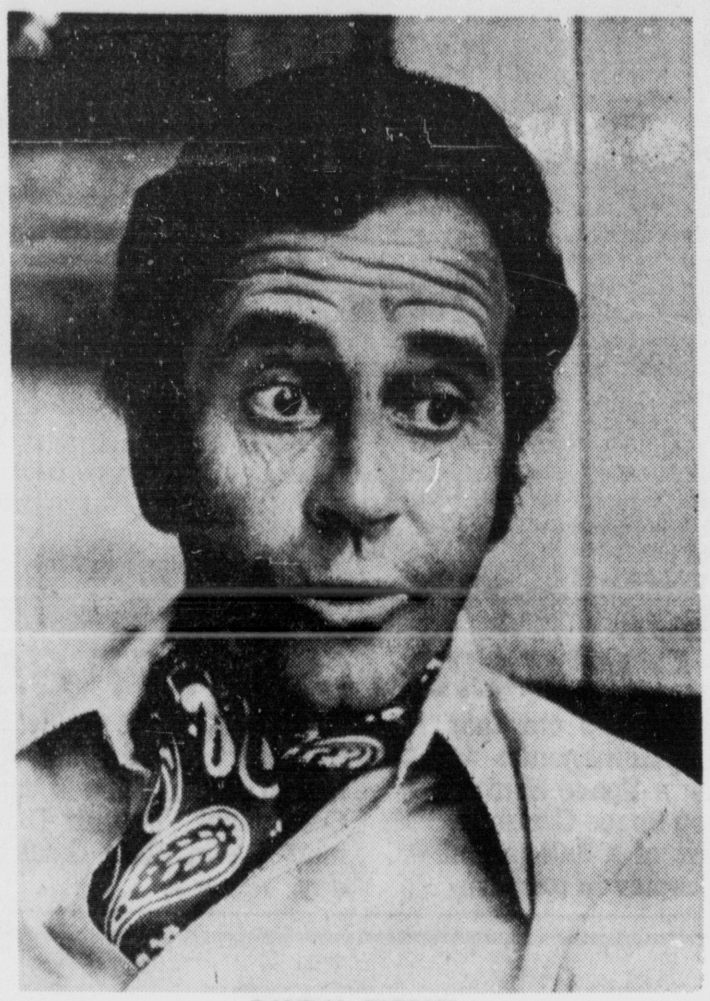
HE'S HAPPIER ENTERTAINING

Executive Returns To Singing

By BILL ROBERTS



DALE M. CORLISS

"I decided at sea that I would not go back into conglomerate life and lose myself again."

Giving up a vice presidential position with a firm that manufactures medical supplies is not the kind of decision one makes every day.

But for Dale M. Corliss of Mill Valley, the shift from the world of big business and conglomerates to nursing applause from varied audiences has been personally rewarding.

"The father is out making money and is never home to enjoy it," he says of the business world. He finds that entertaining has made him a "happier" person.

Corliss, born in Seattle, grew up singing and was an entertainer long before he ever thought of entering business; at 16, he was singing professionally on a ferryboat.

He sang with Dick Jurgen's band for a short time and was on the society circuit in Washington, singing at debutante balls and other events at large hotels in New York and Washington.

In the early 1950's, though, the direction of his life changed when he came to San Francisco and married. He sang on armed forces radio and television in Seattle during the Korean War but when they returned to the Bay Area in 1954, his wife, Shirlee, asked him to give up singing and find a spot in business.

Corliss worked his way up to western sales manager for McNeil Laboratories of Fort Washington, Pa., and supervised the sales force for the Johnson and Johnson subsidiary in California, Nevada and Hawaii. In 1968 he moved up to a similar position with Electro Systems, a San Francisco based manufacturer of lighting equipment for hospitals and schools.

But his wife's arguments for going into business proved less than valid. She had seen the move into business as a stabilizing force, but that did not prove true. "I was never in the home we built," he said of their Mill Valley house. And after moving up to a vice president's job in sales he found himself at home even less to enjoy the growing years of their two daughters, now 17 and 21. "You can fly away a whole day," he mused.

Meanwhile, entertaining remained in his blood and he kept in touch with that world, finding in it a kind of satisfaction the business world could not provide him. Gradually, those ties reasserted themselves with an ever greater pull and, last September, he began singing at Flavio's Trattoria in San Francisco, while keeping his work-a-day job.

By February, Corliss was ready for the shift which would gradually take him away from the corporate world.

"I hadn't had a vacation for five years," he said.

His vacation proved to be the first step in the ultimate transformation as he traveled and sang on a cruise ship to Hawaii and the South Seas. Corliss proved so popular as an entertainer that the transport line booked him for a cruise to Russia immediately following his return to this country.

Somewhere along the second cruise Corliss began to realize that he had changed.

"People told me I was always laughing. For the first time in 16 years I was really enjoying my work," he said.

In addition to singing on the ship he began booking himself into small clubs and hotels at the ship's stops. He sang in clubs on the Greek island of Mykonos, in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Romania and in Odessa of the Soviet Union.

People were very inquisitive and most warm and friendly he said of the Russians he met while entertaining and relaxing in the Soviet city.

"Many had never seen an American entertainer before," he said and he was showered with applause, flowers and affectionate reactions.

But the entertaining was not to be a respite from work for Corliss, it was to be a total change. He wrote his company and informed them that his "leave of absence" would become permanent. He was still at sea but he began making plans on where his career would go.

Corless made plans to return to Seville to sing at a club where his sister had booked him during the trip. And a group of Brazilians from the ship have arranged for an engagement in Brazil.

The San Francisco Press Club was recently entertained by Corliss and numerous individual appearances, both private and public, are filling in the time until all the overseas booking arrangements are complete.

His wife now finds that the travel involved is no more than Corliss had experienced in business and for him this has been a period of rebirth.

"It has made me much younger in my attitude," said the 49-year-old entertainer. "But I found out maybe 16 years too late."

The next few months will be filled with hurried activity for Corliss as he shares time with his two daughters and wife and prepares for his upcoming engagements including a stint at the Miyako Hotel in San Francisco.

But the hurried activity and tight schedules do not cause Corliss the sense of inconvenience and pressure he experienced in the business world, because he is enjoying his work again.

"I have gotten back into my own realm," he said.

Microfilm And Computers Help Libraries Meet Changing Needs

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — The day may be coming when the nation's libraries will be stocked with "books" the size of sugar cubes, readable with the help of laser beams.

Small lithium crystals might be imprinted by lasers with information. Lasers then could be used to read this information from the tiny "books."

Much more immediately, however, and already in heavy use in such businesses as banks, insurance companies, and auto part firms, are books and other information on microfilm. The federal government, for instance, manufactures about 10 million of these "microfiches" a month for those who want to read government documents in this fashion.

However, the challenge of matching more standard technology with changing informational needs in the early 1970s is proving quite stiff enough for those in the information business.

Indeed, the two-year-old National Commission on Libraries and Information Science maintains that the present inadequacies are considerable and that the United States has a great deal of catching up to do. Problems range from underfunding and poor collections to a lack of sure knowledge on the part of libraries as to their goals and the needs of those they serve.

The 15-member commission is a permanent, independent agency in the executive branch, charged by Congress with the job of assessing U.S. informational needs and mapping a plan whereby "adequate" service to meet them can be provided.

Cautiously, the Commission is on record as not bent on improving libraries or any other familiar type of service, but rather of somehow devising a method by which the most users of information can be reached.

The commission's "prime" target at the moment, according to executive director Charles H. Stevens, is development of an organizational network in which libraries of all types cooperate to provide regional resource and bibliographic services.

Beginnings of many kinds have been made, says Mr. Stevens, on leave of absence from his library post at Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he has worked extensively with information transfer experiments.

He points out that in the state of Ohio, for instance, one card entitled you to take out a book in any library and return it to any other which then ships it back to the original holder.

On the Ohio State University campus, in another experiment, a student may check with the teletype console at any branch of the several libraries on campus and easily order up a book from any location. In still another experiment under way in Ohio, several college libraries are cooperating in communicating catalogue information, the better to know what resources other libraries are holding.

The most advanced state, however, in such network development is New York where a cooperative link in purchasing and processing books already is strong among public libraries and is beginning to take root among academic libraries.

One key step on the road to such increased cooperation is a hard look at the actual needs of those tapping information resources. The commission is finding, through contracted reasearch studies and regional hearings it already has held in the Midwest, Far West, and Southeast, that these needs vary greatly according to geographic location, profession, and age of the individual.

Clearly, some hard decisions as to priorities lie ahead — whether, for instance, it is more important to serve the leadership community better or to serve at all some individuals such as the educable but mentally handicapped not now being served.

Acquisition of materials is another side of the problem. In the U.S. alone, nearly three times as many book titles (30,000) are coming out each year as in 1950. Also, many other countries are far more prolific in this respect and lean less on major publishing houses for the output.

Scrimshaw Show Set In Sausalito

Three engraved sperm whale teeth by Sausalito scrimshandler William Gilkerson will go on exhibit July 21 at the San Francisco Maritime Museum.

The matched set depicts Northwest Coast whaling scenes and will appear in the central area of the museum's main floor daily through the end of August.

The engraving process, known as scrimshaw, was begun in the last century and his highly prized by collectors today according to the museum. Gilkerson began scrimshanding while sailing.

Gilkerson's work will be part of a larger display including ivory carvings oranmenting walking sticks, pendants, weapons and ivory-mounted bagpipes.

Gilkerson is associated with Scrimshaw Shop in Sausalito.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and Parents' Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Aristocats" — Feature length animated cartoon set in Paris in 1910. A high society cat and her kittens are kidnapped by the villainous butler so that he can inherit their fabulous estate.

"Lost Horizon" — Spectacular music version of classic tale about Shangri-La, that mystical hidden valley of brotherly love and tranquil longevity. Fine cast.

"Song of the South" — Disney's rendition of Uncle Remus tales of slave days Down South with charming cartoons of Brer Rabbit's escapades.

"Sounder" — A fascinating document of life in the deep south as well as an inspiring drama of familiar love and loyalty.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Day of the Jackal" — Highly charged but lengthy thriller. It is disturbing in that it invited the audience to suspend moral judgement on political assassination. An attempt on the life of deGaulle by extreme right-wing French OAS because he de-colonized Algeria. Some suggestive scenes.

"Effects of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" — The daughter of a vitrolic wowed woman learns through a science project that the seed of human promise can survive the mutations of inheritance and environment. Considerable crude language.

"Kotch" — Charming, frankly sentimental picture about a grandfather finding meaning in life by befriending a pregnant teenager and helping her through a difficult period in life.

"The Last of Sheila" — Six people who knew Sheila and had motives for killing her are invited by a film producer to his yacht. The games they play reveal secrets and leads to more violence.

"Live and Let Die" — Eighth in a series of James Bond tales. This time he must save the world from drug addiction — the master mind is a Harlem gangster. Usual gimics, chases and tensions.

"The Other" — A grim horror story about a little boy who is possessed by the evil spirit of his dead twin brother and the violent deeds he performs on his family. Gruesome implications.

"Paper Moon" — An expertly crafted sophisticated comedy drama recreating the Thirties. A travelling salesman-con artist agrees to deliver a 9-year-old orphan to an Aunt in Missouri. The child is tough, smokes and swears and out swindles her mentor. Disturbing thought is that some children may copy her behavior.

BORDERLINE
Adults Only)

"Chato's Land" — Excellent cast, fine photography makes this tale of some of the history behind the white man's fight against the Indian is engrossing and memorable. One rape scene, gruesome violence.

"Friends of Eddie Coyle" — Cynical crime movie about a small time hood who gets squeezed between the law and the underworld. Violence, sex and excessive cursing.

"Rage" — A rancher and his son are accidently exposed to nerve gas. The army denies it and use them as human guinea pigs. The father's rampage of violence in revenge is devastating.

ADULTS ONLY

"Deliverance" — Four men take a three-day canoe trip which becomes a gripping nightmare. The hostile natural forces are compounded by a pair of bestial hillbillies who sexually assault one of the men.

"Everything You Wanted to Know About Sex" — Woody Allen translates Dr. David Reuben sex manual into seven episodes of gags. Humor is explicit and verbal.

"Scarecrow" — The poignant story of the friendship of two likeable drifters is punctuated by comic incidents. Sex, nudity, cursing and violence.

Former POW Given Traffic Sentence

EL CAJON, Calif. (UPI) — Former prisoner of war Juan M. Astorga, who was held captive 10 months in North Vietnam, pleaded guilty yesterday to two traffic offenses and was placed on a year's probation.

The Army specialist hit another car on a local freeway on April 12. Although he was charged with hit-and-run and reckless driving at the time, the charges were later reduced to speeding and making an unsafe lane change.

Suitcase, Purse Stolen From Car

A suitcase containing men's clothing and an empty purse, all valued at $310, were apparently taken from the trunk of a car parked in a lot at the Peacock Gap Country Club yesterday between noon and 4:30 p.m., San Rafael Police reported today.

The car and property belong to Mr. and Mrs. Hal Eugene Stookey of Salt Lake City, Utah. Police were unable to explain how the trunk was opened, as no sign of forced entry was visible.

PUSH FORWARD FOR FIRST GEAR

That looks like one fancy sports car that Russian cosmonaut Yuriy Romanenko is looking over, but it's really a Space Shuttle simulator at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston. Romanenko is part of a delegation of cosmonauts visiting the center in preparation for a joint Soviet-United States space mission in 1975. Planned in the mission is a linkup of an Apollo and Soyuz Spacecraft. Cosmonaut Vladimir Dzhanibekov and Astronaut David Scott (back-rt.) watched yesterday.

CATTLE TRAPPED IN OVERTURNED TRAILER

A huge cattle trailer lies sprawled on its side while Marin County firemen work to right it after an accident on Petaluma-Point Reyes Road west of the San Antonio Creek Bridge. A truck driven by James A. Lee of Payette, Ida., was pulling the trailer yesterday when the trailer rolled over while rounding a corner, snapped its coupling to the truck and rolled down the embankment. Firemen used cutting tools (right photo) to free this cow and 53 others trapped in the trailer. After the cutting operation the trapped cows tumbled from the vehicle onto the ground. Nine animals died in the trailer owned by Campbell Transportation of Caldwell, Ida. The driver of the truck was not injured in the mishap, because the coupling snapped clean and left the truck upright on the road.

EYEWITNESSES TO JUSTICE

San Rafael Students Spend Hours In Courtroom Studies

By PAUL CANE

An unusual first-hand look at the United States judicial system is the goal of a three-week high school summer class, "You and the Courts."

Daily excursions to the Marin County Civic Center to see law in action are featured as part of the San Rafael High School District course.

Virginia Franklin, a San Rafael High School social studies teacher, planned the course to "find new ways of reaching students." She said that her students are fascinated by the personal look at the judicial system that the unusual, independent-study teaching method gives them.

The class has met daily for three weeks at Terra Linda High School for one-hour introductory sessions. Then, Mrs. Franklin, said students go to the Marin County Hall of Justice to see living examples of textbook law.

"Going to court is so much better than sitting in a classroom," said Peggy Hickey, one of the 33 9th through 12th graders now completing the course's first session.

Students have spent time studying the sheriff's office, the county jail, the grand jury, many municipal court proceedings and even have gone to San Francisco's federal building for an inside look at the federal judicial process.

Mrs. Franklin said study in the course is very individualized. Each day the group splits up into smaller sections interested in different facets of the local court system.

Each class member gets five units of academic credit for his work, although the course does not fulfill district government requirements because it specializes on the court system rather than the entire governmental process.

The students agree the course is a fascinating approach to learning, but one class member has a special reason for her involvement — it will help her become a U.S. citizen.

Mary Carmo, born in Portugal, would like to become a naturalized citizen, and must pass a U.S. Constitution examination before she can do so. The class was recommended to her as a way to prepare for the upcoming test.

Yesterday the class witnessed a small claims court calendar with Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty presiding. They agreed that the experience "helped make the judge seem more human."

The course does not include any required reading assignments, although each student must keep a diary-log of his reactions to his courtroom experiences.

Mrs. Franklin said she is hoping to start another three-week section of the class Monday and invited high school students from the San Rafael-Terra Linda area to register in room 606 of Terra Linda High School Monday at 8 a.m.

Although more than one student is interested in going into law as a profession, most of the group are mainly interested in getting practical knowledge of court procedure that will be of value to them in the future.

"Things like civil suits, those are the kind of activities that they'll be involved in when they are adults," Mrs. Franklin said.

Most everyone in the class liked the independent-learning teaching method that Mrs. Franklin favors. "You're allowed to draw your own conclusions on something without a teacher saying, 'This is right,'" said Patti Romanelli.

Mrs. Franklin said the course helps her students think for themselves. "They aren't taught to give rote answers," she said. "I really have a lot of confidence that my kids are getting a lot out of this."

Students Win Probe Of Store Signs' Bias

The Marin County Human Rights Commission last night directed its staff to investigate alleged discrimination by several San Rafael merchants said to have attempted to limit student patronage.

Douglas H. Bosco, director of the Human Relations Department which serves as staff to the rights commission, said today the commission will hold a special hearing if his department's investigation finds the students' rights are being violated.

The action was prompted by a letter from College of Marin student leaders who listed four San Rafael stores which displayed signs during the spring semester limiting the hours and numbers of students in the stores.

"We feel this to be a flagrant violation of the rights of students to use the business establishments of this state," the letter said. "We urge other student groups in the county to join with us in opposing these stores and their action."

Bosco said three of the four stores involved are located near San Rafael High School and have placed signs warning students that the stores are "off-limits" during school hours.

The stores are Mayfair Market on Third Street, the Evelyn Porter Nutrition Shop and the Michelle Craig store, both in the Montecito shopping center, he said.

According to the students' letter, Mayfair has displayed a sign reading "no students allowed before 4 p.m. unless authorized by parents," Evelyn Porter Nutrition Shop displayed a sign reading "off limits San Rafael High students during school hours" and the Michelle Craig store posted one saying simply "off limits during school hours."

The fourth store is the Stop and Go Market on the Miracle Mile which displayed a sign reading "as of now, no more than three kids allowed in the store at any one time."

The letter was signed by Paul de Lucia, College of Marin student body president, and Mark Conlan, treasurer.

Dixie School Vandalism Continues

A rash of vandalism which has hit the Dixie School District in the last two weeks continued last night with the breaking of two large windows of the library of the Miller Creek School, 2254 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael.

According to Joseph B. Goff, district assistant superintendent, vandals had previously broken 13 windows at the Mary E. Silveira School at 375 Blackstone Drive in San Rafael during the past two weeks.

Goff said the vandalism had also reached the district's storage yard on Marinwood Avenue where damage has been done to autombiles and buses as well as buildings at the yard.

Replacement of the 13 windows at the Silveira school was put at $35 each and the Miller Creek replacement cost was estimated at $50 each by Goff.

Goff said there was only one or two days during the two week period when some vandalism was not reported.

Speed Charge Is Denied In Court

A man thought to be a key figure in a methamphetamine manufacturing scheme pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing the drug.

Preliminary hearing for Robert Steven Basey, 29, of no fixed address, was set for July 26.

Basey is charged with having 17 packets of methamphetamine in his car last Nov. 24 when stopped by Novato Police.

Basey also faces a federal charge of conspiring to make illegal drugs stemming from raids in Sonoma and Lake counties.

Mary Brooks Head Of Tenants Union

Mary Brooks, president of the Marin County Tenants Union, informed the Independent-Journal today that she is not associated with the Marin City Tenants' Association as reported in the I-J yesterday.

Mrs. Brooks was reported to be the president of the Marin City association in an article announcing a meeting of the group. She said she has never been associated with the group.

Recreation Program Is Approved

The Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission last night supported a proposal for a joint recreation program with the City of Belvedere for this fall.

Belvedere parks and recreation commissioners Sherry Levit and Leslie Anixter outlined the plan and urged that a joint meeting be set up to work out details so that the proposal could be put in action by September.

Commissioners named colleague Donald S. Pickett to work with the Belvedere representatives to arrange a meeting.

In other action, commissioners elected Gary Gray chairman, replacing Peter Arnold. Gray 41, is a planning consultant and has been a commission member one year.

They also formally seated newly-appointed commissioners Frank Herald, superintendent of Angel Island State Park, and Angelo Capozzi, a physician with offices in San Francisco and Marin.

Commissioners also voted to recommend to the city council that the bike path that now ends at Cove Road and Tiburon Boulevard be extended to Beach Road.

Commissioners said the end of the path at busy Tiburon Boulevard is dangerous and estimated cost of the extension at between $5,000 and $6,000, Robert L. Kleinert, assistant city manager, said.

Axed Carwash To Be Appealed

Atlantic-Richfield Co. will appeal the recent rejection of its plans to build a carwash in Mill Valley at a city council meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The planning commission last month turned down the application for the carwash which was to be built on the parking lot of the Safeway Store at Miller Avenue and Camino Alto. The carwash was part of a plan calling for remodeling of the food store and for building an office complex on the site.

Ray Offenbach, operator of the Mill Valley Food Mart at 238 East Blithedale Avenue also will appeal the planning commission denial of his application to open a delicatessen in a building at 244 East Blithedale Avenue. His plans were turned down on the grounds that they would create too much new traffic on Blithedale.

Court Reduces Felony Charge

A San Francisco man was charged yesterday in Marin Municipal Court with a reduced misdemeanor count of auto theft.

He was arrested May 15 at a home in Bel Aire while allegedly stealing two 10-speed bicycles. The car he was driving had been stolen earlier that day from a San Francisco man, according to the Marin Sheriff's Department.

Homestead Buys Option On Land

The Homestead Valley Community Association has agreed to spend $1,000 to buy an option on 10 acres of land known as Alpine Meadows which it hopes to buy as open space.

Larry Glazier, association secretary, said that the association decided at its Tuesday meeting to purchase the land at the end of Rydal Avenue, if a $600,000 open space bond issue is passed by Homestead Valley voters in September. The asking price of the land is $30,000.

The association also agreed to pay $1,000 to renew its lease for another year on Stolte Grove, an area used as a park in Homestead Valley.

Through this series of Ads, the member offices of the Marin County Board of Realtors want you to know as much as possible about buying or selling your home.

Other payments through an Impound account might include pro-rated taxes between buyer and seller; pro-rated fire insurance premiums; pro-rated rents or bonds.

Extras include such things as a credit report, Notary and recording Fee, Loan Fee, Appraisal report, tax service, ALTA Inspection Fee.

When buying a home, you'll find it to your advantage to work through a member of the Marin County Board of Realtors. And when selling your home, be sure to place it on Multiple Listing. IMPOUNDS & EXTRAS EXPLAINED.

Through this series of Ads, the member offices of the Marin County Board of Realtors want you to know as much as possible about buying or selling your home.

When you buy a home, there may be charges known as "Impounds & Extras". Since some mortgage loans require taxes and insurance be paid monthly, a trust fund, or "Impound" account is set up by the lender for the payment of these funds. Other payments through an Impound account might include pro-rated taxes between buyer and seller; pro-rated fire insurance premiums; pro-rated rents or bonds.

Extras include such things as a credit report, Notary and recording Fee, Loan Fee, Appraisal report, tax service, ALTA Inspection Fee.

When buying a home, you'll find it to your advantage to work through a member of the Marin County Board of Realtors. And when selling your home, be sure to place it on Multiple Listing. You'll have more than 1,000 salesmen working for you. The member offices of the Marin County Board of Realtors. Your Real Estate Professionals.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Friday, July 13, the 194th day of 1973 with 171 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1863, opposition to the Federal Conscription Act led to riots in New York City, in which more than 1,000 persons were killed.

In 1865, Horace Greeley wrote an editorial in the New York Tribune in which he said "Go West, young man, go West and grow up with the country."

In 1878, the Russo-Turkish war ended.

A thought for the day: U.S. historian Henry Brooks Adams said, "What one knows is, in youth, of little moment; they know enough who know how to learn."

Regents' Selection Plan Hit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A proposed change in the way University of California regents are chosen and in the length of their terms would foster mediocrity in the university and encourage political interference, some current board of regent members say.

Regents now are selected by the governor, subject to confirmation by the state Senate, and serve 16 years. Critics have said the result has been a board of regents made up of rich and powerful persons with generally conservative views.

Two weeks ago the Legislature's Joint Committee on the Master Plan for Higher Education, headed by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, introduced a measure to change the method of selection of regents by a constitutional amendment.

COMMITTEE PLAN

That proposal would set up a nine-member nominating committee which would submit to the governor five nominees for each of the 16 memberships on the board of regents. The governor would appoint from among the committee nominees, and the appointments would not be subject to Senate approval. The regents' term of office would be halved to eight years.

U.C. students, faculty and alumni would be represented on the nominating committee whose other six members would be the state superintendent of public instruction, the regents' chairman, the Assembly speaker and Senate president pro tem, and the Assembly and Senate minority leaders.

"The Higher Education Nominating Committee shall be responsible for nominating a variety of persons of different backgrounds, ideologies and opinions," the proposed amendment declares. The regents should be "broadly representative of the general public, including ethnic minorities and women," the amendment states.

OPPOSITION VOICED

Meeting here yesterday the regents finance committee members voiced strong opposition to the proposal after hearing a report on it from President Charles J. Hitch.

Regent Dean A. Watkins of Palo Alto said the proposal would "guarantee the growth of mediocrity in the university."

Regent William French Smith of Los Angeles said, "I can't imagine a measure more designed to put the university back into the political arena."

Other finance committee members joined in the opposition and discussed ways to win public support against the proposed method of choosing regents.

In another action, the committee approved a $3-a-quarter increase in student fees at U.C. Santa Barbara to finance free bus service for students.

Santa Barbara students had approved the fee increase in a "Clean Air Initiative" to cut down automobile traffic on campus. A contract for the bus service is being negotiated with the Santa Barbara Metropolitan Transit District.

Bottle Whacker Charge Reduced

A carnival worker who allegedly whacked a Mill Valley man on the head with a beer bottle yesterday was charged with a misdemeanor battery charge in Marin Municipal Court.

Larry Gale Brown, 18, of no known address, originally had been arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon, a felony, but the reduced charge was filed in the court.

Forgers Uncovered, 2,000 Years Late

WARSAW (UPI) — A group of foreign currency forgers has been exposed in the Warsaw area, but they will not go on trial — because, the Polish news agency said yesterday, they operated 2,000 years ago.

Archaeologists who studied Roman coins last year in the village of Drzewicz near Warsaw discovered many of them were fakes, the agency said. The ancient forgers apparently were successful in imitating pictures of Roman emperors on coin faces, but they failed to use proper inscriptions on the coins.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Hemorrhoids: How To Get Them And How To Get Rid Of Them

Hemorrhoids (piles) are two sets of blood vessels that line the walls of the rectum. The internal set lies under the membranes of the rectum and the external is beneath the skin that encircles the outlet. These vessels have no valves and, in this respect, differ from veins elsewhere in the body. Without these "locks" or safeguards, the vessels become overdistended when the individual stands or strains. Location also predisposes them to irritation, inflammation, obstruction, and bleeding.

SYMPTONS rarely occur unless one of the external veins increases in size and projects to the outside. At this stage, there is a vague soreness which goes away when the swelling subsides. Constipation, uncleanliness, straining at stool, being jostled, or lifting heavy objects aggravates the condition. Anything that increases pressure in the abdomen, such as pregnancy or tumors, also complicates piles. Blood clots distend the vein to such an extent it protrudes to the outside. A bluish swelling, the size of the little finger, is noted. The pile, which distends rapidly, is so tender that sitting becomes an ordeal.

Hemorrhoidal discomfort usually goes away spontaneously, but when severe, most victims want relief — now. An anesthetic ointment or sitting in a tub of hot water is helpful. When the vein is distended with a clot, the physician hastens healing by nicking the vein to allow the clotted blood to escape. This is not a painful procedure. Shrinking agents also are useful when the hemorrhoids cause only slight distress.

CURE ENSUES when the entire plexus of veins is removed. But before any thing is done, a complete anal and rectosigmoidoscopic study must be made to make sure that a cancer in the lower bowel is not responsible for the bleeding or distress. Several surgical methods are used to remove hemorrhoids. The most popular utilize clamps, scissors, scalpels, and other surgical instruments.

In other technics, the hemorrhoids are destroyed with a cautery and more recently with cryosurgery (freezing with a liquid nitrogen probe). Over the years, alternate remedies have been reported, such as the use of rubber bands to squeeze off the pile and stretching the opening of the rectum to break up adhesions.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

TABLE DIATHERMY

E. J. B. writes: I own a table model diathermy, and each day I give myself 10 minutes treatment on a stiffening knee and 10 minutes on an arthritic neck. Is there any risk in such daily use of diathermy?

REPLY

No harm, so long as it does not aggravate your arthritis or burn the skin.

X-RAYS AND EMPHYSEMA

REPLY

Severe emphysema, yes, but the mild type may be missed. The regular large size chest films show more of the details. Breathing tests are more accurate and used in making the diagnosis.

ARTHRITIC HIP

B. B. C. writes: Is arthritis of the hip common after a hip fracture?

REPLY

Reagan Lauds U.S. Nod To Work-Or-Else Rules

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has praised the state's controversial work-or-else welfare program as a "considerable success."

Reagan made the comment yesterday after HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger in Washington announced full approval of the Community Work Experience Program (CWEP). The governor said he was "very pleased" with the HEW approval.

Under CWEP, Reagan said, the movement of welfare recipients off public assistance rolls and into self-supporting jobs "is running at the rate of 45.5 per cent in counties with CWEP contracts." There has been only an 11 per cent reduction in counties without such work programs, he said.

Reagan noted the program has repeatedly been challenged in the courts and the legislature, yet statistically it continued to show success.

"We have been having considerable success with our programs for job-capable welfare recipients," he said. "Every program that moves actual or potential welfare recipients into real jobs benefits not only the individual, but also the economy and the taxpayer."

Under the CWEP, welfare recipients are given a choice of accepting a public service job if they can't find regular employment or being removed from public assistance rolls. Sixteen counties are currently participating in the program which will eventually be expanded to 35 counties.

Stalemated BART Talks Start Again

OAKLAND (UPI) — Negotiations have resumed in the 12-day walkout by 1,200 employees against the Bay Area Rapid Transit System.

The talks had been suspended for two days after Monday's session when both sides reported they were "miles apart."

The negotiations resumed last night and a BART spokesman said a "modified proposal" might be made to the two striking unions, but "a complete package is not in the works at this time."

The major issue in the strike is equalization of pay for workers hired directly by BART and those transferred from other transit systems who receive higher pay.

Paul Varacalli, executive secretary of the United Public Employes Union Local 390, said that unless negotiations become more meaningful picketing may be ordered at all BART construction sites. This would further delay the start of BART service though an underwater tube from the East Bay to San Francisco.

The directors voted 7-5 in favor of keeping Stokes in the $52,000-a-year post.

Man's Condition Is Satisfactory

A San Francisco man was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital today with injuries suffered in a head-on crash yesterday on the Old Redwood Highway north of Belvedere Drive, near Mill Valley.

California Highway Patrol officers said Locke's fiberglass car was on the wrong side of the road when it collided with a car driving by Bobby Lee Bonds, 27, of San Carlos.

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

The Larkspur Planning Commission will hold a public hearing to consider the revised, proposed Planned Development District Ordinance (Chapter 18.55 of the Larkspur Municipal Code) as amended by the Larkspur City Council.

Said district would establish for certain areas of the community a level of planning and development policy which will be in harmony with the General Plan. The P-D District is designed to allow inclusion within its boundaries a mixture of uses, building intensities or design characteristics which would not normally be permitted in any single use district. The P-D District is intended to be employed in areas where tracts of land are subject to potential development and where coordination of such development is essential to achieve unique and innovative community design.

Said hearing will be held by the Larkspur Planning Commission on July 24, 1973 at 8:00 PM in the Council Chambers, City Hall, Larkspur, California. Refer to City offices for further particulars.

The Real Life John Boy Of TV's "The Waltons"

Because my parents were happy in their profession, they felt I might enjoy it as well. But they didn't push. I was six and a half when my father did "Damn Yankees" in upstate New York and, at the producer's request, let me play one of the three young boys who sang "Ya Gotta Have Heart." That was my first taste of show business. Next, I played John Roosevelt on Broadway in "Sunrise at Campobello." After that I never seriously thought of doing anything else.

In an exclusive interview with Family Weekly's Hollywood editor Peer J. ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Friday, July 13, the 194th day of 1973 with 171 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1863, opposition to the Federal Conscription Act led to riots in New York City, in which more than 1,000 persons were killed.

In 1865, Horace Greeley wrote an editorial in the New York Tribune in which he said "Go West, young man, go West and grow up with the country."

In 1878, the Russo-Turkish war ended.

A thought for the day: U.S. historian Henry Brooks Adams said, "What one knows is, in youth, of little moment; they know enough who know how to learn."

Regents' Selection Plan Hit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A proposed change in the way University of California regents are chosen and in the length of their terms would foster mediocrity in the university and encourage political interference, some current board of regent members say.

Regents now are selected by the governor, subject to confirmation by the state Senate, and serve 16 years. Critics have said the result has been a board of regents made up of rich and powerful persons with generally conservative views.

Two weeks ago the Legislature's Joint Committee on the Master Plan for Higher Education, headed by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, introduced a measure to change the method of selection of regents by a constitutional amendment.

COMMITTEE PLAN

That proposal would set up a nine-member nominating committee which would submit to the governor five nominees for each of the 16 memberships on the board of regents. The governor would appoint from among the committee nominees, and the appointments would not be subject to Senate approval. The regents' term of office would be halved to eight years.

U.C. students, faculty and alumni would be represented on the nominating committee whose other six members would be the state superintendent of public instruction, the regents' chairman, the Assembly speaker and Senate president pro tem, and the Assembly and Senate minority leaders.

"The Higher Education Nominating Committee shall be responsible for nominating a variety of persons of different backgrounds, ideologies and opinions," the proposed amendment declares. The regents should be "broadly representative of the general public, including ethnic minorities and women," the amendment states.

OPPOSITION VOICED

Meeting here yesterday the regents finance committee members voiced strong opposition to the proposal after hearing a report on it from President Charles J. Hitch.

Regent Dean A. Watkins of Palo Alto said the proposal would "guarantee the growth of mediocrity in the university."

Regent William French Smith of Los Angeles said, "I can't imagine a measure more designed to put the university back into the political arena."

Other finance committee members joined in the opposition and discussed ways to win public support against the proposed method of choosing regents.

In another action, the committee approved a $3-a-quarter increase in student fees at U.C. Santa Barbara to finance free bus service for students.

Santa Barbara students had approved the fee increase in a "Clean Air Initiative" to cut down automobile traffic on campus. A contract for the bus service is being negotiated with the Santa Barbara Metropolitan Transit District.

Bottle Whacker Charge Reduced

A carnival worker who allegedly whacked a Mill Valley man on the head with a beer bottle yesterday was charged with a misdemeanor battery charge in Marin Municipal Court.

Larry Gale Brown, 18, of no known address, originally had been arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon, a felony, but the reduced charge was filed in the court.

Forgers Uncovered, 2,000 Years Late

WARSAW (UPI) — A group of foreign currency forgers has been exposed in the Warsaw area, but they will not go on trial — because, the Polish news agency said yesterday, they operated 2,000 years ago.

Archaeologists who studied Roman coins last year in the village of Drzewicz near Warsaw discovered many of them were fakes, the agency said. The ancient forgers apparently were successful in imitating pictures of Roman emperors on coin faces, but they failed to use proper inscriptions on the coins.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Hemorrhoids: How To Get Them And How To Get Rid Of Them

Hemorrhoids (piles) are two sets of blood vessels that line the walls of the rectum. The internal set lies under the membranes of the rectum and the external is beneath the skin that encircles the outlet. These vessels have no valves and, in this respect, differ from veins elsewhere in the body. Without these "locks" or safeguards, the vessels become overdistended when the individual stands or strains. Location also predisposes them to irritation, inflammation, obstruction, and bleeding.

SYMPTONS rarely occur unless one of the external veins increases in size and projects to the outside. At this stage, there is a vague soreness which goes away when the swelling subsides. Constipation, uncleanliness, straining at stool, being jostled, or lifting heavy objects aggravates the condition. Anything that increases pressure in the abdomen, such as pregnancy or tumors, also complicates piles. Blood clots distend the vein to such an extent it protrudes to the outside. A bluish swelling, the size of the little finger, is noted. The pile, which distends rapidly, is so tender that sitting becomes an ordeal.

Hemorrhoidal discomfort usually goes away spontaneously, but when severe, most victims want relief — now. An anesthetic ointment or sitting in a tub of hot water is helpful. When the vein is distended with a clot, the physician hastens healing by nicking the vein to allow the clotted blood to escape. This is not a painful procedure. Shrinking agents also are useful when the hemorrhoids cause only slight distress.

CURE ENSUES when the entire plexus of veins is removed. But before any thing is done, a complete anal and rectosigmoidoscopic study must be made to make sure that a cancer in the lower bowel is not responsible for the bleeding or distress. Several surgical methods are used to remove hemorrhoids. The most popular utilize clamps, scissors, scalpels, and other surgical instruments.

In other technics, the hemorrhoids are destroyed with a cautery and more recently with cryosurgery (freezing with a liquid nitrogen probe). Over the years, alternate remedies have been reported, such as the use of rubber bands to squeeze off the pile and stretching the opening of the rectum to break up adhesions.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

TABLE DIATHERMY

E. J. B. writes: I own a table model diathermy, and each day I give myself 10 minutes treatment on a stiffening knee and 10 minutes on an arthritic neck. Is there any risk in such daily use of diathermy?

REPLY

No harm, so long as it does not aggravate your arthritis or burn the skin.

X-RAYS AND EMPHYSEMA

REPLY

Severe emphysema, yes, but the mild type may be missed. The regular large size chest films show more of the details. Breathing tests are more accurate and used in making the diagnosis.

ARTHRITIC HIP

B. B. C. writes: Is arthritis of the hip common after a hip fracture?

REPLY

Reagan Lauds U.S. Nod To Work-Or-Else Rules

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has praised the state's controversial work-or-else welfare program as a "considerable success."

Reagan made the comment yesterday after HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger in Washington announced full approval of the Community Work Experience Program (CWEP). The governor said he was "very pleased" with the HEW approval.

Under CWEP, Reagan said, the movement of welfare recipients off public assistance rolls and into self-supporting jobs "is running at the rate of 45.5 per cent in counties with CWEP contracts." There has been only an 11 per cent reduction in counties without such work programs, he said.

Reagan noted the program has repeatedly been challenged in the courts and the legislature, yet statistically it continued to show success.

"We have been having considerable success with our programs for job-capable welfare recipients," he said. "Every program that moves actual or potential welfare recipients into real jobs benefits not only the individual, but also the economy and the taxpayer."

Under the CWEP, welfare recipients are given a choice of accepting a public service job if they can't find regular employment or being removed from public assistance rolls. Sixteen counties are currently participating in the program which will eventually be expanded to 35 counties.

Stalemated BART Talks Start Again

OAKLAND (UPI) — Negotiations have resumed in the 12-day walkout by 1,200 employees against the Bay Area Rapid Transit System.

The talks had been suspended for two days after Monday's session when both sides reported they were "miles apart."

The negotiations resumed last night and a BART spokesman said a "modified proposal" might be made to the two striking unions, but "a complete package is not in the works at this time."

The major issue in the strike is equalization of pay for workers hired directly by BART and those transferred from other transit systems who receive higher pay.

Paul Varacalli, executive secretary of the United Public Employes Union Local 390, said that unless negotiations become more meaningful picketing may be ordered at all BART construction sites. This would further delay the start of BART service though an underwater tube from the East Bay to San Francisco.

The directors voted 7-5 in favor of keeping Stokes in the $52,000-a-year post.

Man's Condition Is Satisfactory

A San Francisco man was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital today with injuries suffered in a head-on crash yesterday on the Old Redwood Highway north of Belvedere Drive, near Mill Valley.

California Highway Patrol officers said Locke's fiberglass car was on the wrong side of the road when it collided with a car driving by Bobby Lee Bonds, 27, of San Carlos.

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

The Larkspur Planning Commission will hold a public hearing to consider the revised, proposed Planned Development District Ordinance (Chapter 18.55 of the Larkspur Municipal Code) as amended by the Larkspur City Council.

Said district would establish for certain areas of the community a level of planning and development policy which will be in harmony with the General Plan. The P-D District is designed to allow inclusion within its boundaries a mixture of uses, building intensities or design characteristics which would not normally be permitted in any single use district. The P-D District is intended to be employed in areas where tracts of land are subject to potential development and where coordination of such development is essential to achieve unique and innovative community design.

Said hearing will be held by the Larkspur Planning Commission on July 24, 1973 at 8:00 PM in the Council Chambers, City Hall, Larkspur, California. Refer to City offices for further particulars.

The Real Life John Boy Of TV's "The Waltons"

Because my parents were happy in their profession, they felt I might enjoy it as well. But they didn't push. I was six and a half when my father did "Damn Yankees" in upstate New York and, at the producer's request, let me play one of the three young boys who sang "Ya Gotta Have Heart." That was my first taste of show business. Next, I played John Roosevelt on Broadway in "Sunrise at Campobello." After that I never seriously thought of doing anything else.

(UPI Telephoto)

IN SENATE HEARING

Mitchell Is Thoroughly Quizzed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John N. Mitchell completed 15 hours of openly skeptical questioning by the Senate Watergate Committee yesterday with the announced intention of "going back to my hotel room and getting a drink. Scotch preferably." (See another story, page 1.)

Looking haggard and flushed, the former attorney general who has known the pinnacle of wealth, status and power, had much to ponder while sipping his favorite Scotch whisky in the privacy of his hotel room.

There was the Vesco indictment under which he goes to trial later this year; possible legal action because of his involvement in the Watergate cover-up; and the ringing charge of a Senate investigator that he may have lied under oath.

Under dogged questioning by the committee, Mitchell declared for three days that his aim in not telling President Nixon about the Watergate coverup was to protect the President's re-election and keep the lid on a series of "White House horrors."

While his intention was to prevent the President from injuring his re-election chances by acting to expose those involved, Mitchell at the same time acknowledged he would have told the President "chapter and verse on everything I knew about it" if only he had been directly asked by Nixon.

Sam J. Ervin, D-N. C., the white-haired chairman of the committee, asked: "Isn't it the inescapable conclusion that you exalted the political fortunes of the President above the President's responsibility to perform his constitutional duties to see that the laws were faithfully executed?"

Mitchell: "I think that is a reasonable interpretation of the subject matter. Of course, in reflection, it's a very serious one."

But Mitchell also declared he had no role in approving the bugging plans concocted, he said, by G. Gordon Liddy, a convicted Watergate conspirator.

On that assertion, chief committee counsel Samuel Dash hammered hard, charging that "since you may have given false testimony under oath in prior occasions, is there really any reason for this committee to believe your testimony before this committee, and especially on the issue of whether you did or did not give final approval" to Liddy's plan for widespread political espionage and whether Mitchell took part in payment of hush money to the defendants.

For example, Dash said Mitchell in a Sept. 5, 1972, deposition claimed no knowledge of how Liddy was hired by the Nixon re-election committee and asked "could you actually been able to answer no to that question?"

"Very easily," responded Mitchell, "because I was not aware of how (Jeb Stuart) Magruder (the deputy campaign manager) hired Mr. Liddy."

But Dash pressed on, suggesting "isn't it so, Mr. Mitchell, that you answered 'no' in this context, because at that time, on Sept. 5, Mr. Liddy had been identified as being involved and you did not want to have any relationship with Mr. Liddy's involvement or hiring?"

Mitchell, replied quietly, "I don't think that would have been of that magnitude or consequence. Obviously, Mr. Liddy was known to me..."

Dash also queried Mitchell about an interview he had with FBI agents in July of 1972 when Mitchell claimed his knowledge of the break-in was based only on what he had read in the newspapers when actually he had additional information about Liddy's activities.

Mitchell responded he was not certain the information was correct and "at that particular time we weren't volunteering any information for the reasons that I've . . ."

Dash interrupted, saying "So that in other words, your answers to the FBI were part of a decision that you made, and a rather strong decision for the reasons that you have given, to see to it that none of these things got out?"

Mitchell: "It was the design of those involved not to volunteer any information under these circumstances."

In the most stinging criticism of Mitchell's testimony, Dash said the committee would be forced to "disbelieve" a long list of witnesses including Magruder, former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans; and ousted White House counsel John W. Dean.

Mitchell retorted he disagreed "violently" with the list and suggested the committee should wait before forming a judgment and heard the testimony of "the rest of the witnesses that you are going to have appear" and testify about the subject.

Moore's Memory Proves Short On Facts Regarding Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special Presidential Counsel Richard A. Moore, according to John W. Dean III, would sit around in meetings with the President and recall with precision how Nixon handled the Alger Hiss case or quote chapters from Nixon's book, "Six Crises."

But Moore's memory frequently failed him yesterday when he was examined by the Senate Watergate committee.

"I don't know...It's possible, I'm not sure...I don't have a date on that...I don't recall if I ever saw that memo."

These were the answers Moore gave to many questions as committee counsels quizzed him on his knowledge of when he learned about the Watergate and related activities. He expressed confusion on testimony he had given the committee staff in executive session just a few hours before.

Those who know Moore at the White House describe him as a jovial, friendly man in a staff that is not known for that kind of disposition. He is described as Nixon's "man Friday" who handles special assignments in touchy areas dealing with politics or public relations.

He kept his image intact when he read a 20-page statement to the committee before the cross-examination.

"I serve primarily as an extra hand—as a source of white haired experience—whenever the President or the younger men with line responsibilities seek my help," he said.

John Dean was one of the "younger men" who said he went to Moore for fatherly advice. Dean testified that he, Moore and Nixon would meet, discuss Watergate, and then "the conversation rambled into a discussion of the Hiss case and Mr. Moore discussed his memory of the President's handling of the Hiss case."

It was Moore, Dean said, who could verify his explosive testimony that President Nixon knew of the Watergate cover-up before March 21.

But Moore failed to back up Dean.

"It was my deep conviction—as one who has known the President over the years and has had many private conversations with him—that the critical facts about Watergate did not reach the President until the events that began when John Dean met with him on March 21, 1973," Moore testified.

The confident, fatherly tone that Moore exhibited throughout the reading of the statement disappeared when he finished the prepared remarks.

Assistant Chief Counsel Terry F. Lenzner asked Moore about his knowledge of the Justice Department case against ITT, the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and other incidents that John N. Mitchell described as "White House horrors."

After prodding, and help from Lenzner to "refresh his memory," Moore said he became aware at some point of these activities, but he wasn't sure when.

He discussed the Ellsberg matter with the President in April, he said, but he wasn't sure whether he discussed the government case in general, or E. Howard Hunt's break-in at the psychiatrist's office.

Lenzner asked about a memo relating to the ITT case, and said he and Moore had discussed it just a few hours earlier in the executive session.

"A memo?" Moore asked. "Which memo was that?"

Nixon's Mind On Other Things, Aide Reports

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The only woman member of President Nixon's cabinet said today the President is satisfied that full disclosure will be made on Watergate and he has turned his mind to other matters.

"I haven't heard the word Watergate mentioned around the White House in recent days," said Mrs. Anne Armstrong who sometimes sees Nixon as often as twice a day.

Mrs. Armstrong, whose title is "counsellor to the President," said the high cost of living now is "the No. 1 problem" with Nixon and he will announce "very tough" Phase IV economical restraints in a matter of days that "will go a long way towards solving it."

"Because of the toughness, it will be very brief," she said. She said she could not elaborate but that Phase IV will be strictly "oriented to the American consumer."

Mrs. Armstrong, here to turn over nearly 1,000 acres of "under-utilized" federal lands to Florida's park and recreational system, said this "Legacy of Parks" program which she chairs is very near the heart of the President.

She transferred the land, valued at $1.1 million and located near Brooksville in central Florida and Pensacola in northwest Florida at a special ceremony following a news conference at the state capitol.

At the conference, most of the questions dealt with Watergate.

Mrs. Armstrong, 45, former co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, said she never discussed Watergate with the President.

"But I am certain," she said, "that he knew nothing about Watergate or the more important cover-up."

Saying she saw him three times in two days earlier this week, Mrs. Armstrong said that Nixon "was upset and deeply worried a number of weeks ago as he was finding out things shocking and deeply disturbing to him."

"But once he made the decisions as to who to let go and who to appoint, once he put into motion steps to guarantee full disclosure, he turned his mind away from Watergate to other things," she said.

Mrs. Armstrong said it would be greatly to the President's advantage to speak up on Watergate.

"But I don't think he can," she said, without "cries that he is unfairly influencing the committee investigations and jury trials to come.

"When he does speak up, he'll still be under certain constraints because of pending trials," she added.

Mrs. Armstrong said the tragedy of Watergate has had one good effect.

"We have a more open White House," she said.

IN SENATE HEARING

Mitchell Is Thoroughly Quizzed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John N. Mitchell completed 15 hours of openly skeptical questioning by the Senate Watergate Committee yesterday with the announced intention of "going back to my hotel room and getting a drink. Scotch preferably." (See another story, page 1.)

Looking haggard and flushed, the former attorney general who has known the pinnacle of wealth, status and power, had much to ponder while sipping his favorite Scotch whisky in the privacy of his hotel room.

There was the Vesco indictment under which he goes to trial later this year; possible legal action because of his involvement in the Watergate cover-up; and the ringing charge of a Senate investigator that he may have lied under oath.

Under dogged questioning by the committee, Mitchell declared for three days that his aim in not telling President Nixon about the Watergate coverup was to protect the President's re-election and keep the lid on a series of "White House horrors."

While his intention was to prevent the President from injuring his re-election chances by acting to expose those involved, Mitchell at the same time acknowledged he would have told the President "chapter and verse on everything I knew about it" if only he had been directly asked by Nixon.

Sam J. Ervin, D-N. C., the white-haired chairman of the committee, asked: "Isn't it the inescapable conclusion that you exalted the political fortunes of the President above the President's responsibility to perform his constitutional duties to see that the laws were faithfully executed?"

Mitchell: "I think that is a reasonable interpretation of the subject matter. Of course, in reflection, it's a very serious one."

But Mitchell also declared he had no role in approving the bugging plans concocted, he said, by G. Gordon Liddy, a convicted Watergate conspirator.

On that assertion, chief committee counsel Samuel Dash hammered hard, charging that "since you may have given false testimony under oath in prior occasions, is there really any reason for this committee to believe your testimony before this committee, and especially on the issue of whether you did or did not give final approval" to Liddy's plan for widespread political espionage and whether Mitchell took part in payment of hush money to the defendants.

For example, Dash said Mitchell in a Sept. 5, 1972, deposition claimed no knowledge of how Liddy was hired by the Nixon re-election committee and asked "could you actually been able to answer no to that question?"

"Very easily," responded Mitchell, "because I was not aware of how (Jeb Stuart) Magruder (the deputy campaign manager) hired Mr. Liddy."

But Dash pressed on, suggesting "isn't it so, Mr. Mitchell, that you answered 'no' in this context, because at that time, on Sept. 5, Mr. Liddy had been identified as being involved and you did not want to have any relationship with Mr. Liddy's involvement or hiring?"

Mitchell, replied quietly, "I don't think that would have been of that magnitude or consequence. Obviously, Mr. Liddy was known to me..."

Dash also queried Mitchell about an interview he had with FBI agents in July of 1972 when Mitchell claimed his knowledge of the break-in was based only on what he had read in the newspapers when actually he had additional information about Liddy's activities.

Mitchell responded he was not certain the information was correct and "at that particular time we weren't volunteering any information for the reasons that I've . . ."

Dash interrupted, saying "So that in other words, your answers to the FBI were part of a decision that you made, and a rather strong decision for the reasons that you have given, to see to it that none of these things got out?"

Mitchell: "It was the design of those involved not to volunteer any information under these circumstances."

In the most stinging criticism of Mitchell's testimony, Dash said the committee would be forced to "disbelieve" a long list of witnesses including Magruder, former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans; and ousted White House counsel John W. Dean.

Mitchell retorted he disagreed "violently" with the list and suggested the committee should wait before forming a judgment and heard the testimony of "the rest of the witnesses that you are going to have appear" and testify about the subject.

Dean testified that he, Moore and Nixon would meet, discuss Watergate, and then "the conversation rambled into a discussion of the Hiss case and Mr. Moore discussed his memory of the President's handling of the Hiss case."

Being pedigreed is not without its headaches.

Marin's elite of dogdom are forced to withstand rigorous preening and then prance under hot lights in a show ring while the muts have it made. What are the dog fanciers of Marin really up to? Read the lead story in Marin Living section of tomorrow's WEEK-END I-J and find out. The American Kennel Society's only affiliate here in Marin is the subject of this fascinating story of life in canine high society.

The new Marin Living section has graduated to a full page with color and a bright, magazine style. It goes behind the scenes for you and gives you a new dimension to life in the County. Make it a week-end habit!

LAUNCHING A PROTEST

Tommie Agee (left) is an Astro but it was the Phillies' Mike Schmidt (20) who was airborne last night in the sixth inning in Philadelphia. Umpire Art Williams called Agee safe at third base on a hit by Roger Metzger, and third-sacker Schmidt registered his highly visible protest. Houston won, 7-6.

Weiskopf A Stroke Ahead Of Miller In British Open

ij Sports

TROON, Scotland (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf shot a one-under-par 71 in drenching rain to stave off U.S. Open Champion Johnny Miller's third round charge today and take a one stroke lead into the final round of the $125,000 British Open Golf Championship.

Weiskopf lost his overnight lead to Miller when he bogeyed the first and third holes, then took six on the par four ninth. But as Miller faltered on the back nine with two bogey fives, Weiskopf holed two pressure-filled 15-foot putts for birdies to end the day 10-under par with a 54-hole total of 206.

Bert Yancey, three strokes behind Weiskopf at the start, crumbled with a 73 for 211 and Jack Nicklaus played a round of 76 he will quickly want to forget to drop him nine strokes behind on 215.

Lee Trevino, the defending champion who was seeking his third consecutive British Open title, ~~had putting troubles a~~ finished with a 73 and a 54-hole score of 221—five over par.

Arnold Palmer, aided by some exceptional iron play, shot three birdies on the back nine for a 70 and led the early finishers with a two-over-par 218.

Nicklaus said he planned to take up the challenge as he bid for an all-time record 14th major championship.

At the conclusion of the second round, he said "I have to play better golf than I have in the last two days." He went out with a determined air to take command.

"I haven't played well. I've ~~been~~ playing too many bad holes and making too many bad shots down the back nine," Nicklaus added.

Nicklaus began the second round over the rugged 7,064-yard championship course just one stroke behind Weiskopf but, while Weiskopf raced to a historic record five-under-par 67 for a two-round total of 135, the tournament favorite bogeyed the second, 10th and 15th holes in rain and a steadily increasing wind.

Playing alongside Nicklaus was Bert Yancey, who notched a three-under-par 69 to head Nicklaus home by one stroke.

"I'm happy enough with my play," said Yancey, who shares second spot with 26-year-old U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller, three shots down on Weiskopf. "I drove the ball exceptionally well today. The best part of my game was driving and putting."

Miller, the flaxen-haired idol of golf's growing teen-age army of fans at Troon, indicated a growing familiarity with the west Scottish coast course to come home four-under-par with a 33 score down the tough back nine yesterday where so many championship aspirants tumbled to disaster.

"I've hit only one bogey in two rounds and that's pleasing," he said. "In this tournament the birdies are coming very easy and I haven't had many possibilities of bogeys. I've shot 35 and 33 on the back nine and you're not supposed to do that."

Weiskopf has hit only one bogey too.

"That's great," said the championship leader who hit birdies at the third, fourth, seventh, 11th and 16th holes to set a five-under-par 67 record on Troon's modified course.

2½ GAMES IN FRONT

A's Increase Their Lead

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Oakland Athletics have broken that logjam in the American League West to move 2 ½ games ahead of the pack.

Reggie Jackson, Rollie Fingers and Ray Fosse led the stampede Thursday as Oakland shoved four runs across in the ninth to take an 8-4 win before more than 19,000 at Milwaukee in a comeback that upset manager Del Crandall of the Brewers.

He held a 10-minute closed-door meeting with his club and refused to discuss what he told the Brewers afterwards. His team has lost 13 of its last 19.

Ken Holtzman goes tonight for the A's, who went with Vida Blue Thursday. He departed in the sixth with the score 4-2 Brewers. Fingers, who lost his first five decisions and couldn't get anybody out in the early part of the season, then took over and Milwaukee only managed one hit from there on.

Fingers is still only 2-5 but his 1.50 earned run mark is proof positive that he has been the same kind of stopper who starred for the 1972 World Champs.

With Fingers shutting down the Milwaukee offense, it was up to the A's batters to lead the comeback win.

Bert Campaneris and Sal Bando walked in the eighth and then Reggie Jackson, who had belted a two-run homer in the third, singled in one run and Deron Johnson got in the tying tally with a sacrifice fly.

In the ninth, Fosse broke the tie with one out when he belted his third homer 375 feet to left center off Jim Slaton, who was behind even though he had given up only four hits.

The A's then filled the bases with one out and Jackson knocked in his fourth run with a single and Johnson made it three rbi's for the game with a two-run poke.

Three Marinites Seize Belvedere Net Triumphs

Three Marin youngsters won their quarter-final matches in the 84th annual Pacific Coast Junior Tennis championships at the Belvedere Tennis Club yesterday to reach the semi-final round of play today.

Eighth-seeded Herman Bauer of Tiburon toppled Matthew Murphy of Alameda, third-seeded in boys 14, 6-1, 7-6, and was scheduled to meet top-seed Chip Hooper of Sunnyvale today. Hooper beat sixth-seed Frank Casella of San Rafael, 6-2, 6-0, to reach the semis.

In girls 18, Leslie Airola of Tiburon, the fourth seed, beat unseeded Syndi Pardoe, 6-2, 6-0, to put her in the semi-final round against second-seeded Debbie Cator of Sacramento.

Unseeded Dorsey Hook of Tiburon also reached the semis in girls 16 with a 4-6, 6-0, 6-1, win over unseeded Lisa Kearney. Dorsey was slated to meet eighth-seed Tammy Mitchell of Palo Alto today.

Meanwhile, more upsets of seeded players were recorded yesterday.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of all took place in boys 18 where fifth-seeded Rory Federico of San Jose knocked off the

Marin Yacht In Lead

HONOLULU (UPI) — Two Marin yachtsmen took over the lead and a third took out his tool kit yesterday as the 2,225-nautical mile Transpacific Yacht Race from Los Angeles to Honolulu concluded its ninth day.

David W. Allen of Belvedere guided his 42-foot sloop Improbable back into the fleet overall corrected time lead which it had relinquished yesterday to Kolohe, out of Honolulu. Improbable, registered out of the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere, also kept its Class B lead.

Rolfe Croker of Belvedere regained the Class C lead in his 39-foot sloop Tenacity, sailing out of the St. Francis Yacht Club of San Francisco. He also overtook Kolohe.

David O. Jesberg of Belvedere saw his chances destroyed by a broken mast on his 33-foot Class D sloop Vicarious. He and his crew radioed that they had juri-rigged the San Francisco Yacht Club craft and were resuming the run to Honolulu under spinnaker.

The New York yacht Windward Passage continued its effort to be first to the finish, holding a 16-mile lead over Ragtime and moving at a pace which suggested a Saturday night arrival at Diamond Head.

LOOK OUT FOR RUSSIANS

Tough Track Meet Ahead

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — The young United States track and field team might have a bunch of future Olympic champions, but they figure to be clobbered by the Russians in two weeks.

That was the expert opinion after the Americans opened their European swing Wednesday and Thursday with a 122-101 trimming of a weak West German squad at the Olympic stadium.

U.S. team coach Jim Bush almost agreed.

"We'll have to improve tremendously to beat the Russians but we have room for it," he said. "Our quarter milers and sprinters were not sharp enough."

Looking out onto the rain-soaked stadium, Bush said: It's a team of the future. By 1976 they'll be ready because I see so much potential in these boys."

The Americans arrived without a number of household names, including the 110 meter high hurdles champion and world record holder Rod Milburn, indoor pole vault world champion Steve Smith, Olympic long jump champion Randy Williams and quarter miler silver medalist Ralph Mann.

Rick Wohlhuter, the 880 yards world record holder, missed the meet against the Germans but will be back in harness at Minsk. On the other hand, 19-year-old Dwight Stones, the revelation of the Munich meet with his high jump world record of 7 feet, 6 ½ inches, will not compete in Russia.

Officially, Stones claims "the opposition is too weak in a post-Olympic year." Unofficially, the Los Angeles student is up in arms against the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU).

"I paid my own way over and have other commitments in Scandinavia," he said.

When Bush was asked how long the United States could afford to field a team without their best athletes, he shrugged:

"It's a big problem but I cannot force them onto the team. Now we're looking towards the future and this bunch will come good, but give them time," he said.

Stones had predicted he would beat the world record on the tour and he was as good as his word. Other U.S. star performers included shot put world record holder Al Feuerbach, 800 meter Olympic champion Dave Wottle of the Air force and sprinter Steve Williams, who made up for his traditional poor start with tremendous acceleration.

"He's going to be the world's fastest sprinter one day," said Bush. "Steve is our biggest sprint talent since John Carlos (the 200 meter Olympic champion in 1968 and world record holder)."

While the men rolled up their eighth straight victory, although by the smallest margin to date, the U.S. girls slumped to an 85-50 defeat. The local girls scored double victories in all of Thursday's five events, losing only to Francie Larrieau of Sunnyvale, Calif., in the 3,000 meter event, which was not included in the official program.

RANNEY 5TH IN GERMANY WALK EVENT

MUNICH, Germany — Bill Ranney of Fairfax took fifth yesterday in the 10,000 meter walk at the West Germany-United States track meet at the Olympic Stadium. His time was 45:46.0, nearly two minutes behind the first place finisher Bernd Kannenberg of West Germany.

Ranney, a psychology and physical education teacher at San Rafael High School, is one of the nation's premier race walkers and won his spot on this Amateur Athletic Union sponsored trip with a first place finish in the Nationals at Santa Barbara in April.

Ranney, who holds three American records for race walking, will now accompany the AAU tour to track and field meets in Switzerland, Turin, Italy; Minsk, Russia, and then to Africa where they will be competing in Senegal and Kenya.

Weiskopf A Stroke Ahead Of Miller In British Open

Sports

TROON, Scotland (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf shot a one-under-par 71 in drenching rain to stave off U.S. Open Champion Johnny Miller's third round charge today and take a one stroke lead into the final round of the $125,000 British Open Golf Championship.

Weiskopf lost his overnight lead to Miller when he bogeyed the first and third holes, then took six on the par four ninth. But as Miller faltered on the back nine with two bogey fives, Weiskopf holed two pressure-filled 15-foot putts for birdies to end the day 10-under par with a 54-hole total of 206.

Bert Yancey, three strokes behind Weiskopf at the start, crumbled with a 73 for 211 and Jack Nicklaus played a round of 76 he will quickly want to forget to drop him nine strokes behind on 215.

Lee Trevino, the defending champion who was seeking his third consecutive British Open title, ~~had putting troubles a~~ finished with a 73 and a 54-hole score of 221—five over par.

Arnold Palmer, aided by some exceptional iron play, shot three birdies on the back nine for a 70 and led the early finishers with a two-over-par 218.

Nicklaus said he planned to take up the challenge as he bid for an all-time record 14th major championship.

At the conclusion of the second round, he said "I have to play better golf than I have in the last two days." He went out with a determined air to take command.

"I haven't played well. I've ~~been~~ playing too many bad holes and making too many bad shots down the back nine," Nicklaus added.

Nicklaus began the second round over the rugged 7,064-yard championship course just one stroke behind Weiskopf but, while Weiskopf raced to a historic record five-under-par 67 for a two-round total of 135, the tournament favorite bogeyed the second, 10th and 15th holes in rain and a steadily increasing wind.

Playing alongside Nicklaus was Bert Yancey, who notched a three-under-par 69 to head Nicklaus home by one stroke.

"I'm happy enough with my play," said Yancey, who shares second spot with 26-year-old U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller, three shots down on Weiskopf. "I drove the ball exceptionally well today. The best part of my game was driving and putting."

Miller, the flaxen-haired idol of golf's growing teen-age army of fans at Troon, indicated a growing familiarity with the west Scottish coast course to come home four-under-par with a 33 score down the tough back nine yesterday where so many championship aspirants tumbled to disaster.

"I've hit only one bogey in two rounds and that's pleasing," he said. "In this tournament the birdies are coming very easy and I haven't had many possibilities of bogeys. I've shot 35 and 33 on the back nine and you're not supposed to do that."

"That's great," said the championship leader who hit birdies at the third, fourth, seventh, 11th and 16th holes to set a five-under-par 67 record on Troon's modified course.

2½ GAMES IN FRONT

A's Increase Their Lead

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Oakland Athletics have broken that logjam in the American League West to move 2 ½ games ahead of the pack.

Reggie Jackson, Rollie Fingers and Ray Fosse led the stampede Thursday as Oakland shoved four runs across in the ninth to take an 8-4 win before more than 19,000 at Milwaukee in a comeback that upset manager Del Crandall of the Brewers.

He held a 10-minute closed-door meeting with his club and refused to discuss what he told the Brewers afterwards. His team has lost 13 of its last 19.

Ken Holtzman goes tonight for the A's, who went with Vida Blue Thursday. He departed in the sixth with the score 4-2 Brewers. Fingers, who lost his first five decisions and couldn't get anybody out in the early part of the season, then took over and Milwaukee only managed one hit from there on.

Fingers is still only 2-5 but his 1.50 earned run mark is proof positive that he has been the same kind of stopper who starred for the 1972 World Champs.

With Fingers shutting down the Milwaukee offense, it was up to the A's batters to lead the comeback win.

Bert Campaneris and Sal Bando walked in the eighth and then Reggie Jackson, who had belted a two-run homer in the third, singled in one run and Deron Johnson got in the tying tally with a sacrifice fly.

In the ninth, Fosse broke the tie with one out when he belted his third homer 375 feet to left center off Jim Slaton, who was behind even though he had given up only four hits.

The A's then filled the bases with one out and Jackson knocked in his fourth run with a single and Johnson made it three rbi's for the game with a two-run poke.

Bonds Might Win An All-Star Berth

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ballot box is now closed but until all the votes are counted, it won't be possible to determine the third outfielder in the National League All-Star lineup.

The deadline for the balloting passed last weekend but until the final results are announced next week, it's a tossup between San Francisco's Bobby Bonds and Houston's Cesar Cedeno for the third spot in the outfield.

In the balloting announced Thursday, Bonds moved ahead of Cedeno. But it's still too close to call with Bonds at 788,355 to 768,227 for Cedeno.

Billy Williams is in second place but he's still within reach with 790,253 votes. The outfield leader is Pete Rose of Cincinnati, who has 904,624.

The other five positions are already set. Hank Aaron of Atlanta at first, Joe Morgan of Cincinnati at second, Ron Santo of Chicago at third, Chris Speier of San Francisco at shortstop and Johnny Bench of Cincinnati at catcher are all so far ahead that it would be impossible for them to be caught.

Sparky Anderson of the Cincinnati Reds, who'll manage the club this year, will choose the pitchers and the subs.

The All-Star game will be played Tuesday night July 24 at Kansas City.

Drug Use Coverup Charged By Scott

Combined AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Athletic organizations are trying to cover up the extent to which drugs are used to enhance performance, a college official told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee Thursday.

Jack Scott, athletic director at Oberlin College in Ohio, told the committee that through a public relations campaign aimed at such "counter culture" drugs as heroin and LSD, groups such as the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the National Football League try to divert attention from the pills and shots given athletes.

Specifically, Scott said he was referring to television spots in which football stars warn youths of the danger of drugs.

Creighton Leads Softball Victory

Greg Creighton pounded out a single, double and triple to pace Ad-Lite to a 14-5 victory over the SMB Flyers last night in the San Rafael Adult Softball "C" League.

In other action last night, Kentucky Fried Chicken beat Round Table Pizza, 12-7, behind two Dan Pieri home runs, and Clobber Inc. defeated Perry's, 4-3, on a five-hitter by Ron Perry.

General

SAN FRANCISCO — Nothing yet has been found to support charges by a former wrestler that he received favorable academic treatment because he was an athlete, says UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young.

An investigation was opened after a story in the San Francisco Examiner last Sunday detailed the reported comments of Peter J. Lutz, 26, in a hearing on his application for unemployment compensation.

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA — The Houston Astros announced Thursday the return to the active roster of pitcher Larry Dierker and the assignment of pitcher Jim York to their Denver farm team in the Pacific Coast League.

Football

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Falcons bolstered their offensive line Thursday with the acquisition of free agent guard Frank Gallagher from the Detroit Lions.

Golf

ROBINSON, Ill. — Tom Kite, David Graham and Labron Harris shot five-under-par 66s Thursday in first round play of the $125,000 Shrine-Robinson Open Golf Classic.

HORSHAM, Pa. — Kathy Whitworth and Judy Rankin, leading money winners of the ladies pro golf circuit, headed the field in the George Washington Golf Classic today as the Janie Blalock dispute over alleged cheating flared again.

The Ladies Professional Golfers' Association said that it had filed suit against the 27-year-old golfer, seeking to have her forfeit all money "which she may have won in any tournament where it can be established she in fact cheated."

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Long-hitting Dayton (Morri) Rose, the comeback player of the 70th annual Trans-Mississippi Amateur Golf Tournament, battled from behind Thursday to oust Brady Miller of Orange, Tex., 1-up in 22 holes, and Carlton Dienstbach of Wichita, Kan., 1-up.

Giants To Host Pirates

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two teams that can pound the ball but have hurling problems hope that Friday the 13th will mean bad luck for the opposition when Pittsburgh and San Francisco open a three-game set tonight at Candlestick Park.

The young Giants, who were idle Thursday, find themselves six games back of Los Angeles in the National League West despite a lineup that features four .300 hitters.

Tom Bradley (8-7), who goes tonight, Ron Bryant (13-6) and Jim Barr (6-8) have all had their moments for the Giants and seem to have improved in recent outings. Behind them, the Giant mound staff has little to offer.

Pittsburgh also presents its usual array of fine hitters but their moundsmen are even worse than the Giants. It will be Doc Ellis (7-9) going for the Pirates tonight. The Bucs are struggling eight games off the pace in their division.

Manager Charlie Fox knows that the Giants can't catch front-running Los Angeles immediately, but wouldn't mind going into the All-Star break "no worse than two or three games behind. We still have enough games left against them to catch them."

Says outfielder Bobby Bonds, "we're going to win this thing."

Two Marin Teams Win In Tourney

SONOMA — Novato American and Southern Marin American captured victories yesterday in the Babe Ruth League baseball tournament at Arnold Field by such disparate scores as 15-1 and 2-0.

Novato American rolled up the 15-1 victory over Southern Marin National by pounding out 14 hits, including three doubles. Mike Moreno hit two of the doubles and added two other hits in five times up.

Glenn Dunbar went three for three and Larry Caples two for four for Novato. Right hander Mike Moroski pitched a two-hitter, not yielding a safety until Tim Grayson's triple in the sixth inning.

Southern Marin American righty Robin Marks won a pitchers' duel from Rohnert Park's Phil Novelly in the 2-0 victory. Marks allowed five hits and Novelly only two, but Novelly walked nine.

Jeff Edwards led off the Southern Marin fifth inning with a double, the first hit off Novelly, and scored on Mike Lopez' single. Lopez later moved up and scored on two infield errors.

Novato is 2-0 in the double-elimination tournament, while the other teams played for the first time. The tourney ends Wednesday.

Sailing Lecture Is Scheduled

A lecture by internationally known racer Tom Blackaller will highlight "Chessboard on the Water," a night of sailboat racing tactics presented by the Mariner Sailing School Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The lecture, held at the John Barry Company, 2650 Bridgeway in Sausalito, will be followed by "For The Love Of Sailing," a film which covers racing of 505s and Australian 18s.

Admission for the evening will be $1, and reservations may be made at the Barry Company.

NOT-SO-MERRY MEXICAN

Lee Trevino normally is a happy, joking golfer, but not when he trails the leader by 13 strokes in a tournament many figured he would win. Trevino shot 75-73—148, four over par, in the first two rounds of the British Open in Troon, Scotland. Tom Weiskopf's 135 led. (UPI Telephoto)

Maccabiah Games Enter Fourth Day

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The United States squad at the Maccabiah Games sets out to widen its commanding lead in the swimming and rowing events today at the start of the competition's fourth day.

With most of its victories garnered in the pool, the U.S. held a 61-48 advantage over runner-up Israel in the overall medal standings. Britain was a distant third with 13, followed by Sweden with 12.

The Americans agreed to an Honors Committee decision suspending Dr. Max Novich, a team physician, from further attendance at any event, following an assault complaint lodged against him by Israeli delegation chairman Samuel Lelkin.

Police said the complaint will be heard in a suburban Tel Aviv court Sunday. Novich was released on $124 bail after Lelkin said he was punched in the face in a dispute over a Dutch boxing referee's decision to stop a heavyweight bout Wednesday between Israeli and American fighters.

U.S. swimmers won three out of a possible six gold medals Thursday. The Americans set a Games' record of 4:09.8 minutes in the 4x100 meter medley relay.

The Americans' domination of the water sports was overshadowed by Swedish star Anita Zarnowiecki's record-breaking win, for her fifth gold medal, in the 100 meter backstroke. Her time of 72.6 seconds shaved two-tenths of a second off the previous Games' record set in 1969.

Wendy Weinberg of Baltimore captured a gold with a record 2:30.7 in the 200 meter butterfly and Samuel Franklin of Tustin, Calif., finished first in the 100 meter backstroke in 62.4 seconds.

Another new mark — 4:09 — was set in the 4x100 meter medley relay by Scott Lichtig of Los Angeles, Andrew Lehner of Caldwell, N.J., Edwin Suddleson of Van Nuys, Calif., and Jeffre Latz of Tempe, Ariz.

Joel Coster of Los Alamitos, Calif., and Randy Eigen of Brooklyn, N.Y., took the 1,500 meter rowing pairs in 5:57.6 minutes. In basketball, the U.S. team won its third straight game, this time against Australia 103-26.

An American team win also came in water polo, against Belgium 10-7, to give the U.S. the lead in that competition.

Rangers' Glamorous Clyde Not Awed By 'Monster'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

David Clyde, the Texas Rangers' glamorous No. 1 draft pick, has met the Monster and is duly impressed but not awed.

The Monster is the 40-foot-high-wall which booods over every game played at Fenway Park, Boston, and has influenced the performances of many players long before the 18-year old Clyde was born. It is an axiom accepted by American Leaguers over the years that "it is a different game in Fenway."

Clyde became another in the long line of victims of The Monster Thursday night when Tommy Harper snapped a 1-1 tie with a homer over the wall and the Red Sox beat the Rangers, 5-2. It was an experience that could have caused the kid to lose faith in himself or for the Red Sox to put him down but neither happened.

"The wall didn't bother me," said Clyde, "because it reminded me of when I was pitching in high school and the left field was short. The difference here in the majors is that the hitters are better."

"When he struck me out," said Yastrzemski, who later hit a three-run homer off Bill Gogolewski in the eighth inning, "he hit three different spots on me and they were all perfect pitches.

"He's going to be around for quite a while," said Cepeda. "It's rare to see an 18-year old with his control. He challenged me and he struck me out twice. He's got great poise."

The Detroit Tigers defeated the California Angels, 7-6, the New York Yankees downed the Kansas City Royals, 10-3, the Baltimore Orioles shaded the Chicago White Sox, 4-3, the Oakland A's topped the Milwaukee Brewers, 8-4, and the Cleveland Indians scored a 7-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins after losing, 8-4, in other AL games.

Harper's homer gave the Red Sox a 2-1 lead and Yastrzemski polished off the win for them with his three-run homer off Gogolewski. Marty Pattin went the distance for the Red Sox for his ninth win against 11 losses. Clyde now stands 1-2 in his brief major league career.

Dick McAuliffe's two-out single in the ninth enabled the Tigers' John Hiller to pick up his fourth victory of the seaso. Bob Oliver tied the game for the Angels when he hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning but Dave Sells walked Dick Sharon and Duke Sims in the ninth before McAuliffe delivered his game-winning hit.

Gene Michael drove in three runs and Thurman Munson scored three times as the Yankees pounded out 17 hits and enabled Pat Dobson, who pitched a seven-hitter, to win his fifth game against three losses. Michael's two-run double was the big blow of a threerun fifth inning which gave the Yankees a 9-3 lead and paved the way for instant relief ace Sparky Lyle to enjoy a full night of sleep in the Yankee bullpen for a change.

Brooks Robinson drove in Bobby Grich with a single in the eighth inning as the Orioles topped the White Sox and dealt reliever Terry Forster his third loss against two wins. Paul Blair hit his sixth homer for the Orioles.

Jim Holt singled in the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning and George Mitterwald drove in four more runs as the Twins beat the Indians in their first game. In the nightcap, John Lowenstein scored the tiebreaking run for Cleveland on a wild pitch by Ken Sanders and George Hendrick followed with his second homer of the game.

Wynn Paces Astro Win Over Phillies

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Don't let Jim Wynn's batting average fool you.

Wynn, whose average has sagged under .230 in recent weeks, hasn't let his batting slump affect his play in the field nor has it made him change his swing at the plate.

The veteran outfielder pulled another slick play in the field Thursday night and finally broke out of a prolonged slump with a pair of homers to lead the Astros to a 7-6 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Wynn, whose homers gave him 16 for the season, was more impressed with a play he made in right field in the eighth inning that took the Phillies out of a potential big inning.

With Del Unser aboard on a walk in the eighth, Mike Schmidt dropped what appeared to be a sure single into right. But Wynn, faking like he was going to catch it, decoyed Unser into heading back toward first and managed to get a forceout at second. It was the second time this week that Wynn had pulled off such a play.

"If that ball had gone for a hit it could have been disastrous right there, but I think my throw took the heart out of it," said Wynn.

As for the homers, the second of which came off a slider in the ninth and snapped a 6-6 tie, Wynn said, "it's the first time in a month and a half I've seen one of those mistakes hanging. The pitchers haven't been throwing me their mistakes."

Willie Stargell delivered a three-run homer, his 26th of the season, and Bob Robertson added a solo shot as the Pirates swept their three-game series with the Padres to move within one game of third place in the NL East. Luke Walker went the distance for the Pirates, allowing only five hits.

Andy Messersmith gave up seven hits and tossed his second NL shutout as the Dodgers beat the Cardinals and moved six games in front in the NL West. Messersmith, boosting his record to 8-6, received batting support from Bill Buckner, who drove in three runs with a homer and a single, and Willie Davis, who collected four singles.

Sharon Walsh Loses In Wales

NEWPORT, Wales (UPI) — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, seeded fourth, was eliminated in the semi-finals of the Welsh Open Tennis Championships Thursday by top-seeded Julie Heldman of Houston, Tex., 6-2, 6-3.

The other semi-final was won by 16-year-old Australian left-hander Dianne Fromholtz over Patti Hogan of La Jolla, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Australia's Bob Giltinan, New Zealand's Geoff Simpson, top-seeded Briton Roger Taylor and John Paish won men's quarter-final matches.

Bonds Might Win An All-Star Berth

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ballot box is now closed but until all the votes are counted, it won't be possible to determine the third outfielder in the National League All-Star lineup.

The deadline for the balloting passed last weekend but until the final results are announced next week, it's a tossup between San Francisco's Bobby Bonds and Houston's Cesar Cedeno for the third spot in the outfield.

In the balloting announced Thursday, Bonds moved ahead of Cedeno. But it's still too close to call with Bonds at 788,355 to 768,227 for Cedeno.

Billy Williams is in second place but he's still within reach with 790,253 votes. The outfield leader is Pete Rose of Cincinnati, who has 904,624.

The other five positions are already set. Hank Aaron of Atlanta at first, Joe Morgan of Cincinnati at second, Ron Santo of Chicago at third, Chris Speier of San Francisco at shortstop and Johnny Bench of Cincinnati at catcher are all so far ahead that it would be impossible for them to be caught.

Sparky Anderson of the Cincinnati Reds, who'll manage the club this year, will choose the pitchers and the subs.

The All-Star game will be played Tuesday night July 24 at Kansas City.

Drug Use Coverup Charged By Scott

Combined AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Athletic organizations are trying to cover up the extent to which drugs are used to enhance performance, a college official told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee Thursday.

Jack Scott, athletic director at Oberlin College in Ohio, told the committee that through a public relations campaign aimed at such "counter culture" drugs as heroin and LSD, groups such as the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the National Football League try to divert attention from the pills and shots given athletes.

Specifically, Scott said he was referring to television spots in which football stars warn youths of the danger of drugs.

SAN FRANCISCO — Nothing yet has been found to support charges by a former wrestler that he received favorable academic treatment because he was an athlete, says UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young.

An investigation was opened after a story in the San Francisco Examiner last Sunday detailed the reported comments of Peter J. Lutz, 26, in a hearing on his application for unemployment compensation.

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA — The Houston Astros announced Thursday the return to the active roster of pitcher Larry Dierker and the assignment of pitcher Jim York to their Denver farm team in the Pacific Coast League.

Football

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Falcons bolstered their offensive line Thursday with the acquisition of free agent guard Frank Gallagher from the Detroit Lions.

Golf

ROBINSON, Ill. — Tom Kite, David Graham and Labron Harris shot five-under-par 66s Thursday in first round play of the $125,000 Shrine-Robinson Open Golf Classic.

HORSHAM, Pa. — Kathy Whitworth and Judy Rankin, leading money winners of the ladies pro golf circuit, headed the field in the George Washington Golf Classic today as the Janie Blalock dispute over alleged cheating flared again.

The Ladies Professional Golfers' Association said that it had filed suit against the 27-year-old golfer, seeking to have her forfeit all money "which she may have won in any tournament where it can be established she in fact cheated."

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Long-hitting Dayton (Morri) Rose, the comeback player of the 70th annual Trans-Mississippi Amateur Golf Tournament, battled from behind Thursday to oust Brady Miller of Orange, Tex., 1-up in 22 holes, and Carlton Dienstbach of Wichita, Kan., 1-up.

Giants To Host Pirates

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two teams that can pound the ball but have hurling problems hope that Friday the 13th will mean bad luck for the opposition when Pittsburgh and San Francisco open a three-game set tonight at Candlestick Park.

The young Giants, who were idle Thursday, find themselves six games back of Los Angeles in the National League West despite a lineup that features four .300 hitters.

Tom Bradley (8-7), who goes tonight, Ron Bryant (13-6) and Jim Barr (6-8) have all had their moments for the Giants and seem to have improved in recent outings. Behind them, the Giant mound staff has little to offer.

Pittsburgh also presents its usual array of fine hitters but their moundsmen are even worse than the Giants. It will be Doc Ellis (7-9) going for the Pirates tonight. The Bucs are struggling eight games off the pace in their division.

Manager Charlie Fox knows that the Giants can't catch front-running Los Angeles immediately, but wouldn't mind going into the All-Star break "no worse than two or three games behind. We still have enough games left against them to catch them."

Says outfielder Bobby Bonds, "we're going to win this thing."

Two Marin Teams Win In Tourney

SONOMA — Novato American and Southern Marin American captured victories yesterday in the Babe Ruth League baseball tournament at Arnold Field by such disparate scores as 15-1 and 2-0.

Novato American rolled up the 15-1 victory over Southern Marin National by pounding out 14 hits, including three doubles. Mike Moreno hit two of the doubles and added two other hits in five times up.

Glenn Dunbar went three for three and Larry Caples two for four for Novato. Right hander Mike Moroski pitched a two-hitter, not yielding a safety until Tim Grayson's triple in the sixth inning.

Southern Marin American righty Robin Marks won a pitchers' duel from Rohnert Park's Phil Novelly in the 2-0 victory. Marks allowed five hits and Novelly only two, but Novelly walked nine.

Jeff Edwards led off the Southern Marin fifth inning with a double, the first hit off Novelly, and scored on Mike Lopez' single. Lopez later moved up and scored on two infield errors.

Novato is 2-0 in the double-elimination tournament, while the other teams played for the first time. The tourney ends Wednesday.

Maccabiah Games Enter Fourth Day

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The United States squad at the Maccabiah Games sets out to widen its commanding lead in the swimming and rowing events today at the start of the competition's fourth day.

With most of its victories garnered in the pool, the U.S. held a 61-48 advantage over runner-up Israel in the overall medal standings. Britain was a distant third with 13, followed by Sweden with 12.

The Americans agreed to an Honors Committee decision suspending Dr. Max Novich, a team physician, from further attendance at any event, following an assault complaint lodged against him by Israeli delegation chairman Samuel Lelkin.

Police said the complaint will be heard in a suburban Tel Aviv court Sunday. Novich was released on $124 bail after Lelkin said he was punched in the face in a dispute over a Dutch boxing referee's decision to stop a heavyweight bout Wednesday between Israeli and American fighters.

U.S. swimmers won three out of a possible six gold medals Thursday. The Americans set a Games' record of 4:09.8 minutes in the 4x100 meter medley relay.

The Americans' domination of the water sports was overshadowed by Swedish star Anita Zarnowiecki's record-breaking win, for her fifth gold medal, in the 100 meter backstroke. Her time of 72.6 seconds shaved two-tenths of a second off the previous Games' record set in 1969.

Wendy Weinberg of Baltimore captured a gold with a record 2:30.7 in the 200 meter butterfly and Samuel Franklin of Tustin, Calif., finished first in the 100 meter backstroke in 62.4 seconds.

Another new mark — 4:09 — was set in the 4x100 meter medley relay by Scott Lichtig of Los Angeles, Andrew Lehner of Caldwell, N.J., Edwin Suddleson of Van Nuys, Calif., and Jeffre Latz of Tempe, Ariz.

Joel Coster of Los Alamitos, Calif., and Randy Eigen of Brooklyn, N.Y., took the 1,500 meter rowing pairs in 5:57.6 minutes. In basketball, the U.S. team won its third straight game, this time against Australia 103-26.

An American team win also came in water polo, against Belgium 10-7, to give the U.S. the lead in that competition.

Rangers' Glamorous Clyde Not Awed By 'Monster'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

David Clyde, the Texas Rangers' glamorous No. 1 draft pick, has met the Monster and is duly impressed but not awed.

The Monster is the 40-foot-high-wall which booods over every game played at Fenway Park, Boston, and has influenced the performances of many players long before the 18-year old Clyde was born. It is an axiom accepted by American Leaguers over the years that "it is a different game in Fenway."

Clyde became another in the long line of victims of The Monster Thursday night when Tommy Harper snapped a 1-1 tie with a homer over the wall and the Red Sox beat the Rangers, 5-2. It was an experience that could have caused the kid to lose faith in himself or for the Red Sox to put him down but neither happened.

"The wall didn't bother me," said Clyde, "because it reminded me of when I was pitching in high school and the left field was short. The difference here in the majors is that the hitters are better."

"When he struck me out," said Yastrzemski, who later hit a three-run homer off Bill Gogolewski in the eighth inning, "he hit three different spots on me and they were all perfect pitches.

"He's going to be around for quite a while," said Cepeda. "It's rare to see an 18-year old with his control. He challenged me and he struck me out twice. He's got great poise."

The Detroit Tigers defeated the California Angels, 7-6, the New York Yankees downed the Kansas City Royals, 10-3, the Baltimore Orioles shaded the Chicago White Sox, 4-3, the Oakland A's topped the Milwaukee Brewers, 8-4, and the Cleveland Indians scored a 7-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins after losing, 8-4, in other AL games.

Harper's homer gave the Red Sox a 2-1 lead and Yastrzemski polished off the win for them with his three-run homer off Gogolewski. Marty Pattin went the distance for the Red Sox for his ninth win against 11 losses. Clyde now stands 1-2 in his brief major league career.

Dick McAuliffe's two-out single in the ninth enabled the Tigers' John Hiller to pick up his fourth victory of the seaso. Bob Oliver tied the game for the Angels when he hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning but Dave Sells walked Dick Sharon and Duke Sims in the ninth before McAuliffe delivered his game-winning hit.

Gene Michael drove in three runs and Thurman Munson scored three times as the Yankees pounded out 17 hits and enabled Pat Dobson, who pitched a seven-hitter, to win his fifth game against three losses. Michael's two-run double was the big blow of a threerun fifth inning which gave the Yankees a 9-3 lead and paved the way for instant relief ace Sparky Lyle to enjoy a full night of sleep in the Yankee bullpen for a change.

Brooks Robinson drove in Bobby Grich with a single in the eighth inning as the Orioles topped the White Sox and dealt reliever Terry Forster his third loss against two wins. Paul Blair hit his sixth homer for the Orioles.

Jim Holt singled in the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning and George Mitterwald drove in four more runs as the Twins beat the Indians in their first game. In the nightcap, John Lowenstein scored the tiebreaking run for Cleveland on a wild pitch by Ken Sanders and George Hendrick followed with his second homer of the game.

Wynn Paces Astro Win Over Phillies

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Don't let Jim Wynn's batting average fool you.

Wynn, whose average has sagged under .230 in recent weeks, hasn't let his batting slump affect his play in the field nor has it made him change his swing at the plate.

The veteran outfielder pulled another slick play in the field Thursday night and finally broke out of a prolonged slump with a pair of homers to lead the Astros to a 7-6 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Wynn, whose homers gave him 16 for the season, was more impressed with a play he made in right field in the eighth inning that took the Phillies out of a potential big inning.

With Del Unser aboard on a walk in the eighth, Mike Schmidt dropped what appeared to be a sure single into right. But Wynn, faking like he was going to catch it, decoyed Unser into heading back toward first and managed to get a forceout at second. It was the second time this week that Wynn had pulled off such a play.

"If that ball had gone for a hit it could have been disastrous right there, but I think my throw took the heart out of it," said Wynn.

As for the homers, the second of which came off a slider in the ninth and snapped a 6-6 tie, Wynn said, "it's the first time in a month and a half I've seen one of those mistakes hanging. The pitchers haven't been throwing me their mistakes."

Willie Stargell delivered a three-run homer, his 26th of the season, and Bob Robertson added a solo shot as the Pirates swept their three-game series with the Padres to move within one game of third place in the NL East. Luke Walker went the distance for the Pirates, allowing only five hits.

Andy Messersmith gave up seven hits and tossed his second NL shutout as the Dodgers beat the Cardinals and moved six games in front in the NL West. Messersmith, boosting his record to 8-6, received batting support from Bill Buckner, who drove in three runs with a homer and a single, and Willie Davis, who collected four singles.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Salmon Shaker Champ Of '73

In Tuesday's column I mentioned that some of the salmon fishermen were reporting "thousands of shakers" (undersized fish) being caught and released by the salmon trolling crowd just outside the Gate, between Muir Beach and Rocky Point, off Stinson Beach, and after I gave it a go one day this week, I can surely verify what the fishermen said.

I was the champ 'shaker-catcher' for the day. I was part of Bob Locki's six man crew aboard the good ship LoHat. I really gave that crew a fishing lesson on how to catch shakers, and at the same time they were giving me a fishing lesson on how to catch legal sized fish.

During one stretch, I think I caught nine straight, and all had to be returned to the water. I really got frustrated! I don't know how many three-pound sinkers I lost, but Sam Knoles must have been keeping tally, because he gently suggested that I use one of his specially made soldered-together sinker releases. (They are most economical; the sinker just doesn't release!) I believe I actually caught about 20 shakers, and not one legal fish. Everyone else aboard caught his limit. We came in with 15 nice salmon, and probably the biggest was Hugo Lenci's 15 pounder (estimated weight).

OF COURSE they gave me a fish or two just to keep the peace. I felt like a bum! Sam, who caught three nice fish, gave me his rod to get me out of the doldrums when he hooked his third fish. But I couldn't count that as mine, so I just pouted. So if you're going this weekend take plenty of bait, though the fish hit lures and spoons too.

Also take plenty of sinkers, though with the slow tides, two pounds can get you by. (And you might solder your releases so they don't release; it's quite a money saver!) We fished close to shore near the Slide Ranch, getting the most action towards the middle of the day. The wind came up about noon.

THE STRIPER fishing for the trollers was slow up to Thursday, with the good outgoing tides too early in the morning.

With shiners for drifting now available, 10 or so boats did try drifting at The Sisters Wednesday. Some took limits, most caught some fish. So, for the weekend, it's early morning trolling on the outgoing and lows at The Brothers Islands, Red Rock, the Richmond Bridge, the South Tower, Mile Rock and Point Diablo. On the incoming, and that makes it a much nicer hour for getting up, fish The Sisters and the incoming rips at most of the bay islands.

A SPECIAL HUNT for buck antelope in Modoc, Lassen and eastern Shasta and Siskiyou counties Aug. 25-Sept. 3 was approved by the California Fish and Game Commission at a meeting June 29 in Monterey.

The league, which is in its third week of play, is separated into two divisions, with eight teams in each division from Sonoma County high schools. Although the teams are made up of players from the same school, no uniforms are worn.

Clemente Airplane Defective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An overloaded plane carrying baseball star Roberto Clemente crashed when an engine — damaged in an earlier accident —failed on takeoff, government safety investigators said today.

The Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder and four other persons died Dec. 31, 1972, when a four-engine DC-7 carrying relief supplies to victims of the Nicaraguan earthquake crashed shortly after takeoff from San Juan, Puerto Rico.

In its report on the accident, the National Transportation Safety Board said:

—The plane was 4,193 pounds overweight when it took off.

—The plane had not been flown "in approximately four months" prior to the crash.

The board said the co-pilot of the plane, who was also president of American Air Express Leasing Company — the firm which provided the chartered plane — only had six hours of flight experience with a DC-7. The flight engineer also was unqualified for his job, the board said.

According to the board, the plane was involved in an accident Dec. 2 when it ran into a drainage ditch as it taxied around the airport.

Two propellers were replaced, but the board indicated that only minor checks were made to spot possible engine damage.

"There was extensive internal failure in the inboard left engine during the takeoff — a failure which the board investigators traced to previous engine damage from a taxiing accident Dec. 2," the board said.

An eyewitness said he told Clemente that the plane was improperly loaded and unsafe. The witness quoted Clemente as saying "he didn't know anything about this and presumed the plane was being loaded properly."

Claiming the eyewitness report "further sharpens the poignancy of this tragedy," the board urged groups chartering planes to contact the nearest office of the Federal Avaiation Administration if doubt exists as to the airworthiness of a plane.

Tennis Draft Is Scheduled

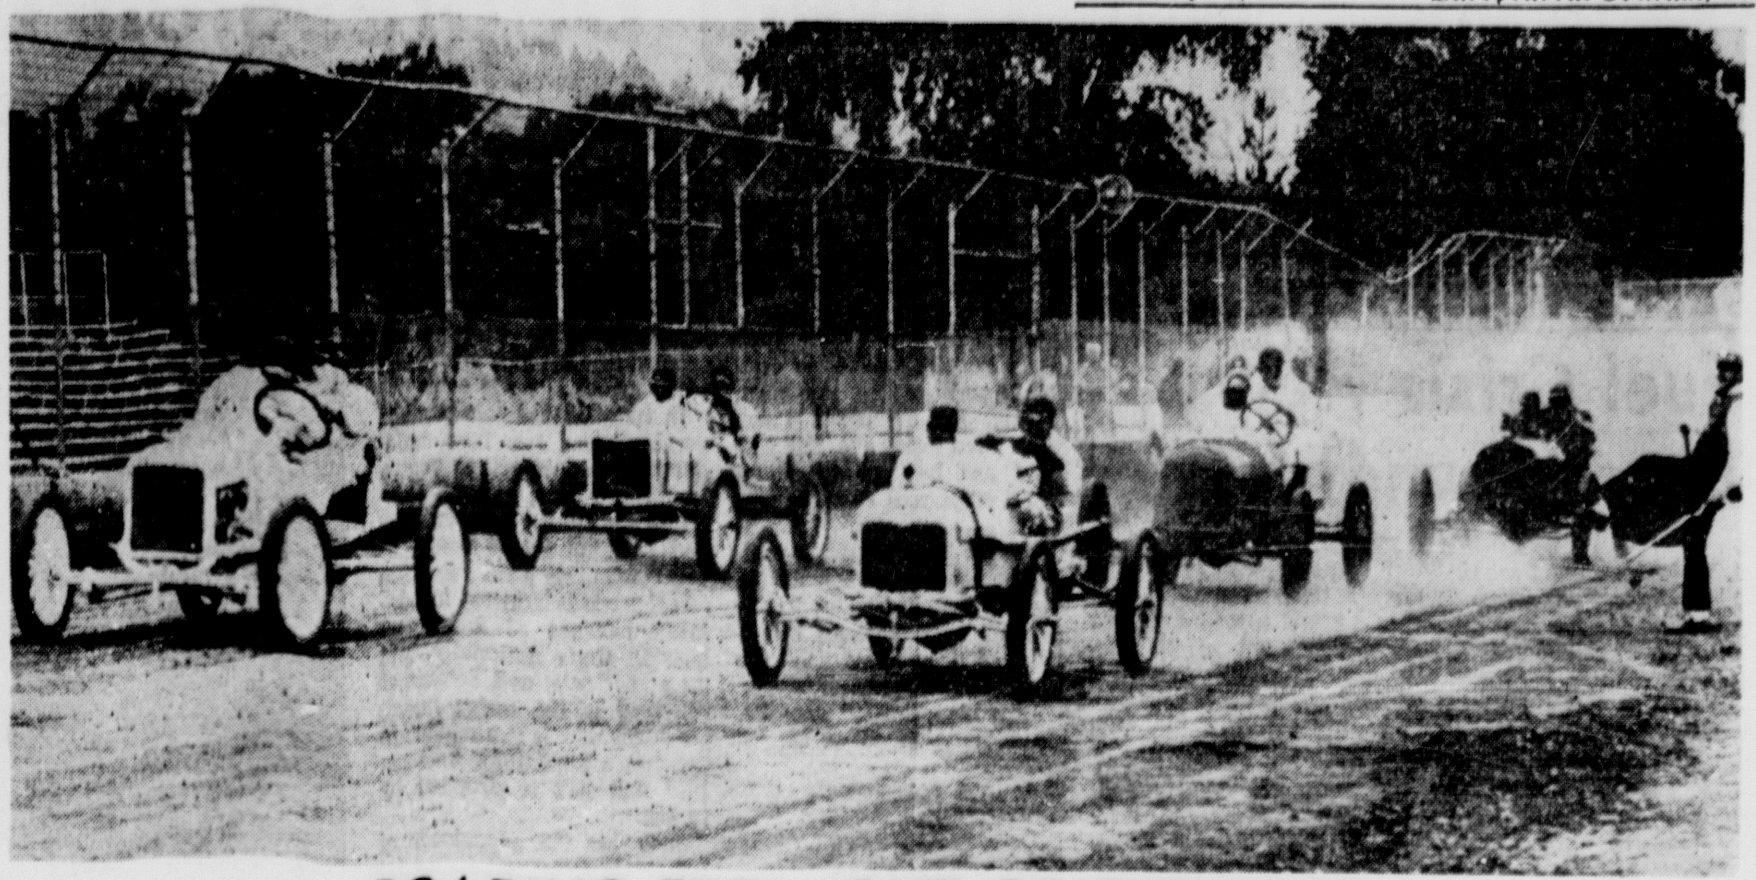
"For the first time in history, both men and women will be in the same draft pool," said WTT commissioner George MacCall. "And I wouldn't be surprised if more women than men were taken in the opening round."

Some observers insist that, because there are fewer "big name" women players, as many as four of the first five selections could be women.

WTT teams will consist of three men and three women. Present plans call for each match to include three events—men's singles, women's singles and mixed doubles.



ROARING FROM OUT OF THE PAST

'Strong' Deal By Raiders For Runner

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders have picked up ex-San Francisco 49er running back Jim Strong from New Orleans in a trade for a future draft pick.

Strong gained 404 yards for the Saints last season and scored his only touchdown against the Raiders.

Coach John Madden said Thursday he liked Strong because he was "sturdy and a good receiver." He has caught 30 passes over the past two seasons.

Strong joins a camp which opened Thursday for rookies and free agents. Top draft pick Ray Guy of Southern Mississippi and number seven choice Gary Weaver of Fresno State are still with the college allstars in Chicago and the veterans will arrive within a few days.

No Scrimmage For All-Stars

CHICAGO (UPI) — If any of the 1973 College All Stars can't play against the Miami Dolpnins in the annual pro-collegian football contest July 27, it'll be because they get hurt "eating ice cream."

"It's my theory they don't need it," he said. "If any of them are going to get hurt, let them get hurt eating ice cream."

McKay believed too that his players have as much speed as the pros.

"We've got backs as fast as Mercury Morris," he said, "and as big as Larry Csonka. And we think we have defensive backs as fast as their receivers."

McKay said "everybody seems surprised" that he plans no scrimmages, and laughed as he added, "the pro's spent $10 million drafting these players.

"If they can't play, I think they spent a lot of money for nothing. If I got to scrimmage four hours to find out who's tough, they ought to hire me to tell them who to draft."

Regardless, he said, "We're going to play everybody and we expect them to be ready to play. We didn't bring anybody here to sit on the bench."

McKay's coaching theory is the same he used with the Trojans in that he had a minimum of scrimmages. "It worked out well," he said.

Some of his current players worked for him earlier this summer in the East-West All Star game at Lubbock, Texas, so he got an idea what they could do and they did get contact in the game.

"We have a little one-on-one and one-on-two drills," he said of the current All Stars. "They're in good shape, so we work two hours a day on the field and an hour and a half on mental drills. Mistakes are the things that lose games and we want to work to prevent them."

Paradise Cagers Win On Lee's 24

Dave Lee, in the midst of a productive season in the Drake Summer League, scored 24 points yesterday to lead Paradise Pharmacy's basketball team to a 67-53 adult division victory over Buresh, Vallarino, Costamagna and Claxon.

In other games, Perry's Poorboys turned back Novato Parks and Recreation, 80-73, and Fruit City Produce demolished Henry Hicks Realtor, 82-36.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Salmon Shaker Champ Of '73

In Tuesday's column I mentioned that some of the salmon fishermen were reporting "thousands of shakers" (undersized fish) being caught and released by the salmon trolling crowd just outside the Gate, between Muir Beach and Rocky Point, off Stinson Beach, and after I gave it a go one day this week, I can surely verify what the fishermen said.

I was the champ 'shaker-catcher' for the day. I was part of Bob Locki's six man crew aboard the good ship LoHat. I really gave that crew a fishing lesson on how to catch shakers, and at the same time they were giving me a fishing lesson on how to catch legal sized fish.

During one stretch, I think I caught nine straight, and all had to be returned to the water. I really got frustrated! I don't know how many three-pound sinkers I lost, but Sam Knoles must have been keeping tally, because he gently suggested that I use one of his specially made soldered-together sinker releases. (They are most economical; the sinker just doesn't release!) I believe I actually caught about 20 shakers, and not one legal fish. Everyone else aboard caught his limit. We came in with 15 nice salmon, and probably the biggest was Hugo Lenci's 15 pounder (estimated weight).

OF COURSE they gave me a fish or two just to keep the peace. I felt like a bum! Sam, who caught three nice fish, gave me his rod to get me out of the doldrums when he hooked his third fish. But I couldn't count that as mine, so I just pouted. So if you're going this weekend take plenty of bait, though the fish hit lures and spoons too.

Also take plenty of sinkers, though with the slow tides, two pounds can get you by. (And you might solder your releases so they don't release; it's quite a money saver!) We fished close to shore near the Slide Ranch, getting the most action towards the middle of the day. The wind came up about noon.

THE STRIPER fishing for the trollers was slow up to Thursday, with the good outgoing tides too early in the morning.

With shiners for drifting now available, 10 or so boats did try drifting at The Sisters Wednesday. Some took limits, most caught some fish. So, for the weekend, it's early morning trolling on the outgoing and lows at The Brothers Islands, Red Rock, the Richmond Bridge, the South Tower, Mile Rock and Point Diablo. On the incoming, and that makes it a much nicer hour for getting up, fish The Sisters and the incoming rips at most of the bay islands.

The board said the co-pilot of the plane, who was also president of American Air Express Leasing Company — the firm which provided the chartered plane — only had six hours of flight experience with a DC-7. The flight engineer also was unqualified for his job, the board said.

According to the board, the plane was involved in an accident Dec. 2 when it ran into a drainage ditch as it taxied around the airport.

Two propellers were replaced, but the board indicated that only minor checks were made to spot possible engine damage.

"There was extensive internal failure in the inboard left engine during the takeoff — a failure which the board investigators traced to previous engine damage from a taxiing accident Dec. 2," the board said.

An eyewitness said he told Clemente that the plane was improperly loaded and unsafe. The witness quoted Clemente as saying "he didn't know anything about this and presumed the plane was being loaded properly."

Claiming the eyewitness report "further sharpens the poignancy of this tragedy," the board urged groups chartering planes to contact the nearest office of the Federal Avaiation Administration if doubt exists as to the airworthiness of a plane.

Tennis Draft Is Scheduled

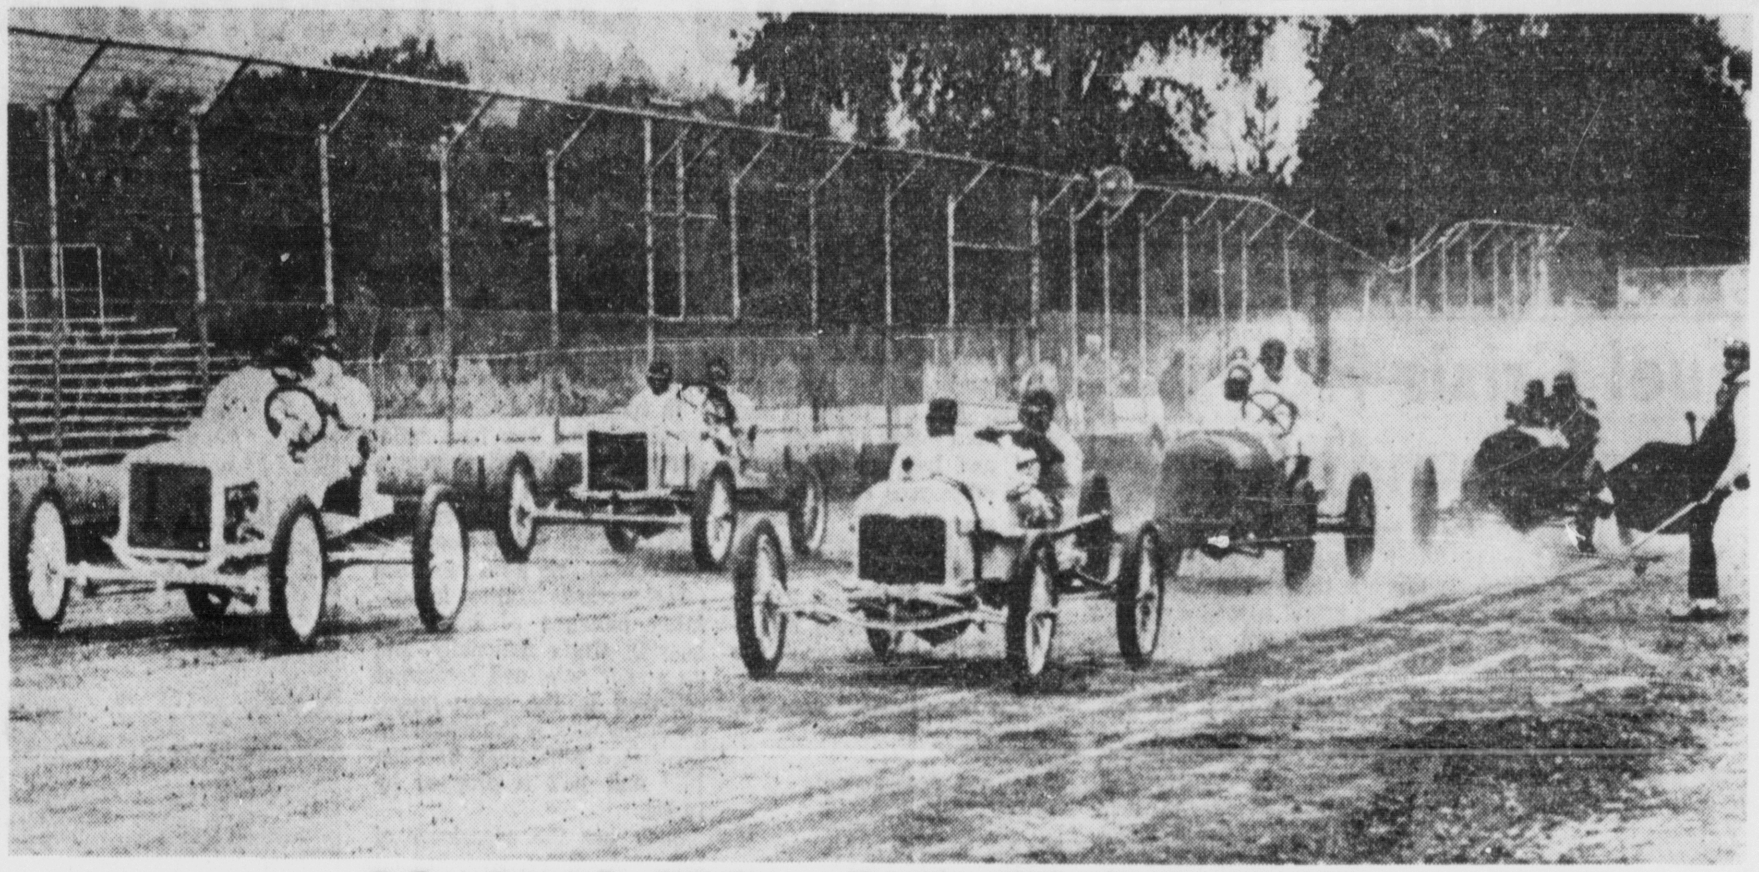
"For the first time in history, both men and women will be in the same draft pool," said WTT commissioner George MacCall. "And I wouldn't be surprised if more women than men were taken in the opening round."

Some observers insist that, because there are fewer "big name" women players, as many as four of the first five selections could be women.

WTT teams will consist of three men and three women. Present plans call for each match to include three events—men's singles, women's singles and mixed doubles.



ROARING FROM OUT OF THE PAST

'Strong' Deal By Raiders For Runner

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders have picked up ex-San Francisco 49er running back Jim Strong from New Orleans in a trade for a future draft pick.

Strong gained 404 yards for the Saints last season and scored his only touchdown against the Raiders.

Coach John Madden said Thursday he liked Strong because he was "sturdy and a good receiver." He has caught 30 passes over the past two seasons.

Strong joins a camp which opened Thursday for rookies and free agents. Top draft pick Ray Guy of Southern Mississippi and number seven choice Gary Weaver of Fresno State are still with the college allstars in Chicago and the veterans will arrive within a few days.

No Scrimmage For All-Stars

CHICAGO (UPI) — If any of the 1973 College All Stars can't play against the Miami Dolphins in the annual pro-collegian football contest July 27, it'll be because they get hurt "eating ice cream."

"It's my theory they don't need it," he said. "If any of them are going to get hurt, let them get hurt eating ice cream."

McKay believed too that his players have as much speed as the pros.

"We've got backs as fast as Mercury Morris," he said, "and as big as Larry Csonka. And we think we have defensive backs as fast as their receivers."

McKay said "everybody seems surprised" that he plans no scrimmages, and laughed as he added, "the pro's spent $10 million drafting these players.

"If they can't play, I think they spent a lot of money for nothing. If I got to scrimmage four hours to find out who's tough, they ought to hire me to tell them who to draft."

Regardless, he said, "We're going to play everybody and we expect them to be ready to play. We didn't bring anybody here to sit on the bench."

McKay's coaching theory is the same he used with the Trojans in that he had a minimum of scrimmages. "It worked out well," he said.

Some of his current players worked for him earlier this summer in the East-West All Star game at Lubbock, Texas, so he got an idea what they could do and they did get contact in the game.

"We have a little one-on-one and one-on-two drills," he said of the current All Stars. "They're in good shape, so we work two hours a day on the field and an hour and a half on mental drills. Mistakes are the things that lose games and we want to work to prevent them."

Paradise Cagers Win On Lee's 24

Dave Lee, in the midst of a productive season in the Drake Summer League, scored 24 points yesterday to lead Paradise Pharmacy's basketball team to a 67-53 adult division victory over Buresh, Vallarino, Costamagna and Claxon.

In other games, Perry's Poorboys turned back Novato Parks and Recreation, 80-73, and Fruit City Produce demolished Henry Hicks Realtor, 82-36.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Fuel Crisis Helps Energy Fund Value

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My husband and I are in our late forties, have substantial savings and are now interested in investing $100 a month in Energy Fund for future growth. Never having invested before and knowing very little about the stock market we would appreciate your opinion of this fund. — T.O.

A. This fund is conservatively managed, investing for long-term appreciation rather than for short swings. A portfolio turnover rate of 50 per cent or under annually is management's goal. The top-10 holdings in Energy's portfolio, which constitute less than 30 per cent of total asset value, include Exxon, American Telephone and Telegraph, Chicago Bridge & Iron and Atlantic Richfield.

Over the last five years, 1968-72, the fund has not been an outstanding performer reflecting the weak market that existed for oil and gas stocks and utilities, which together represent about 30 per cent of the fund's holdings. At this juncture, however, with the energy crisis in the forefront, oils have been a bright spot in a sagging stock market. A monthly investment plan with this fund appears well-suited to your particular aims.

Q. I am retired from Campbell Soup Co. (NYSE) and have some shares of their stock. Do you think it would be wise for me to sell these and buy savings certificates? Would I receive more on my investment? — B.M.

A. Since these shares are yielding around 4 per cent currently, you certainly would earn more on savings certificates which return 5.75 per cent and up. However, there is no possibility of capital appreciation from fixed-income investments such as savings certificates. One alternative suggestion would be to sell half these shares and put the proceeds in certificates.

Campbell earnings for fiscal 1973 are expected to be well ahead of depressed 1972 results. In the first nine months net gained 42 per cent on a 15 per cent increase in sales, year to year. Although rising commodity costs will exert pressure on profit margins, some increase in selling prices may be allowed in coming months. Also, with dividend controls relaxed, a boost is possible in that rate, which is now well below the maximum allowable payout.

Stifling Depression Eases

By DAVID HOLMSTROM
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

SEATTLE — For this city, one of the hardest hit by unemployment in the nation 18 months ago, economic clouds have given way to some sunshine.

Unemployment has gone down from 13.3 to 7.4 per cent. The area's biggest company, Boeing, has recovered somewhat from losing the SST contract and has put on almost 10,000 employees over the past year.

But the lines of people waiting for handouts of free food in the city and suburbs are just as long as ever, because semiskilled and unskilled jobs are harder to find today.

"The big change," says Dr. Belinda Pearson, an economist for the Seattle First National Bank, "has been the Boeing employment turnaround. It has contributed greatly to stabilizing the secondary manufacturing sector of the economy and seemed to mean that psychologically the recession is over."

In addition, Seattle's employment rebound has been influenced by several other factors. For imports and exports flowing in and out of the area's big and beautiful Puget Sound, it was a relatively good year. The forest-products industry is humming because of increased housing starts nationally. But on a sour note, and somewhat reflected in the lower unemployment rate, is the decline in the area's population. Between 1970 and 1972 it dropped by 13,000.

Such was the experience of Donald A. Miller, an industrial engineer at Boeing for 14 years who was laid off in April 1970. For almost two years he was out of work. At one point, just before he was rehired by Boeing about a year ago, he was considering a job in Alaska.

"I get an appreciably smaller salary now," he said, "but I've learned how to survive and could do it again if I had to." He notices less 'esprit de corps' at Boeing and a philosophic difference between those who have returned and those who never left. "The rehired seem to be more reflective," he said.

Boeing is no longer working on "one mammoth program" at a time. "Now we have 12 smaller programs at once with programs fading in and out," said Bush. From a high employment level of 101,000 four years ago, Boeing "bottomed out" at 37,500 employees. Today Boeing employs nearly 50,000 and is adding to the total each month.

While economists see an upswing in Seattle's economy, Mrs. Peggy Maze sees a paradox. Beginning in late 1970 at the height of unemployment rate and because of the crucial need for food, Mrs. Maze and a host of volunteers began distributing free food at a handful of "food banks" in the city. Nearly three years later, and despite the generally improved economy of the area, there are an astonishing 74 food banks in the state.

Such a great need was being met that the Office of Economic Opportunity, at Senator Warren G. Magnuson's prodding, has financed the program over the last two years with $1.4 million in grants.

"It is not the middle-class unemployed coming into the food banks now," said Mrs. Maze. "It is the semiskilled and unskilled who have been pushed further down the ladder of jobs when middle-class workers began getting their jobs."

Mrs. Maze takes issue with the 7.2 per cent unemployment rate in the Seattle area. "The rate is arrived at mainly by the number on unemployment-insurance benefits and those looking for jobs who have registered," she said. "So when the insurance benefits run out and the person still hasn't found a job, the per cent can only go down."

A three-month survey was taken at the Kings County food banks to determine the size of families being served. "We discovered that the average size was 3.2 persons," said Mrs. Maze. "Our conclusion is that if people were being dishonest with us and asking for more food than they need they would have said there was six or seven in the family."

In the last four months, she said, the cost of food has risen 5 per cent in the Seattle area. "We had a nutritional aid at one of the food banks," she said, "to show the women how to get the most out of their foods. She quit after two days because she said the women could teach her ways to save and economize."

HELPING THE RECOVERY — To help get them, and Seattle, out of an economic depression, Boeing made some changes in their 727 Airliner. They say it's now 'selling like hot cakes.'

Computer Diagnosis Is Started

Volkswagen Computer Diagnosis, a significant advance in automotive service, went into operation recently at Leon C. Felton Co., San Rafael.

The advanced service concept employes a computer, specialized diagnosis equipment and sensors built into every Volkswagen since the middle of 1971, to accurately and rapidly analyze the condition of the car.

The computer is connected to the VW by an "umbilical cord" or multi-strand connector plugged into a socket located in the engine compartment. The socket acts as a nerve center for the probes and sensors built into the car.

The technician selects the program card applicable for the model and year of VW being tested. The program card and computer instruct the technician on the manual checks to be made.

Each check involving a visual "operational" or non-operational" decision must be completed before proceeding, insuring that each component is tested.

At several points in the diagnosis sequence, the computer performs automatic checks, employing the built-in sensors. Tests include measurement of front wheel alignment, ignition performance, engine compression and even the condition of the battery and its electrolyte level. These normally time-consuming tasks are performed in seconds.

The customer receives a computer printout of the exact condition of his car and what is needed to bring it to standard specifications.

Nixon's Illness Brings Concern; Stocks Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investors, concerned over President Nixon's illness and the value of the dollar, moved prices lower early today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said thoughts of investors were on the hospitalization of President Nixon for pneumonia. There had been indications he would announce some Phase IV guidelines within a week, but such action apparently now will be delayed.

Also, the dollar traded irregularly during the day. It had advanced during the first three days of the week, they backtracked yesterday. The market has moved in tandem with the dollar abroad all week.

Prices dipped in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Teleprompter was the most active issue, off 1 ¼ at 13 ⅛ on 43,700 shares.

Big Board oils moved both ways. Ohio Standard gained 1 ⅜ and Atlantic Richfield ¾.

Electronics and computers were mixed. Texas Instruments gained 2 ½ and IBM 1 ¾.

Glamors also were mixed. Walt Disney lost 1 ¼ and Polaroid 1.

Gold mining issues were lower.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My husband and I are in our late forties, have substantial savings and are now interested in investing $100 a month in Energy Fund for future growth. Never having invested before and knowing very little about the stock market we would appreciate your opinion of this fund. — T.O.

A. This fund is conservatively managed, investing for long-term appreciation rather than for short swings. A portfolio turnover rate of 50 per cent or under annually is management's goal. The top-10 holdings in Energy's portfolio, which constitute less than 30 per cent of total asset value, include Exxon, American Telephone and Telegraph, Chicago Bridge & Iron and Atlantic Richfield.

Over the last five years, 1968-72, the fund has not been an outstanding performer reflecting the weak market that existed for oil and gas stocks and utilities, which together represent about 30 per cent of the fund's holdings. At this juncture, however, with the energy crisis in the forefront, oils have been a bright spot in a sagging stock market. A monthly investment plan with this fund appears well-suited to your particular aims.

Q. I am retired from Campbell Soup Co. (NYSE) and have some shares of their stock. Do you think it would be wise for me to sell these and buy savings certificates? Would I receive more on my investment? — B.M.

A. Since these shares are yielding around 4 per cent currently, you certainly would earn more on savings certificates which return 5.75 per cent and up. However, there is no possibility of capital appreciation from fixed-income investments such as savings certificates. One alternative suggestion would be to sell half these shares and put the proceeds in certificates.

Campbell earnings for fiscal 1973 are expected to be well ahead of depressed 1972 results. In the first nine months net gained 42 per cent on a 15 per cent increase in sales, year to year. Although rising commodity costs will exert pressure on profit margins, some increase in selling prices may be allowed in coming months. Also, with dividend controls relaxed, a boost is possible in that rate, which is now well below the maximum allowable payout.

Stifling Depression Eases

By DAVID HOLMSTROM

SEATTLE — For this city, one of the hardest hit by unemployment in the nation 18 months ago, economic clouds have given way to some sunshine.

Unemployment has gone down from 13.3 to 7.4 per cent. The area's biggest company, Boeing, has recovered somewhat from losing the SST contract and has put on almost 10,000 employees over the past year.

But the lines of people waiting for handouts of free food in the city and suburbs are just as long as ever, because semiskilled and unskilled jobs are harder to find today.

"The big change," says Dr. Belinda Pearson, an economist for the Seattle First National Bank, "has been the Boeing employment turnaround. It has contributed greatly to stabilizing the secondary manufacturing sector of the economy and seemed to mean that psychologically the recession is over."

In addition, Seattle's employment rebound has been influenced by several other factors. For imports and exports flowing in and out of the area's big and beautiful Puget Sound, it was a relatively good year. The forest-products industry is humming because of increased housing starts nationally. But on a sour note, and somewhat reflected in the lower unemployment rate, is the decline in the area's population. Between 1970 and 1972 it dropped by 13,000.

Such was the experience of Donald A. Miller, an industrial engineer at Boeing for 14 years who was laid off in April 1970. For almost two years he was out of work. At one point, just before he was rehired by Boeing about a year ago, he was considering a job in Alaska.

"I get an appreciably smaller salary now," he said, "but I've learned how to survive and could do it again if I had to." He notices less 'esprit de corps' at Boeing and a philosophic difference between those who have returned and those who never left. "The rehired seem to be more reflective," he said.

Boeing is no longer working on "one mammoth program" at a time. "Now we have 12 smaller programs at once with programs fading in and out," said Bush. From a high employment level of 101,000 four years ago, Boeing "bottomed out" at 37,500 employees. Today Beoing employs nearly 50,000 and is adding to the total each month.

While economists see an upswing in Seattle's economy, Mrs. Peggy Maze sees a paradox. Beginning in late 1970 at the height of unemployment rate and because of the crucial need for food, Mrs. Maze and a host of volunteers began distributing free food at a handful of "food banks" in the city. Nearly three years later, and despite the generally improved economy of the area, there are an astonishing 74 food banks in the state.

Such a great need was being met that the Office of Economic Opportunity, at Senator Warren G. Magnuson's prodding, has financed the program over the last two years with $1.4 million in grants.

"It is not the middle-class unemployed coming into the food banks now," said Mrs. Maze. "It is the semiskilled and unskilled who have been pushed further down the ladder of jobs when middle-class workers began getting their jobs."

Mrs. Maze takes issue with the 7.2 per cent unemployment rate in the Seattle area. "The rate is arrived at mainly by the number on unemployment-insurance benefits and those looking for jobs who have registered," she said. "So when the insurance benefits run out and the person still hasn't found a job, the per cent can only go down."

A three-month survey was taken at the Kings County food banks to determine the size of families being served. "We discovered that the average size was 3.2 persons," said Mrs. Maze. "Our conclusion is that if people were being dishonest with us and asking for more food than they need they would have said there was six or seven in the family."

In the last four months, she said, the cost of food has risen 5 per cent in the Seattle area. "We had a nutritional aid at one of the food banks," she said, "to show the women how to get the most out of their foods. She quit after two days because she said the women could teach her ways to save and economize."

HELPING THE RECOVERY — To help get them, and Seattle, out of an economic depression, Boeing made some changes in their 727 Airliner. They say it's now 'selling like hot cakes.'

Computer Diagnosis Is Started

The advanced service concept employes a computer, specialized diagnosis equipment and sensors built into every Volkswagen since the middle of 1971, to accurately and rapidly analyze the condition of the car.

The computer is connected to the VW by an "umbilical cord" or multi-strand connector plugged into a socket located in the engine compartment. The socket acts as a nerve center for the probes and sensors built into the car.

The technician selects the program card applicable for the model and year of VW being tested. The program card and computer instruct the technician on the manual checks to be made.

Each check involving a visual "operational" or non-operational" decision must be completed before proceeding, insuring that each component is tested.

At several points in the diagnosis sequence, the computer performs automatic checks, employing the built-in sensors. Tests include measurement of front wheel alignment, ignition performance, engine compression and even the condition of the battery and its electrolyte level. These normally time-consuming tasks are performed in seconds.

The customer receives a computer printout of the exact condition of his car and what is needed to bring it to standard specifications.

Nixon's Illness Brings Concern; Stocks Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investors, concerned over President Nixon's illness and the value of the dollar, moved prices lower early today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said thoughts of investors were on the hospitalization of President Nixon for pneumonia. There had been indications he would announce some Phase IV guidelines within a week, but such action apparently now will be delayed.

Also, the dollar traded irregularly during the day. It had advanced during the first three days of the week, they backtracked yesterday. The market has moved in tandem with the dollar abroad all week.

Prices dipped in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Teleprompter was the most active issue, off 1 ¼ at 13 ⅛ on 43,700 shares.

Big Board oils moved both ways. Ohio Standard gained 1 ⅜ and Atlantic Richfield ¾.

Electronics and computers were mixed. Texas Instruments gained 2 ½ and IBM 1 ¾.

Glamors also were mixed. Walt Disney lost 1 ¼ and Polaroid 1.

Gold mining issues were lower.

More Shoe Sales

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American consumer, who buys an average 3.9 pairs of shoes a year, can be expected to raise that figure to 8 pairs by 1980 because of increases in personal income and number of styles, according to a footwear authority, Alvin E. Levine, president of Pic 'N Pay Stores, Inc., a leading self-service shoe chain.
